Troop Pull-Out Set

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is to announce a second round of troop withdrawals from Vietnam today, a move he delayed two weeks because of a step-up in Communist military activity, Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler has announced.

Ziegler refused to confirm a statement from South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky that the United States and South Vietnam had agreed on the withdrawal of 40,500 U.S. troops by the end of November.

Scott Withdraws Name

CHICAGO — Atty. Gen. William J. Scott yesterday withdrew his name from consideration for the appointment to fill the U. S. Senate seat left vacant by the death of Everett M. Dirksen.

Scott bowed out amid reports that Governor Ogilvie had already offered him the Senate seat, but Ogilvie denied offering the appointment to anyone. Ogilvie conferred yesterday with House Speaker Ralph T. Smith and John Henry Altorfer, Ogilvie's opponent in the 1968 gubernatorial primary, concerning the appointment.

Rocks Hamper Search

MANNINGTON, W. Va. — Work crews searching 500 feet underground for the remains of 73 men inside explosion-scarred Mannington No. 9 mine suffered their first setback Monday when they encountered a rock fall and waist-high water.

There was no trace of the missing miners, who were killed in explosions and fires last November.

Ward Offices Bombed

CHICAGO — Firebombs damaged the offices of two North Side aldermen within a 20-minute span early yesterday.

Aldermen George B. McCutcheon of the 43rd Ward and William Singer of the 44th Ward said they thought the bombings were connected with racial and minority group tensions. Damage at both offices was slight.

New 'Pot' Laws Urged

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. John Mitchell told Congress yesterday youths are turning to marijuana by the thousands while authorities wander in a "never-never land" of archaic laws and scientific ignorance.

He called for new laws to clamp down on mobsters and narcotics peddlers, deal more leniently with youthful drug experimenters and draw a more realistic line between "hard narcotics" and less dangerous drugs such as marijuana.

Want Barrier Removal

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Angry Protestants last night demanded that the British army stop "pussyfooting" and forcibly remove the Roman Catholic barricades in West Belfast.

The Protestants threatened to rebuild their own barriers unless the army moved quickly. The Central Defense Committee, which claims to speak for 75,000 Catholics, walked behind the barricades, declared they would not be removed until the British agreed to guarantee demands.

RENT ART? — Yes, copies of original paintings may be rented from the Elk Grove Public Library at $1 a picture for four weeks. The library now has a supply of 60 pictures in all areas, individually framed, which patrons may borrow at a limit of one painting to a family. The pictures will eventually be displayed on library walls, possibly in the new addition. Here Kathy Dolby, 745 Milbeck Court, student part-time worker at the library, places one of the paintings in a protective bag in preparation for borrowing.

Con-Con Forum Set by League

The 16 Third District candidates for Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) delegate seats will make a rare appearance on the same stage Thursday night when the League of Women Voters (LWV) of several area communities sponsor a districtwide candidates' night at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

The forum will be one of the last chances for voters in the district to hear the candidates before next Tuesday's primary election.

In that election, four of the 16 will advance to the general election on Nov. 18. Two candidates will be elected delegates in each of the state's 58 senatorial districts.

THURSDAY'S SESSION will begin at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall meeting room on the lower level of Randhurst.

Because of the large number of candidates, the program has been divided into four parts.

Each part will have four candidates, whose names will be chosen by lot at the beginning of the program. The candidates will each have time to make a short presentation and after the four have spoken, there will be a question and answer period.

An LWV spokesman said the program should end by 10 p.m.

THE 16 candidates, and the order in which their names will appear on the primary ballot next Tuesday, are listed:

—Wilfred L. Robbins, 1808 W. Pleasant Trail, Mount Prospect.

—Robert A. Bush, 726 Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

—Annis F. Bush, 107 E. Council Trail, Mount Prospect.

Village Unit Additions Set

Jack Pahl, Elk Grove Village president, is expected to make several appointments and reappointments to the various village committees and commissions at the village board meeting tonight.

There are several openings on various boards, including two on the nine-member plan commission.

Other bodies which will be affected include the human relations commission, board of health, Community Services board, police and fire commission and zoning board of appeals.

PAHL SUBMITTED the names of several new appointments to board members earlier this month. However, board members were not all in agreement with his recommendations.

The village president will now submit new recommendations to the board. Pahl said yesterday he would not make the recommendations public until tonight's meeting.

In other business, the board will consider a bid from C. B. Construction Co. to install 250 feet of 56-inch storm sewer pipe adjacent to the Mark Hopkins School area. The project is expected to cost almost $7,000.

AUTHORIZATION for the village to advertise for the purchase of 11 police cars and one car for the fire chief will be sought.

Also, authorization will be sought for a public hearing on a rezoning request of a 2.5-acre lot on the west side of Elmhurst Road, north of the S. N. Robbins building.

Rew A. Godow intends to open a Porsche and imported auto agency there.

Meyer Endorses Schlickman

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has endorsed Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights for the vacant post of 13th District congressman.

In a press conference yesterday, Meyer said he will head up a citizens committee in his community to work for Schlickman for Congress.

Schlickman, a three-term member in the Illinois House of Representatives, is the only Republican candidate for Congress from the four western townships in the eight-township district. Eight other Republican contenders are in the Oct. 7 primary race.

ED SHILLINGTON, Des Plaines eighth ward alderman, also endorsed Schlickman yesterday, his vote of confidence stated during the regular city council meeting. Shillington is a resident of Elk Grove Township, part of the 13th District.

Meyer recalled he first met Schlickman in 1960 at a Northwest Municipal Conference (NMC) meeting when both were beginning in municipal government. Meyer was an alderman and Schlickman an Arlington Heights trustee.

Meyer said he will be back to the conference meeting tomorrow to promote his candidate among other local mayors and managers. The conference does not endorse political candidates, he acknowledged.

"As mayor of Rolling Meadows and as a municipal official for the past nine years, I believe that people who have served at the local level know the needs of towns better than those who have not served," Meyer said in endorsing Schlickman.

"IF WE ARE going to have people representing us, we must have people that know us," Meyer continued. "Gene Schlickman has represented Rolling Meadows in the legislature and has done an effective job for us," he added.

The mayor said Schlickman is the only candidate who has the qualifications of working in both local and state government. He said he made his decision to support a congressional candidate after reviewing problems of the district, issues, candidates and qualifications.

Meyer declared, after this review. "Schlickman is, in my opinion, the only well-qualified candidate in the race." He said he will urge all those he knows to vote for his candidate.

"He has taken the time to meet with the municipal officials of the many communities he now represents in the district and shows potential of listening to our problems in the future."

SCHLICKMAN replied that both he and Meyer in the past have always stood up for municipalities' best interests.

"I'm appreciative of your support and hope we can continue to strengthen local government," Schlickman said.

Robert Beaucock, employment manager, said Richard Swender, personnel represenment, which will allow but not be limited to the construction of high-rise multiple dwelling buildings, a race track, hotels and motels, sports arena, theaters, convention hall, office buildings, restaurants, commercial retail establishments and service stations. Such buildings will not be subject to the height limitations of the zoning ordinance of the village.

• The village agrees to amend its liquor control ordinance so as to permit sufficient liquor licenses to be issued upon approval of annexation. The liquor control ordinance is to permit licenses for closing hours similar to Cook County's provisions.

• The village agrees to furnish any required additional police protection for the effective management of crowds and traffic control. If requested by the owner, the village will, within five years, erect a suitable police substation within the area, provided that the owner donate, without cost to the village, a suitable site for police substation selected by the owner and approved by the village.

• The article says that within five years, if requested by the owner, the village will provide a fire substation on the property and staff it with the necessary firemen. The village may, if it desires, combine the site of the fire substation with the police substation provided above.

• The village agrees to join the owner in a petition to the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) to locate a new passenger station for the Chicago and North Western R.R. at an appropriate location within the subject property. If the ICC orders cost-sharing, the village agrees to pay its share toward the cost of the station.

• The village agrees to assume the operation of existing water and sewer facilities on the subject property at the owner's request to provide additional water and sewer facilities for the property.

• The village agrees it will not exercise the power of eminent domain for the acquisition of real estate or personal property for public use within the park property.

• If the owner chooses to subdivide the subject property, the owner may submit and the village will approve, from time to time, portions of the property for preliminary and final plats of subdivision and re-subdivision as separate units in accordance with this agreement.

• The village agrees that any approval of a preliminary plat will be effective for three years from the date of its approval without the owner renewing the preliminary plat on a year-to-year basis during the three-year period.

• In lieu of any bonds or guarantees required for public improvements under the ordinances of the village, the owner may give the village an irrevocable letter of credit issued by a licensed banking or financial institution approved by the village for this purpose or other security mutually agreed on in an amount equal to the amount of required bonds or guarantees.

Ford Working; Cinch Out

As mechanics from a five-week strike at Schrierer Ford, Inc., in Elk Grove Village returned to work Monday, another strike in the village began at the Cinch Manufacturing Co.

The strike at Cinch Manufacturing Co. apparently affected workers in the plant and executive offices at 1501 Morse. Company spokesmen were not available for comment Monday.

Robert Beaucock, employment manager, said Richard Swender, personnel representative, was the only one authorized to comment and he wasn't available.

THE FORD MECHANICS strike which began Aug. 11 affected some 900 Ford and Lincoln-Mercury mechanics in the Chicago area from the Automobile Mechanics Union, Local 701. About 30 mechanics employed by the Elk Grove dealer were involved.

Terms of the agreement were not revealed, but mechanics at the Elk Grove dealer's were reported back to work.

'Mama Don' 'Low Oxen Here'

by ANNE SLAVICEK
If you live in Wheeling you can't park your horse, ox or mule on the sidewalk. And you haven't been able to since September, 1894, when the village board passed an ordinance prohibiting it. A copy of "Ordinance No. 2, an Ordinance

To Define and Provide of Punishment of Misdemeanors," as well as several other laws dating back to the turn of the century, turned up last week during preparations for moving from the present Wheeling village hall to the new one. The ordinances don't apply anymore because the laws have since been codified, according to M. O. Horcher, Wheeling police chief. OTHER LAWS prohibited residents from disrupting worship services by "any menace, profane swearing, vulgar language or any disorderly or unusual conduct" and from "firing cannons, guns, fowling pieces, pistols, firearms or firecrackers on Sunday." It was also illegal to torture animals or promote dog-fights, prize-fights, or cock-fights in the village. Children's play activities were also regulated. "No person shall in any place in the said village fly kites, throw stones, trundle hoops, play ball or engage in any sport or exercise likely to frighten horses, injure passengers, 'embarrass' the passage of vehicles or obstruct the business of other persons," according to Section 23 of Ordinance No. 2.

Citizens also weren't allowed to keep dead animals, unless they buried them. Residents were not to walk around with concealed weapons, including pistols, revolvers, sling shots, knives or daggers, unless they had the permission of the village president. IT WAS ALSO illegal to post handbills advertising cures for "what are called the 'secret diseases'."

The village fathers looked out for wildlife in the village by making it illegal to kill or trap any "robin, bluebird, swallow, martin, mosquito hawk, whip-poor-will, cuckoo, woodpecker, catbird, brown thrasher, humming cherry bird, yellow bird, oriole or bobolink."

It was also unlawful to bell an animal if it annoyed other people.

Health was important in the village, and the trustees prohibited persons from dumping trash in the street. The ordinance lists objectionable trash, including "old boots, old tin and straw."

A billboard, a modern medium for advertising, was also illegal if it "obstructed the light or view of any other person, or the free circulation of the air."

A HEALTH ORDINANCE passed in the fall of 1894 required that people see "respectable" physicians. The ordinance authorized a spring cleanup each May followed by an inspection by the village marshal and the village street commissioner of every "yard, barn lot, pig-sty, cellar or privy" in the village.

A later ordinance, passed in September, 1912, exists only in a handwritten copy. It provides that owners of motor vehicles must be sure their mufflers are in working condition.

struction of improvements, buildings, appurtenances and all other development of any kind and character on the property will remain in effect and be valid and binding upon the parties for five years.

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that, should any existing ordinances affecting the development of the subject property be amended or modified in any manner to impose less restrictive requirements upon development of the property or reduce fees in the village, the less restrictive requirements will benefit the owner of the property and the owner may elect to proceed under the terms of this agreement or upon the amendment or modifications applicable generally to all property within the village.

The village agrees to enact ordinances and resolutions as are necessary to effectuate the terms of this agreement and to waive all annexation fees and donations of money or land which may be required by the ordinances of the village.

It is the understanding of the village that Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, Inc., will apply to the Illinois State Racing Board for a change in the hours of thoroughbred racing to permit night racing at the Arlington Park Race Track. The village agrees not to oppose the application for night thoroughbred racing.

If the owner or any of its subsidiaries holds a valid permit or license for which it has paid a fee to the county, the owner will receive a credit for its unexpired portion if it has to pay a similar village fee instead.

This agreement will benefit and be binding upon the successors in title of the owner and upon successor corporate authorities of the village and successor municipalities.

If this agreement is extended or deferred by court order, the execution of this agreement will be considered deferred until the date on which it becomes effective.

It will be valid and binding for five years from date of its execution.

This agreement will be enforceable in any court of competent jurisdiction by any of the parties or by any appropriate action at law or in equity to secure the performance of its covenants. The owner may disconnect the property from the village upon breach of this agreement by the village.

If this agreement is extended or deferred by court order, the execution of this agreement will be considered deferred until the date on which it becomes effective.

Elk Grove police Monday arrested two local teenagers and charged the pair with harassing another youth whose auto was stalled at Seegers and Higgins Road in Elk Grove Sunday.

Jesse Cano, 18, was charged with battery, and an 18-year-old girl was charged with criminal damage to property.

Police said the pair approached the stalled car and yelled obscenities at another youth because he had long hair.

Cano, and a second male youth, then pulled the victim's hair and repeatedly struck him, according to police.

The girl, meanwhile, broke off the car's antenna and smashed the windshield, spraying glass inside the vehicle, police said.

Police said they are searching for the second male involved in the incident.

'Jumbos' Are Quiet

747 jets will be significantly more quiet than airliners now in use, according to Cpt. W. P. Rushing of United Air Lines.

Speaking before about 50 members of the Palatine Rotary Club Monday, Rushing said the Boeing 747 jumbo jets will make less noise than the Boeing 707s now in use.

He said it is remarkable that an engine of the size being put into the 747s will be quieter, but that is what the manufacturer has claimed.

THOUGH THE 747 is only slightly faster than conventional airlines — it can cut 30 minutes off a flight from Seattle to Europe — the increased speed is not one of the main reasons why the aircraft is being purchased by the airlines.

The purpose behind the 747 is to reduce the number of departures from the nation's airports and cut down on the congestion, Rushing said.

Rushing said there were 18½ million departures at airports last year and that in 1975 there will be 25 million.

Anything that can cut this congestion will help, he said, because by 1975 there 2½ more people will be flying than now.

RUSHING ACKNOWLEDGED that the 747 will create problems at airports which serve the jumbos but said these problems will have to be solved.

Pan American Airlines will be the first to put the 370-passenger 747 into service this December.

A SERMON IN THE sunshine was conducted Sunday by the Rev. William Eggers, executive secretary, Home for Aged Lutherans, Wauwatosa, Wis., and president of the American Association of Homes for the Aged. Rev. Eggers spoke at the annual festival of the Lutheran Home for the Aged in Arlington Heights.

Motorola to Build

Construction of a 317,000-square-foot addition to the Motorola Communications Division facility in Schaumburg will begin later this month.

The new addition will be west of the present Motorola facility on Algonquin and Meacham roads and will contain manufacturing, office and warehouse space.

It is planned to accommodate the steady growth of Motorola's communications division, and the consolidation of the division's activities into two major locations in the Chicago area, according to Homer Marrs, general manager of the division.

EXPANSION OF THE Motorola facility in Schaumburg will provide additional employment opportunities for factory and office personnel, Marrs said.

Motorola's Schaumburg plant distributes a broad product line which includes two-way base radio systems, mobile and portable units, paging receivers, component products, closed-circuit television, car telephones and various other communications items. Motorola pioneered in two-way radio systems starting in the 1930's.

Motorola also is expected to begin construction soon for a 135,000-square-foot building in Schaumburg housing the company's corporate offices. The new building will house the company's finance, law, human relations and public relations departments, as well as the offices of the chairman and president.

MOTOROLA MOVED its communications division to the 700,000-square-foot Schaumburg plant in March, 1967. Growth in the communications field caused the division to build this additional facility while maintaining maximum operation at the older Chicago complex on Augusta Boulevard.

Motorola is the biggest employer in Schaumburg with more than 3,000 workers. Employment numbers have been steadily growing at the plant.

COG Slates MSD Report

The impact of improvements from a $300 million bond issue of the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) will be explained Wednesday by Vinton Bacon, MSD general superintendent.

Bacon will speak before the Cook County Council of Governments (COG) who supported the non-referendum bond issue in the Illinois General Assembly.

The executive committee to COG meets at noon in the Bismarck Hotel, Chicago. The meetings will be the first since early summer when the monthly sessions were recessed for vacations.

COG representatives testified in Springfield in May and June to give the MSD authority to issue non-referendum bonds for construction. When the measure passed, the sanitary district planned to lift its tax levy for construction.

IT WAS ARGUED bonds were the preferred method of financing pending sewer construction since the tax levy did not bring in needed funds fast enough.

Immediate relief for sewer lines and increased sewer capacity was primarily promised northwest and southwest Cook County, since these were considered the fastest growing areas in the county.

COG is a voluntary association of governmental units in Cook County. It is headed by Elk Grove Village Pres. Jack Pahl, chairman of the 20-member executive committee.

The Lighter Side

In Your Stars!

by DICK WEST

Here's your horoscope for the last half of September:

Capricorn Dec. 21-Jan. 19—A good time to start planning next summer's vacation to avoid the botch you made of last summer's vacation. Inflation will continue to eat up the extra money you make selling salt water taffy. Avoid crooked chimneys.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18—Don't believe anything your bank president tells you during this period. If you are invited to swim the English Channel, decline. This should be a good time to replace the ink barrel in your ballpoint pen. Change to another color.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20—An ideal time for writing pornographic poems of three or more stanzas. Beware of getting your thumb caught in a belt loop. You will be offered a good bargain in salt water taffy. You will be offered loss of confidence in your ability to sink the four-ball in the corner pocket.

Aries March 21-April 20—You will feel frustrated because you are unable to see the aurora borealis from your front porch. Your bowling shoes will come untied in the fifth frame. This is a good period in which to mail postcards. Don't try any new recipes for banana pudding.

Taurus April 21-May 20—Your life will be influenced by a small brown bear with long toenails. If you try to climb anything, you will need a longer ladder. Avoid putting your head in a knapsack for the duration of September.

Gemini May 21-June 20—Eat lots of shredded coconut. This is an exceptionally good time for laying asphalt tile and darned seamless stockings. Watch out for falling hockey pucks.

Cancer June 21-July 21—A good time to learn the seven warning signs of athlete's foot. Avoid mail-order kumquats. Someone close to you will invent a new type of bicycle grease.

Leo July 22-Aug. 21—You will have an opportunity to make a quick profit in used fire hoses. A person whom you secretly admire a great deal will call you by your middle name. Avoid spreading apple butter too thickly.

Virgo Aug. 22-Sept. 21—A good time for fumigating bedrolls. It will be to your advantage to start stockpiling confetti for New Year's Eve. Your fireplace will develop mildew.

Mini-Park Planned

There may be mini-skirts, mini-cars, mini-makeup kits and mini-cameras.
And now the Northwest Suburban Fair and Exposition will offer a toddler's mini-park, developed especially for the fair, which will be Wednesday through Sunday at the Arlington Park Race Track Exhibit Hall.

The special park, designed by Harold O. Klopp and Larry Pugsley, landscape architects of Rolling Meadows, is being presented by the park districts of Arlington Heights, Elk Grove, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Roselle, Schaumburg, Salt Creek and Wheeling.

Of free-form, circular design, the minifountain outside the "tot lot" will provide the contrasts and atmosphere of a "mini-park."

HELPING CREATE the mini-park were the following park district heads: Tom Cooper, Mount Prospect Park District; Tom Thornton, Arlington Heights Park District; John Claes, Elk Grove Park District; Dean Hallerud, Rolling Meadows Park District; Ferd Arndt, Wheeling Park District; Rex Morris, Palatine Park District; Vic Locasio, Salt Creek Park District, and Paul Derda, Roselle Park District.

The fair this year has countless fascinating features with over 500 ideas for good living. These attractions include the Northern Illinois Gas Company's cooking school and "What's New in Beef" presented by the National Livestock Meat Board; Paddock Publications seventh annual photo competition; a demonstration of painting with sand at the Sand-O-Rama; an array of tropical fish in 24 prize-winning tanks and a hobby corner, with old post cards, spoons, carvings, salt dishes, Santa Clauses, telephones, trolleys, driftwood, miniature soldiers, iron toys, ash trays and dolls.

Harold O. Klopp

park will be about 40 feet by 80 feet in size and will be representative of a segment of a larger park in one of the Northwest areas.

INCLUDED IN THE mini-park will be a "tot lot" with sandboxes, climbing equipment, spring animals and a buck-about placed in a bark-chip-covered area, with benches nearby. There also will be a council ring, a depressed area surrounded by railroad ties, simulating a Scout meeting place. Inside the council ring will be examples of arts and crafts projects offered by the parks for children, young people and adults.

Enhancing the appearance of a Northwest community park will be a sign in the mini-park containing a typical Little League baseball schedule.

Shade trees, shrubs, scores of chrysanthemums, a gravel path and drinking

The Way We See It

'Toys' or Hazards?

With Christmas toy catalogs now going into the mail, this is a timely occasion for action on some long-overdue legislation before Congress. Up for passage in the Senate is the Child Protection Act of 1969, a measure that already has passed the House 327-0.

That the bill won such unanimity of support in the House was no surprise. The bill is not only long overdue; its merits are extraordinarily obvious.

Essentially, the act would prohibit the interstate sale of any toy ruled dangerous due to electrical, mechanical or thermal hazards by the secretary of health, education and welfare. It would also allow the Food and Drug Administration to seize banned toys already on the market if they were not recalled by the manufacturer.

The act would expand the Child Protection Act of 1966, which allows similar prohibitions on toys ruled dangerously radioactive, rash-causing, explosive, inflammable or poisonous.

Testimony in behalf of the bill brought to light some incredible examples of blatantly hazardous toys now on the market.

Among them:

-A toy oven that can generate heat of 600 degrees inside, more even than the ordinary household oven;

-A baby rattle that disassembles easily, exposing a series of pronged metal surfaces;

-A metal casting set which can heat up to 800 degrees, and which showed a potentially lethal shock hazard during testing;

-A space rocket with protruding fins and points that could be expected to injure a child;

-A dart blowgun which, in Philadelphia alone, produced 11 cases of children inhaling the dart and having to have it removed from their lungs.

It is incredible that some of these devices — labeled "toys" — are even on the market, and that legislation would have to be passed to help prevent them from getting into the hands of children.

It is incredible that Congress — when it took its 1966 action — could have overlooked such a broad and obvious range of hazards, necessitating still further legislation.

It is incredible — since legislation is so apparently needed — that it has taken this long for anything to be done, that lethal "toys" could be allowed to flourish on the market even until the piecemeal action of 1966.

It will be incredible if the current bill is allowed to languish in Congress any longer. The House has done its part; now the Senate can complete the job.

Consuming Begins at Home

by JAMES VESELY

Women are on the march everywhere. From one end of this country to the other, they are getting together to storm the barricades of injustice and complacency.

Recently they struck in Prospect Heights. Members of the Northwest Consumers Union, a group of women concerned with the quality of food products, went into local stores to inspect their wares.

They later reported that once inside the stores, they "found conditions under which food is stored and sold deplorable."

By God, at least someone is doing something for the consumer.

BUT WAIT A minute. Why stop there? I mean, it's not enough to get after the big stores or even the little ones.

I mean, if we are looking for things to gripe about, let's really get down to the basics.

As a consumer of my wife's breakfast eggs for the past six years, I felt I had ample experience to give them the same critical eye the women were giving to the food stores.

Yesterday morning, I looked down at two fried eggs and poked at them with my fork.

Jim Vesely

"Yolk's a little too hard," I said. "And the white part is all burnt on the bottom."

"WHAT?" she says.

Next I sipped the coffee. "Too weak, too hot and too bad," I said. "Why is there coffee splashed into the saucer?"

"What's gotten into you?" she says.

"This is an official consumer's test," I replied, walking over to her cupboards.

I ran my finger along the bottom edge of the shelves and reached way back to the furthestmost corner of the spice cabinet.

"I'm sorry," I said. "But the conditions under which food is stored here are deplorable."

"Aren't you going to finish your eggs?" she says.

I SMIRKED horribly. "Typical reaction," I said. "You people simply don't care for the consumer. We eat your food, pay the bills and all you can say is 'finish your eggs'."

I was getting up steam now. "As a consumer I'm not going to stand for this. The eggs are hard, the cabinets dusty and the towels around here just aren't fluffy enough."

"Don't forget your briefcase," she says, "and I want you to pick up a loaf of bread on the way home."

By now I was mad. "Listen," I said. "Us consumers will not stand for this. You have failed your inspection and there's going to be trouble, big trouble, until you get this place fit for a consumer like me."

"DON'T MAKE any plans for this weekend," she says. "We're going to visit my mother."

By the time I reached the front door I was so mad I was speechless. I wanted to walk out of there and slam the door and make a big exit. But I remembered just in time that if I did the latch would fall out. I have been meaning to fix it for weeks.

Palatine Today

Can Democrats Profit in 13th Dist.?

by ED MURNANE

It should be safe to assume that the election interest of most Palatine voters this fall is concentrated on events that will precede, follow and happen on Oct. 7.

That's primary election day for the 13th Congressional district race and that's when the nine Republicans who have been knocking heads with each other for the past three months get ready to administer the coup de grace. (So hard has the head-knocking been that three heads already have been chopped from the race.)

The western four townships, Palatine, Wheeling, Schaumburg and Elk Grove, are in the spotlight in this race because they, for the first time, probably will determine the outcome of the fight.

ONLY ONE OF THE nine candidates is from this end of the district, leaving three townships without a candidate they can call their very own.

If one candidate can emerge with a fairly substantial lead in those three townships, that may be the ticket to victory.

And a ticket to victory on Oct. 7 should mean a ticket to Washington on Nov. 25, the day of the general election. The Republican winner must still defeat the Democratic candidate, Edward Warman of Skokie, before he takes his seat in the Capitol Building, but in the 13th District, that's not usually a difficult task.

WHY IT'S NOT has been a matter of concern in some quarters of the district, and the indication is that Democrats are beginning to show some signs of life.

A week ago Sunday, when Adlai Stevenson III held his Democratic Unity picnic in Libertyville, the 13th District was well represented. Two of the more celebrated representatives of the district were Warman and Lynn Williams. Warman shared the speaker's platform with the many Democratic bigwigs in attendance, talked with them and had his picture taken with most of them.

Williams wasn't in the limelight as much, but the applause given him when his name was announced rivaled that of most of the others in the crowd.

THE REASON IS THAT Williams is more respected by "independent" Democrats than anyone else in Cook County. He has openly challenged, on several occasions, the tight rule of Mayor Daley and he has the strength of voting records to back him up.

Williams is committeeman of New Trier Township, home of half of the Republicans running for Congress. Yet in a district and a township so heavily Republican, he has moved his organization up to the fifth best spot in the list of Cook County townships and their percentage of Democratic vote. In 1960, before he became committeeman, New Trier ranked 26th of 30.

Palatine Township currently occupies the 26th spot, down two places from the previous two presidential elections. In a year that is marked with harsh infighting among Republicans, this might be the chance to move up. Maybe a little advice from Lynn Williams would come in handy right about now.

Shoe Leather vs. Safety?

by BRAD BREKKE

Let's play a game. It's called "I Hate Buses," or "I'd Rather Walk Than Ride." Any number can play, but to be eligible you must be over 30.

Now let's say you're back in seventh grade, it's eight o'clock in the morning and you have two miles to walk to school.

It's easy. If you can beat the last bell, you win. But no griping and no hitching rides. Not even once.

If you do, you're disqualified.

And let's say it's not just any morning. Let's make it fun and say the mercury has dipped below zero, the sidewalks are crusted with ice, you have books to carry and the minute you step outside, the wind howls around you, chilling the marrow in your bones.

THE WINNER, and there can be more than one, gets a new pair of Eskimo mukluks, in genuine sealskin, and a pair of woolen mittens with the winner's name and school imprinted on the back.

And the grand prize winner, the one who walks the two miles fastest, gets a free hot lunch in the school cafeteria: two pounds of whale blubber smothered in fish oil.

The game, of course, is fun for every one but the players. Only the real players are kids. And to them it's no game and certainly nothing to laugh about.

In fact, unless a transportation plan can be worked out, it may become a shivering reality for them in just a couple of months.

NINETEEN OF the players are junior high students from Golfhurst subdivision who have to walk to and from Lincoln School this year.

But there is a glimmer of hope.

Tomorrow night, homeowners in Golfhurst subdivision will meet with Harry Hanson, president of the Dist. 57 school board, to discuss and hopefully begin plans for a shared-cost busing program for students living in that area.

The meeting will be held in the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 See Gwun, beginning at 8:30 p.m. Everyone is invited and Hanson, who is guest speaker, will later field questions from the audience.

Right now the district is conducting a poll on the southeast side of Mount Prospect to determine how many families with students living more than 1½ miles from Lincoln would be interested in participating in a shared-cost plan.

A SHARED-COST plan is one in which parents split busing costs with the district on a 50-50 basis. It would probably come to about $50 per year for each family. And if enough parents are in favor of it, the plan would be economically possible for the district to implement.

Last month, homeowners protested to the school board that Lincoln School, which has been clocked at 2.3 miles from Golfhurst, is too far for their children to walk each day, especially during the winter.

A petition containing 150 signatures of Mount Prospect parents objecting to the lack of busing in that area has reportedly been drawn, but not yet presented to the district.

District officials say they are not obligated under law to furnish transportation to Golfhurst students. But last year they arranged to bus northside students who attended Central Junior High over to Lincoln on a shared-cost plan.

THE PLAN was finally implemented after scores of concerned parents voiced objection to the busy intersection (Northwest Highway and Central) their children would have to cross to get to school each day if they walked.

But now the board says the only reason they are supplying transportation to these students is because they were transferred on directive from the district.

Dist. 57 is not obligated to furnish busing for students who live more than 1½ miles from school, it seems, because legally it is a "common" rather than "consolidated" district.

Today Golfhurst students are walking. Some are riding their bikes. And many others are being driven to school in car pools.

BUT AS one mother lamented, "It's hard getting the kids to school sometimes, especially in the winter, because not every family has a second car available."

Right now Lincoln serves all junior high students living south of the railroad tracks in Mount Prospect, with the exception of those northside kids who were transferred from Central last year.

Hopefully, fruitful negotiations for a shared-cost plan acceptable to both the district and parents can begin tomorrow night.

If it flops, what will the district do next year when Lincoln is the only junior high in town?

What about all those kids living north of the tracks? Will they have to walk too?

I wish to compliment the Herald on its coverage of the '69 elections, in particular the candidates for the Illinois Constitutional Convention from the 3rd Senatorial District. With the primary taking place on Sep. 23, this information should be quite helpful to the voting public.

The voters of the 3rd district can obtain further information about their Con-Con delegates first hand by attending a candidates meeting on Sept. 18. This meeting is being sponsored by the Leagues of Women Voters of the 3rd Senatorial District and is to be held at 8 p.m. at Randhurst Town Hall. I would urge your readers to attend and meet the 16 candidates running, and hear their views.

The League of Women Voters is a national non-partisan organization established in 1920 to encourage citizen participation in government. It never supports or opposes any political party or candidate.

'Please Reconsider Garbage Plan'

(Copy of a letter sent to Palatine Village Pres. Jack Moodie.)

I am appalled at the action of the majority of the Palatine Board of Trustees, who have been influenced and harassed by a very vocal, negative, reactionary minority on the refuse sack system.

The said system is more efficient, more economical, more convenient, and much more sanitary. This family of five used just two sacks per week, occasionally three, and did not find it a burden to carry them to a curb once a week.

Please, in this space age, reconsider your decision to commit Palatine residents to the continuation of their horse-and-bug system of garbage collection.

In view of the fact that 96 per cent of the test area approved the sack system, this is your only course.

Part 2—'How to Watch Football' Series

Offenses -- Strengths and Weaknesses

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

If you have your pencils and scorecard ready, let's try to enumerate the number of offensive formations that a team could line up in after it breaks the huddle. Here they are:

Single Wing. Double wing. Winged 'T'. Double winged 'T'. Slot. Pro set. 'I'. Full set. 'I'. Straight 'T'. Wishbone 'T'. Clothesline 'T'. Shotgun.

Apologies are forwarded if any were left out.

Listing offensive formations may be puzzling to many, but before we get into the strengths and weaknesses of each, they should be listed. After all, you can't tell the offenses without a program.

THE SINGLE WING

The single wing offense is as old as Satchel Paige but it is still used by many high school teams today. The single wing — with the tailback taking a direct snap from center from a short punt formation — is usually designated as a power offense.

The offensive linemen in the single wing line up in an unbalanced line — four linemen to the right of the center and only two to the left.

STRENGTHS — The idea behind the unbalanced line is to get a mismatch on one side of the line — like have four offensive linemen against three defensive linemen. The backs are close to the line and are added blockers to the power side.

If the defensive line fails to shift (slide each linemen to the left one position), the single wing offense has a distinct advantage.

With two or three backs in the near vicinity of the tailback, the possibility of a double or even triple reverse presents itself.

An added advantage is this: not too many defensive teams see the single wing more than once a season and it might take half a game to adjust to it. By then, the single wing might have already won the game.

WEAKNESSES — If a team does not have a superior line, the single wing can be destroyed. Each blocking assignment must be carried out to its fullest, especially ly on the double reverses. If only one blocker fails in his assignment, a defensive lineman can cause a fumble, or at least stop a ball carrier for a loss, before the reverse can be completed.

With each member of the offensive team bunched together, it allows the defensive team to bunch up, also. The possibility of a long gainer is not as prominent as in other offenses. However, the three yards and a cloud of dust can wear a defense down.

More problems for the single wing: it must have a great tailback who can run AND throw and occasionally quick kick. A sweep to the side opposite the power side, is a dangerous maneuver.

DOUBLE WING

Basically the same as the single wing except that one halfback is moved to the opposite side of the field as the power side.

STRENGTHS — Gives the offensive an extra receiver and keeps another linebacker busy since someone must watch that back on the side opposite the power side.

WEAKNESSES — One less blocker on the power side.

SHOTGUN

The shotgun is a lot like the double wing except the tailback is farther from the center than in the double wing. The ends are flanked in the shotgun and the line is balanced.

STRENGTHS — Allows as many as five receivers to have clear routes downfield. Spreads defense out. Quarterback (tailback, is another name) does not have to drop back.

WEAKNESSES — The team that runs the shotgun had better have a darn good passing quarterback and good pass protection. The shotgun means pass and usually pass alone. There are no backs to hand off to since they are all flanked.

'I' AND FULL 'I'

The only difference between the 'I' and Full 'I' is that in the 'I' three backs are lined up one behind another behind the center. In the Full 'I' all four backs are lined up behind each other. The 'I' is more popular than the Full 'I' and the reason will be given later.

to the second. The 'I' gives the team equal STRENGTHS — The 'I' allows the quarterback to complete a double fake on each play. He can give the ball to the first (closest) back going into the line and fake to the second, or fake to the first and give passing ability to each side of the field. There are the same number of linemen and backs to each side of the center.

The 'I' is great on sweeps since there are three backs to lead the ballcarrier around the end. It is good on power plays

STRENGTHS — The wingback (the back stationed a yard behind the end) can be used as an extra blocker on sweeps and is more dangerous on pass plays because he is so close to the line of scrimmage. The wingback and end can run crisscross patterns to confuse the defensive secondary. The wingback can be used on reverses.

WEAKNESSES — It eliminates one back for running plays. The wingback must be a good athlete because he must have speed and pass-catching ability as well as the toughness to block outside linebackers. A good athlete such as this is hard to find.

DOUBLE WINGED 'T'

The same as the single winged 'T' except that there are backs behind each of the two ends and only one fullback is behind the quarterback.

STRENGTHS — It is a good offense for getting backs out on pass patterns and terrific for double reverses.

WEAKNESSES — The fullback must be ready to run all day because he is the only back who is there who can take a handoff and plunge into the line on those third down situations.

The Double Winged 'T' also leaves the quarterback vulnerable for a strong pass rush since there is only one back to protect the thrower.

PRO SET

The quarterback takes the snap from under the center. One end is split to one side, one back is flanked out to the opposite side. The two running backs are four yards behind the guards.

STRENGTHS — The best offense for a balanced run-pass attack. Any and every type of plan can be run with this offense. That is probably why the pros use it. Probably? It is why.

It keeps the defense spread out.

WEAKNESSES — The coach must find himself two able receivers and a talented quarterback. A good tight end is also a luxury that many teams cannot find.

By looking at the offense, one might say that with two players split wide, an end run can be run often with success. After all, the split end and flanker can block down on the defensive end or corner linebacker who are stationed inside the end and flanker.

But once again it is a rarity that a coach can find two speedy talented receivers who have the size and ruggedness to block linebackers and defensive ends who are much bigger as well as tougher. Summing up, the end run is far from the best play which can be run from the pro set.

CLOTHESLINE 'T'

A spread formation with even tackles split out with flankers and ends.

STRENGTHS — Great on pass plays and end runs.

WEAKNESSES — Next to impossible to run a play up the middle (since there are only two guards and a center for blocking) and the quarterback is vulnerable to a strong pass rush.

WISHBONE 'T'

More or less a lot like the Straight 'T' but the fullback is closer to the quarterback than the halfbacks. This was run by the University of Texas last year.

STRENGTHS — The fullback is an added blocker since he is closer to the line of scrimmage.

WEAKNESSES — The fullback can not be used as a ballcarrier too often since he hits the line too fast — meaning, he is in the hole before the hole is even opened by the linemen.

SLOT FORMATION

Much like the Double Winged 'T' except that the ends are flanked and not close to the tackles.

STRENGTHS — Good for sweeps and passes. Reverses can be easily run off this formation.

WEAKNESSES — On third down and short yardage situations, the defense can look for the fullback (the back behind the quarterback) to carry the ball almost every time. This is a big advantage to the defense.

That about wraps it up on what an offensive team can line up in.

Each offense is used around the country. The coach must decide which formations are best for his players — that is, which formation best aids the strength of his players.

You had better believe, that a coach does a lot of pondering before and during the season on his offense. After all, how can you win if you can't score?

How to Watch Football — The Offense—

strength to both sides of the field — any play can be run to each side of the line with equal blocking strength.

The 'I' can also be used for passing and sweeps and it allows the fourth back to be a flanker or wing back.

WEAKNESSES — The team which uses the 'I' must have two very good guards and the closest back to the quarterback must be a hard-nosed blocker.

The 'I' entails a lot of cross-blocking (the right guard blocking the defensive tackle on the opposite side of the line and the left guard blocking the other defensive tackle, who, too, is on the other side of the line) and this takes quickness as well as power. The closest back to the quarterback is usually the first one into the hole and usually it is his job to block the middle linebacker.

The Full 'I' is rarely used any more because if the ball would be handed to the third back behind the quarterback, it would take too much time and the hole would have already opened and closed before the back even got the ball.

STRAIGHT 'T'

The Straight 'T' has a balanced line and the quarterback takes the snap right under the center. The fullback is three yards behind the quarterback and the halfbacks are two yards to the left and right of the fullback.

STRENGTHS — The Straight 'T' allows the team to have equal running and because there can be a back to go through the hole first and block the linebacker.

Some teams will first line up in to an 'I' and then shift into the 'T'. This is to confuse the defense. The defense is not supposed to know if the offensive team is going to shift or not and it gives the defense another worry.

Frankly, to this writer, the shifting is next to senseless, since each offensive player must be set for a full second. The defense can recognize the shift immediately and the defense has as much time, even more time, to shift as the offense.

WEAKNESSES — The Straight 'T' does not have very much of an advantage on passing situations. The ends are tight (close to the tackles) and can be blocked or halted at the line of scrimmage by the defensive ends. This throws the pass play's timing off considerably.

The backs must run 10 yards or more to even get into their pass routes, and the 10 yards take time — enough time for the defensive tackles to put a rush on the quarterback.

The Straight 'T' keeps its backs and linemen reasonably close together thus the defense can stay bunched together, also.

WINGED 'T'

The line is usually balanced. A back lines up behind an end. The quarterback takes the snap from under the center. The other two backs are lined up three yards behind the guards.

Extreme Care Taken in Selecting Defense

Scrimmage Lines

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

PALATINE HIGH SCHOOL will play on its "home" field for the first time in a number of years against Arlington Saturday at 2 p.m.

Through the past few years, Palatine has had "home" games but the games scheduled for "at Palatine" were actually played at Fremd High's Hale Hildebrandt Field.

The Pirate football teams did play on one boy who had ever put on a football uniform before. His name was Stinson (the father of Ken Stinson who recently played for Fremd's baseball team). We didn't have one other boy who had ever played football before.

"And, you know, we finished second in the conference that year. That was quite an achievement."

Stutzman also recalled to mind a game in 1942 which was not played on Ost Field. "We played our last game of the season at Bensenville," he said, "and we had to win that game to get second place."

"At halftime we were losing 13-0 and when we got into the dressing room I really had a heart-to-heart talk with the players. We ended up winning the game 14-13. The boys really put on a show that day."

DICK WELTY

"The biggest game that I can remember," the man who is now Fremd's athletic director said, "was in 1952. We won the conference championship by beating Wauconda 7-6. That was one heck of a football game."

Welty took over as head coach of Palatine in 1947 and in those days the coach and athletic director had to do more than just coach. "Before every game," Welty recalled, "Stutzman and I would be out on the field first thing every morning putting the lines on the field."

One year during Welty's tenure, Palatine had only 21 boys out for football. "That caused some problems," he said. "Whenever we wanted to have a scrimmage, I had to quarterback one of the teams."

CHARLEY FEUTZ

"Do I have some memories?" said the Conant athletic director who coached the Pirates in the mid-50's and early '60's. "You bet I do."

"We had some great teams in those years," Feutz reflected. "In 1955 we had the Len Rhode and Tom Hillesheim team that went 7-1. That year we lost the conference championship on a penalty. Al Eck made a great run of 80 yards for a touchdown which would have won us the

by CHUCK WILLOUR

A saying that has become almost axiomatic about defense is that a chain is as strong as its weakest link. And where a defense is weakest, you can be sure that the offense will try to run most of its plays.

Being a weak link in a defensive unit does not necessarily mean a player is physically weak — though this may be the case. Very often the weak man is one who is ill-suited to the position he is playing. A rampaging 230-pound behemoth may be well equipped to play defensive tackle on a high school team, for instance, but to place him at safety could be courting disaster.

Thus it is that a coach, not particularly wanting to invite such disaster, will take extreme care in the selection of his defensive team. As he looks over the varsity candidates for the year, he'll be keeping in mind that defense requires certain emotional characteristics, a certain attitude, that will help a player to carry out his position's responsibilities.

What are these characteristics? There are three: good reactions, aggressiveness and hustle. A coach will look for these characteristics before he starts assigning men to positions.

The primary ingredient that the coach wants is good reactions. The very nature of defense demands that a player be able to react quickly — and wisely — to any situation.

Next, the coach will be searching for those boys with an extra dose of aggressiveness. For a defense to work, a coach must have the kind of boys who can fight off blocks, fight through blocks and make clean, sure and hard tackles.

The name of the game in defense is pursuit, and the final ingredient that a coach will be looking for is hustle. The coach wants the kind of kid who, when knocked down or out of the play, will immediately jump back up and take out after the ball carrier again.

Without these primary ingredients, a defense is dead. With them, a defense can be successful, very successful. Last year's Arlington team had all three ingredients in great quantities, and the result was the finest defensive team Arlington has ever fielded, giving up only 26 points in nine games.

Will any area team be that successful this year? That remains to be seen. The season is just one game old, and right now area coaches are probably studying their defenses very carefully to see if they can find any weak links, any players who are not well suited to their positions.

To better understand the problems that face a coach as he tries to find his weak links, let's look at the positions one by one to see what the responsibilities are for each and what kind of player is best suited to carry these responsibilities out in a typical high school defense — a 3-3-3.

DEFENSIVE END

The defensive end must be the most versatile man on the line. When he lines up, he very often faces the offensive tackle, the biggest man on the offense's line, so he must be able to handle this giant physically while carrying out three important responsibilities.

—On a pass play, the end must maintain unceasing pressure on the passer. This involves not only rushing the passer but also containing him to the inside so he cannot run.

—On a running play to the outside, such as an end sweep, the end will often find himself having to fight off the blocks of

FLEETING FEIGE. A sharp cut helps Hersey halfback Scott Feige (44) elude a bevy of onrushing St. Viator tacklers on a kickoff return during non-conference encounter on the Huskie field Friday night. The relief was only temporary, however, the visitors chalking up a 25-0 triumph in the opener for both teams. Closest pursuer to Feige is Jim Wendell (52).

With the Pirates making their first "home" opener in a number of years, more than one former Palatine coach had fond memories of the days when Palatine actually had a "home" football field.

EARL STUTZMAN

Stutzman who is now the athletic coordinator for High School District 211, was Palatine's head football coach from 1942 until 1946. Stutzman organized Palatine's first football team in 10 years when he took over in 1942.

"I remember that first year," Stutzman said. "When Palatine had its first team in about 10 years. For years the coaches at Barrington would ride us saying, 'I wish you'd get a football team so we can have somebody to beat.'"

"Well in 1942 we finally had a football team. We beat Barrington 8-6 and you can bet I received a lot of pleasure out of that."

Addison Trail Spoils Grove's Opener, 18-7

by PAUL LOGAN

If Elk Grove's field appears slightly burnt to those who see it this week, don't blame the sun alone... there were others responsible.

Joining old sol in defacing the Grove's grass was the Addison Trail football team — the Blazers. Their experienced backfield of arsonists laid waste to their hosts' turf with three long, searing drives and came up just short of making a fourth as time ran out.

ELK GROVE fought fire with fire with a scoring bomb in the second half but the incendiary came too late and the firebugs came out the winner, 18-7, last Saturday.

Addison jettied out in front in the opening quarter following a punt to its own 38. Coach Don Layne's all-veteran backfield, which had a its principal source of energy — Dean Thorsen — used 19 plays to score. Thorsen used his tank-like boly (5-11, 200) to blast away unmercifully off tackle to account for most of the yardage. Quarterback John Kelly scorched the goal line at 2:28 and the heat was on the Grove.

The first of three unsuccessful two-point attempts failed and the Blazers led 6-0.

A costly clip foiled the Grove's first chance at a decent drive. Then an even more expensive short punt — 20 yards — presented Addison with only 45 yards between it and paydirt.

Four backs aided in this drive with Kelly busting over from the one at 4:26 to make it a sizzling 12-0 advantage in the second period.

THE GRENADIERS tried to put some points on the board before the half with a march that started from their 30. Their second first down — a pass from quarterback Dave Ristau to end Eugene Pinder — brought the hosts steaming into Addison territory for the first time. However, they could advance no farther than the 44 as one pass misfired and another was picked off.

After a second half opening series failed, the Grove punter failed to get off another kick well — 10 yards — and the Blazers had only 43 yards between them and six more. Mostly on the thrusts by Thorsen, who accounted for 115.5 yards on the hot afternoon, they scored when Bob Landrum took a Kelly pitchout in from the three at 6:28.

Elk Grove finally got a big break in the early moments of the final quarter when tackle Joe Chrobot recovered a fumble on the Addison 28. Ristau didn't waste this chance to barbecue the opposition. After a five-yarder to Bill Lamont, Ristau burned an Addison halfback with a 23-yard scoring strike to Rob Kruse.

Ristau also bottled the extra point and the Grove was back in the contest, 18-7, with 9:22 left.

A short kickoff didn't work and the Blazers managed to eat up most of the clock with their ground attack. Towards the end of the game they made one last try to cook their hosts' geese but the Grove defense pulled down a pass receiver just three yards from the goal as the horn sounded.

"It could have been a lot closer without mistakes," said Don Schnake, head coach at the Grove, after seeing his charges fall behind Addison in the yearly series, three games to one.

He was referring to such things as a bad cover of an Addison fumble in the opening moments of the game, the clip that foiled a third first down and the Grenadiers' first substantial drive, the interception at the end of the first half, the poor kicks, and the fumble after a 13-yard pass completion stopping a march late in the final quarter at the 40 after four straight first downs.

Next week they'll try again in their Mid-Suburban League opener with Wheeling. Maybe the Grenadiers will be doing some trail blazing of their own on their home ground.

'Jettied' 34 Goals

Jim Turner of the New York Jets set an American Football League record by kicking 34 field goals last season. Never before in the history of the league had any player kicked more than 28. Gino Cappelletti of Boston led the league three different times in field goals, in 1961, '63, and '64.

How To Watch Football

two men while trying to force the runner inside. To the inside lies most defense's greatest strength, the biggest concentration of men, so this is where a defensive end must force the man with the ball.

— On a running play up the middle — to the opposite end, the end must be able to move quickly to the side, fighting his way to the ball carrier.

Because of these responsibilities, a defensive end must be big, strong and quick. He must be big to withstand the block of the offensive tackle — plus, often, the block of a back. He must be strong to fight off these blocks and fight through a pile of men to get to the runner. And he must be quick — quick enough to sidestep blocks, to pursue the passer, to chase down the runner.

Most high school ends you find today will run from 185-215 pounds, and will stand anywhere from 5-10 to 6-3. They can't be much smaller or they'll be too easily taken out of plays by the offense. Much bigger and they'll be too slow to pursue the runner.

DEFENSIVE TACKLE

But if a coach does find himself blessed with a boy who is too big or too slow to play end, he's got a spot all ready for him: defensive tackle.

Defensive tackles traditionally are the biggest men on any football team. And for a good reason: they are the core of the defensive line. The tackles have to plug up the middle, have to make it impossible for the offense to run through their position. Plus, like the ends, they must put a ferocious rush on the quarterback.

In addition to this, the tackle must be constantly aware of "trap" plays, where an offensive guard pulls from the opposite side of the line and comes across to nail the tackle as he penetrates into the backfield. The ball carrier then runs through the hole where the tackle was.

Because of their interior position on the line, the defensive tackles have more kinds of blocks thrown at them than any other area. To one side is the offensive guard, to the other is the tackle — either one or both could block him. Since most running plays are run over the offensive tackle position, the defensive tackle must be able to shed whatever kind of block is thrown at him and fight his way to the ball.

Because of these responsibilities, the tackle must be at least 10-15 pounds bigger than the ends. He need not be as quick, but he must be quick enough to counteract the most powerful block that an offense's tackle or guard can throw at him.

MIDDLE GUARD

In a five man defensive line, the middle guard's duties are quite similar to those of the tackles. He must plug up the middle, letting no block move him from his position. In addition, on a running play to the outside, he must be able to move quickly to the side. And on pass plays, he must be able to rush the passer or drop back a yard and prevent the pass over the middle.

Because of these responsibilities, the middle guard must be bigger than the end and quicker than the tackle. He has to be an immovable object when the offense runs through the line and a burst of speed when the offense tries a run to the side or passes. He must be a little bigger than the ends, at least 190 pounds, and quick. Although some middle guards have been much smaller — sacrificing size for speed — a blend is better.

LINEBACKERS

Today, in the heyday of the pass, the linebackers have probably become the most important men on a defensive unit. For pass defense and defending against the run are both the responsibility of the linebackers.

And it is no easy task either. On any given play, the linebackers must decide first whether it is a run or pass and then act accordingly. If it's a run, the linebacker must move quickly up to the line and stop the ball carrier. If it's a pass, they must help out the defensive halfbacks in covering receivers.

In addition, linebackers will often be called upon to rush the passer, letting receivers go downfield in the hope that they can get to the quarterback before he can get the ball to his receivers.

It's a rough job, the most demanding of any defensive position. And because of his varied responsibilities, the linebacker must possess both the agility and speed of a halfback plus the size and the strength of a lineman. He has to be able to tackle with the jarring force of a lineman plus have enough speed to stay with an offensive back running a pass pattern — a favorite offensive play, isolating a back on a linebacker.

Because of these responsibilities, linebackers generally run between 180 and 190 pounds. Again, some teams will have linebackers bigger or smaller than that, but for them to do their job effectively, there isn't much room for variance. It's kind of tough trying to tackle a 200-pound fullback when you weigh only 155; likewise, it's hard to keep pace with a 185-pound speeding halfback when you're a lumbering 210.

DEFENSIVE HALFBACK

Although the defensive halfbacks have only one primary duty, patrolling against the pass, they, too, must also be able to tackle a runner if he breaks into the secondary and, like the linebackers, must come up on a play if it turns out to be a run.

But, as was said before, their primary job is to protect against the pass. To do this they must be the fastest men on the defensive team: first, to make sure that no receiver gets behind them; and second, to be able to catch up with a receiver if he does manage to slip behind them.

The reactions of the defensive backs must be the best of any on the defensive team. The receiver comes downfield knowing exactly where he's going to make his move and when. The defensive halfback must be able to react instantaneously to each and every move that the receiver makes while trying to get open. He must be super-quick.

The defensive halfbacks are usually split up into two categories, two corner backs and one deep or "free" safety. The cornerbacks generally cover the ends, being particularly watchful for the pass to the outside. The safety will cover the deepest receiver, or, if only two receivers have been sent downfield, will help one of the cornerbacks.

How the defensive halfbacks cover the receivers depends on the type of defense the team is using against the pass. If the defense is using a man-for-man, each halfback and linebacker will be assigned a particular player to keep track of. If the team is using a zone defense, though, each man has been assigned a certain part of the field to cover: the cornerbacks and linebackers will protect against the short and medium range passes, and the safety will take the deep receiver.

There are strengths and weaknesses to both of these, though, and as it was said at the beginning, where a defense is weak the offense will try to run most of its plays, exploiting the weaknesses.

How a coach attempts to overcome these weaknesses and design his defense will be the next subject of this series.

game but the play was called back because of off-sides.

"Then in 1958 we had another good team. They were 5-2. That team had the toughest player I ever saw — Dan Lamanski who played fullback.

"The 1962 team was a great one. We lost one game on a field goal to McHenry but McHenry had to forfeit the game because they used an ineligible player.

"There was one game that year when we beat Libertyville by two touchdowns. We played it at night during a real bad storm. We lost 22 lights during the storm. Every other minute, it seemed, another bulb was popping."

Ost Field was named for William Ost who was a school board member in District 211's early history. Ost was particularly interested in Palatine football and in his will a great deal of money was left to the school and the school's athletic program.

Palatine High School will once again have its own "home" field starting Saturday afternoon.

And once again, memories, memories of long ago will be arising. Assuredly, in years hence, Ost Field will be the scene of many, many memories to look back on.

HARASSED HUSKIE. Hersey quarterback Dick Powell (12) has some pressure applied by advancing St. Viator linemen Ed Klingberg (30) and Tom Smith (74) while trying ing to get off a pass Friday night. The menacing Lion line was bothersome to the Huskies most of the night and they dropped a 25-0 decision in their home opener.

Troop Pull-Out Set

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is to announce a second round of troop withdrawals from Vietnam today, a move he delayed two weeks because of a step-up in Communist military activity, Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler has announced.

Ziegler refused to confirm a statement from South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky that the United States and South Vietnam had agreed on the withdrawal of 40,500 U.S. troops by the end of November.

Scott Withdraws Name

CHICAGO — Atty. Gen. William J. Scott yesterday withdrew his name from consideration for the appointment to fill the U. S. Senate seat left vacant by the death of Everett M. Dirksen.

Scott bowed out amid reports that Governor Ogilvie had already offered him the Senate seat, but Ogilvie denied offering the appointment to anyone. Ogilvie conferred yesterday with House Speaker Ralph T. Smith and John Henry Altorfer, Ogilvie's opponent in the 1968 gubernatorial primary, concerning the appointment.

Rocks Hamper Search

MANNINGTON, W. Va. — Work crews searching 500 feet underground for the remains of 78 men inside explosion-scarred Mannington No. 9 mine suffered their first setback Monday when they encountered a rock fall and waist-high water.

There was no trace of the missing miners, who were killed in explosions and fires last November.

Ward Offices Bombed

CHICAGO — Firebombs damaged the offices of two North Side aldermen within a 20-minute span early yesterday.

Aldermen George B. McCutcheon of the 43rd Ward and William Singer of the 44th Ward said they thought the bombings were connected with racial and minority group tensions. Damage at both offices was slight.

New 'Pot' Laws Urged

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. John Mitchell told Congress yesterday youths are turning to marijuana by the thousands while authorities wander in a "never-never land" of archaic laws and scientific ignorance.

He called for new laws to clamp down on mobsters and narcotics peddlers, deal more leniently with youthful drug experimenters and draw a more realistic line between "hard narcotics" and less dangerous drugs such as marijuana.

Want Barrier Removal

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Angry Protestants last night demanded that the British army stop "pussyfooting" and forcibly remove the Roman Catholic barricades in West Belfast.

The Protestants threatened to rebuild their own barriers unless the army moved quickly. The Central Defense Committee, which claims to speak for 75,000 Catholics, walked behind the barricades, declared they would not be removed until the British agreed to guarantee demands.

THE FIRST DAY of classes at Harper Junior College, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine, found students searching for classrooms and parking spaces. Just-completed buildings and workmen provided the scholarly backdrop.

Four Seeking Post of Trustee

by MARY REIFSCHEIDER

Schaumburg voters will have a choice of four candidates from which to select a trustee Oct. 7.

The four residents seeking the vacant post are Sigval B. Thorsen, Oren H. Breda, Raymond S. True and Martin R. Ryan.

The candidate with an edge now is Thorsen. He has the endorsement of incumbent board members, Schaumburg Republican precinct captains and the executive committee of the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township (ROOST).

EVEN THOUGH the candidates are running as independents, the Republican backing for Thorsen boosts his chances because Oct. 7 is also the date for the 13th District Congressional Republican primary. This is the first time a national party has directly played a part in a Schaumburg election.

The Democrats will also be represented in this election. True is a member of the Regular Democratic Organization of Schaumburg Township. He became active in the organization this year, but said he has been a long-time Democratic supporter. He did not seek the formal endorsement of the local Democrats.

Ryan and Breda said they are Republicans, but did not seek the endorsement offered by ROOST.

RYAN ENTERED the trustee race in April as a write-in candidate along with Jerome Cnota. They were defeated by United Village Party candidates Donald De Vale, Mathew T. Helsper and Wilfred Meyer.

Meyer resigned in June when his company transferred him to Kansas City. The man elected Oct. 7 will serve until the spring of 1971, the date of the next regular village election.

Ryan has been concerned about the village water system. He was on the agenda at last week's village board meeting to talk about the water system, but said his questions were answered during the course of the meeting when Mayor Robert O. Atcher said two new wells were not on the water lines by the beginning of summer as anticipated.

(WATER IN ONE well was too silty for use and the well had to be relocated. A union dispute and a contractor's error prevented the second well from being placed in use on schedule. The result was that lawn watering had to be restricted and water pressure was low.)

Ryan told the Herald, "The village board hires the contractor. If these people aren't qualified, why did they hire them? With the price we pay for water, we have the right to know where the funds go."

He said Atcher gave the answers before "we could ask the questions. What happened to the people's choice? It's all one-sided. People talk about Chicago having a machine, Schaumburg has a pretty good one, too."

Ryan is also supporting John Nimrod for the GOP nomination for the 13th District vacancy.

The congregation of the Church of St. Columba, Episcopal, is objecting to the Village of Hanover Park granting a liquor license to the Grove Restaurant.

The restaurant is on the corner of Jensen Boulevard and Irving Park Road. The adjacent property on the west is St. Columba's.

Last Tuesday at a liquor hearing, Hanover Park Mayor Richard Baker, acting as liquor commissioner, approved a Class A (sale of alcoholic liquor on and off the premises) license for the restaurant. Closing time for the tavern portion of the restaurant will be 1 a.m. weeknights and 2 a.m. on weekends.

IN AN OPEN LETTER, the Rev. John Stieper, vicar of St. Columba, criticized Baker for granting the license. "He has acted in his own interests only, and not on behalf of the good people who once elected him mayor. The people of St. Columba's object completely to the granting of a license to a 24-hour bar next to the church on Irving Park Road."

(The snack shop will be open 24 hours, but not the tavern portion.)

Father Stieper cited six reasons for objecting to the tavern next to his church. The letter states:

— "Children going to and from Tefft Junior High School pass daily in front of this building. Do you want your children dodging the cars and patrons after they have been liquored up?"

— "THE PLACE on Jensen Boulevard is a truck stop for drivers going between Chicago and Elgin. Do we need liquored-up truck drivers on Irving Park Road?"

— "The man who put up the money for the place and asked for the license is not a resident of Hanover Park. This is in viola-

Con-Con Forum Set At Dooley School

Schaumburg Township residents will have the opportunity to compare views of Third District Con-Con candidates 8 p.m. tomorrow at a candidates night program in Dr. Thomas Dooley School, Lowell and Norwood, Schaumburg.

The candidates night is being sponsored by PTA units from Dooley, Hale and Campanelli schools in Weathersfield.

Mrs. Bonnie Hannon will serve as moderator. Each candidate will be given five minutes to speak, followed by a question period.

ALL 16 CON-CON candidates in the Third Senatorial District have been invited to the Dooley program, and 13 have indicated they will appear. Candidates unable to attend are Robert A. Bush, Mount Prospect; Mrs. Virginia Macdonald, Arlington Heights; and Thomas J. Johnson, Barrington, said Mrs. Carol White, PTA chairman.

The Con-Con primary, which narrows the field of candidates to four, is Sept. 23. General election is Nov. 18. Two candidates will be elected from 38 districts for the convention, which begins Dec. 8.

Republican-endorsed candidates in the Third District are Mrs. Macdonald and William R. Engelhardt of Inverness.

Mrs. Macdonald is former chairwoman of the County GOP Committee and was Wheeling Township GOP committeewoman from 1962 to 1964. In 1968, she chaired the women's division for the late Sen. Everett M. Dirksen's campaign.

ENGELHARDT is a former mayor of Inverness and is currently the attorney for Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 and High School Dist. 211.

Democratic-endorsed candidates in the Third District are Eugene Griffin of Arlington Heights and Johnson.

The 16 candidates in the Third District are listed on the ballot as follows: Wilfred L. Robbins, Mount Prospect; Bush; Annus F. Fush, Mount Prospect; Mary J. Carlson, Prospect Heights; Lester A. Bonaguro, Arlington Heights; Douglas Roy Cannon, Mount Prospect; Griffin; Johnson; and Donald F. Colby, Prospect Heights.

Others listed in ballot order are Engelhardt; John Woods, Arlington Heights; Mrs. Macdonald; Winn Davidson, Palatine; Madeline Schroeder, Arlington Heights; LeMoine D. Stitt, Inverness; and Samuel A. LaSusa, Barrington.

Conant Field Name Asked of Students

Students at Conant High School will have an opportunity this fall to suggest a name for the school's athletic field.

With tentative plans of announcing a name at the Oct. 11 homecoming game, the Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211 board decided Thursday to ask the students to submit three names for consideration.

"I think the students should have an opportunity to select the name," Mrs. Carolyn Mullins, board member, said.

The board is asking the student council to conduct a survey of the student body to decide on three possible names. In selecting a name, the board will consider the students' suggestions and two they have been discussing.

ONE, SUGGESTED by Board Pres. Lyle Johnson when the subject was introduced at the August board meeting, would honor Alan Ramsey, Conant High School's first graduate to die in military combat.

Ramsey, a 1968 Conant graduate, was killed early this year in Vietnam. He attended Conant High School for one and a half years and was a member of the varsity basketball and baseball teams. Ramsey went to Northern Illinois University for a year before joining the Army.

THE DIST. 211 board is also considering naming the field Memorial Field in honor of all Conant High School graduates who have and will give their lives in military service.

"We will consider the names the student council suggests as well as the ones we have discussed," Johnson said. "I hope they come up with the name we will use or support one of those we have already discussed."

Carole Onack Is Homecoming Queen

The Hoffman Estates Boy's Club selected Carole Onack as their homecoming queen at a special event held Saturday.

She was chosen from 14 girls in contention for the crown. The girls were all 12 or 13-years-old.

Carole will ride at the head of the club's homecoming parade Sept. 20, and will preside over the football game on Sunday.

SHE IS ALSO to be presented with a 14 inch trophy and bouquet of flowers. Carole lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Onack, at 158 Jamison Lane, Hoffman Estates.

Chosen for the queen's court were Cheryl Noah, 114 Buckeye Drive; Donna Adams, 108 Willow Drive; Cheryl Robinson, 129 Lincoln Drive; and Rochelle Hill, 202 Briarcliff Lane.

The queen's court will also ride in the parade on Saturday.

Policeman Is Injured When Auto Hits Pole

An off-duty Elk Grove policeman sustained multiple injuries early Sunday when the car he was driving swerved off the road after he tried to avert a collision with another vehicle.

Jerry Walsh was treated at St. Alexius Hospital in Elk Grove for a broken nose, facial lacerations and a broken clavicle.

Walsh was southbound on Meacham Road between Golf Road and the tollway in Schaumburg, according to Schaumburg police, when he observed an auto in the northbound lane make a left turn about 150 feet in front of him.

Church Objects to License

The congregation of the Church of St. Columba, Episcopal, is objecting to the Village of Hanover Park granting a liquor license to the Grove Restaurant.

The restaurant is on the corner of Jensen Boulevard and Irving Park Road. The adjacent property on the west is St. Columba's.

Last Tuesday at a liquor hearing, Hanover Park Mayor Richard Baker, acting as liquor commissioner, approved a Class A (sale of alcoholic liquor on and off the premises) license for the restaurant. Closing time for the tavern portion of the restaurant will be 1 a.m. weeknights and 2 a.m. on weekends.

IN AN OPEN LETTER, the Rev. John Stieper, vicar of St. Columba, criticized Baker for granting the license. "He has acted in his own interests only, and not on behalf of the good people who once elected him mayor. The people of St. Columba's object completely to the granting of a license to a 24-hour bar next to the church on Irving Park Road."

(The snack shop will be open 24 hours, but not the tavern portion.)

Father Stieper cited six reasons for objecting to the tavern next to his church. The letter states:

— "Children going to and from Tefft Junior High School pass daily in front of this building. Do you want your children dodging the cars and patrons after they have been liquored up?"

— "THE PLACE on Jensen Boulevard is a truck stop for drivers going between Chicago and Elgin. Do we need liquored-up truck drivers on Irving Park Road?"

— "The man who put up the money for the place and asked for the license is not a resident of Hanover Park. This is in violation of state law. He must reside in the area granting a license.

(The license was granted to James McKenzie and George Plate, who operate the restaurant. McKenzie lives in Chicago, but Plate lives at 1174 Countryside Drive in the village. The license was granted to a business corporation and it is not necessary for owners to be residents, Village Atty. William Davies said last week.)

"To run a bar next to the church is in violation of state law, Mr. Cartwright (the late Howard Cartwright) of the state liquor commission informed us on this."

— "I HAVE BEEN told this is to be a 'family place.' Does any family in Hanover Park take the children with them to a 24-hour bar? Who needs such a bar in the community at all?"

— "The Pink Mist was recently closed. Now we open another place on Irving Park. We don't need such trade in the village."

The Grove Restaurant was built 2½ years ago for a tavern, but after pressure from St. Columba and other residents former Village Pres. Eugene Domingue decided against issuing the license.

The license was granted Tuesday contingent upon property improvements shown in a drawing submitted by the applicants. An addition is to be built on the restaurant for the tavern portion with a separate entrance, a concrete parking lot and a fence along the property line within six months.

'Mama Don' 'Low Oxen Here'

by ANNE SLAVICEK
If you live in Wheeling you can't park your horse, ox or mule on the sidewalk. And you haven't been able to since September, 1894, when the village board passed an ordinance prohibiting it.

A copy of "Ordinance No. 2, an Ordinance To Define and Provide of Punishment of Misdemeanors," as well as several other laws dating back to the turn of the century, turned up last week during preparations for moving from the present Wheeling village hall to the new one. The ordinances don't apply anymore because the laws have since been codified, according to M. O. Horcher, Wheeling police chief.

OTHER LAWS prohibited residents from disrupting worship services by "any menace, profane swearing, vulgar language or any disorderly or unusual conduct" and from "firing cannons, guns, fowling pieces, pistols, firearms or firecrackers on Sunday."

It was also illegal to torture animals or promote dog-fights, prize-fights, or cock-fights in the village.

Children's play activities were also regulated. "No person shall in any place in the said village fly kites, throw stones, trundle hoops, play ball or engage in any sport or exercise likely to frighten horses, injure passengers, 'embarrass' the passage of vehicles or obstruct the business of other persons," according to Section 23 of Ordinance No. 2.

Citizens also weren't allowed to keep dead animals, unless they buried them. Residents were not to walk around with concealed weapons, including pistols, revolvers, sling shots, knuckles, knives or daggers, unless they had the permission of the village president.

IT WAS ALSO illegal to post handbills advertising cures for "what are called the 'secret diseases'."

The village fathers looked out for wildlife in the village by making it illegal to kill or trap any "robin, bluebird, swallow, martin, mosquito hawk, whip-poor - will, cuckoo, woodpecker, catbird, brown thrasher, humming cherry bird, yellow bird, oriole or bobolink."

It was also unlawful to bell an animal if it annoyed other people.

Health was important in the village, and the trustees prohibited persons from dumping trash in the street. The ordinance lists objectionable trash, including "old boots, old tin and straw."

A billboard, a modern medium for advertising, was also illegal if it "obstructed the light or view of any other person, or the free circulation of the air."

A HEALTH ORDINANCE passed in the fall of 1894 required that people see "respectable" physicians. The ordinance authorized a spring cleanup each May followed by an inspection by the village marshal and the village street commissioner of every "yard, barn lot, pig-sty, cellar or privy" in the village.

A later ordinance, passed in September, 1912, exists only in a handwritten copy. It provides that owners of motor vehicles must be sure their mufflers are in working condition.

More Elgin Pupils

Student enrollment in Elgin's public schools now totals 22,297, according to Paul R. Lawrence, District U46 superintendent.

The breakdown shows 13,740 elementary students including kindergarten and junior high and 4,825 senior high students, grades 10 through 12. The figure is an increase of 1,282 over the number of students in Elgin schools at the end of the school year last June.

Since 1962 Elgin's student population has nearly doubled. Seven years ago 12,953 students were enrolled.

"AN INCREASE of between 900 to 1,300 has been recorded yearly for the last 10 years. This situation will continue for several years to come," Lawrence said. "Many new single and multifamily units have been approved or are pending in the school district."

Lawrence said developers and community officials have kept the district informed about growth expectations and are cooperating in planning for the educational needs in these areas.

Dist. U46 will have four additional elementary schools and a new, larger Elgin High School within the next four years. The schools will be built with funds approved in last December's $14 million bond referendum.

A junior high in Bartlett is expected to open by second semester. Ridge Circle School opened on schedule Sept. 2.

Dist. U46 now encompasses 30 elementary, six junior high and two senior high schools.

League Sets Con-Con Forum

The 16 Third District candidates for Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) delegate seats will make a rare appearance on the same stage Thursday night when the League of Women Voters (LWV) of several area communities sponsor a district-wide candidates' night at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

The forum will be one of the last chances for voters in the district to hear the candidates before next Tuesday's primary election.

In that election, four of the 16 will advance to the general election on Nov. 18. Two candidates will be elected delegates in each of the state's 58 senatorial districts.

THURSDAY'S SESSION will begin at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall meeting room on the lower level of Randhurst.

Because of the large number of candidates, the program has been divided into four parts.

Each part will have four candidates, whose names will be chosen by lot at the beginning of the program. The candidates will each have time to make a short presentation and after the four have spoken, there will be a question and answer period.

An LWV spokesman said the program should end by 10 p.m.

THE 16 candidates, and the order in which their names will appear on the primary ballot next Tuesday, are listed:

- Wilfred L. Robbins, 1808 W. Pheasant Trail, Mount Prospect.
- Robert A. Bush, 726 Dempster St., Mount Prospect.
- Annis F. Bush, 107 E. Council Trail, Mount Prospect.
- Mary Jordan Carlson, 207 E. School Lane, Prospect Heights.
- Douglas Roy Cannon, 8 N. Louis St., Mount Prospect.

To Study Around World

A Hoffman Estates girl plans to go around the world in eight semesters instead of 30 days.

Miss Lynette Grubbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Grubbs, 138 Valley Lane, is among 50 students who entered Friends World College in Westbury, N.Y., this fall. After an orientation semester at the school's campus, the students will travel to Latin America, Europe, Africa, India and Japan in a search for world understanding and the solution to human problems. Simultaneously, the students will be working toward a college degree.

Students enrolled at Friends World College will first spend six weeks getting acquainted with the school and its basic purposes. This period will be occupied with a concentrated examination of worldwide and persistent human issues. Weekly topics will include field work by students and guest speakers at seminars.

AREAS OF STUDY to be covered include the human environment, the community, human ecology, race relations and world peace.

College students will spend the period from Oct. 17 to Jan. 5 in independent study, after which 10 days will be spent in a group review and sharing of pupil experiences. Then students will have a short vacation.

Following vacation, students will have a period of orientation for the spring semester of study in either Latin America or Africa. During the remainder of their college years, students will personally investigate other global areas in a study of pertinent human issues. Each student must keep a journal of his four-year experience as a student at Friends World College.

The Friends World College graduated 14 students in August in its first graduating class. These students have completed the world-circling program and earned a B.A. degree.

Meyer Endorses Schlickman

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has endorsed Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights for the vacant post of 13th District congressman.

In a press conference yesterday, Meyer said he will head up a citizens committee in his community to work for Schlickman for Congress.

Schlickman, a three-term member in the Illinois House of Representatives, is the only Republican candidate for Congress from the four western townships in the eight-township district. Eight other Republican contenders are in the Oct. 7 primary race.

ED SHILLINGTON, Des Plaines eighth ward alderman, also endorsed Schlickman yesterday, his vote of confidence stated during the regular city council meeting. Shillington is a resident of Elk Grove Township, part of the 13th District.

Meyer recalled he first met Schlickman in 1960 at a Northwest Municipal Conference (NMC) meeting when both were beginning in municipal government. Meyer was an alderman and Schlickman an Arlington Heights trustee.

Meyer said he will be back to the conference meeting tomorrow to promote his candidate among other local mayors and managers. The conference does not endorse political candidates, he acknowledged.

"As mayor of Rolling Meadows and as a municipal official for the past nine years, I believe that people who have served at the local level know the needs of towns better than those who have not served," Meyer said in endorsing Schlickman.

"IF WE ARE going to have people representing us, we must have people that know us," Meyer continued. "Gene Schlickman has represented Rolling Meadows in the legislature and has done an effective job for us," he added.

The mayor said Schlickman is the only candidate who has the qualifications of working in both local and state government. He said he made his decision to support a congressional candidate after reviewing problems of the district, issues, candidates and qualifications.

Meyer declared, after this review, "Schlickman is, in my opinion, the only well-qualified candidate in the race." He said he will urge all those he knows to vote for his candidate.

"He has taken the time to meet with the municipal officials of the many communities he now represents in the district and shows potential of listening to our problems in the future."

SCHLICKMAN replied that both he and Meyer in the past have always stood up for municipalities' best interests.

"I'm appreciative of your support and hope we can continue to strengthen local government," Schlickman said.

Troop Pull-Out Set

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is to announce a second round of troop withdrawals from Vietnam today, a move he delayed two weeks because of a step-up in Communist military activity. Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler has announced.

Ziegler refused to confirm a statement from South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky that the United States and South Vietnam had agreed on the withdrawal of 40,500 U.S. troops by the end of November.

Scott Withdraws Name

CHICAGO — Atty. Gen. William J. Scott yesterday withdrew his name from consideration for the appointment to fill the U. S. Senate seat left vacant by the death of Everett M. Dirksen.

Scott bowed out amid reports that Governor Ogilvie had already offered him the Senate seat, but Ogilvie denied offering the appointment to anyone. Ogilvie conferred yesterday with House Speaker Ralph T. Smith and John Henry Altorfer, Ogilvie's opponent in the 1968 gubernatorial primary, concerning the appointment.

Rocks Hamper Search

MANNINGTON, W. Va. — Work crews searching 500 feet underground for the remains of 78 men inside explosion-scarred Mannington No. 9 mine suffered their first setback Monday when they encountered a rock fall and waist-high water.

There was no trace of the missing miners, who were killed in explosions and fires last November.

Ward Offices Bombed

CHICAGO — Firebombs damaged the offices of two North Side aldermen within a 20-minute span early yesterday.

Aldermen George B. McCutcheon of the 43rd Ward and William Singer of the 44th Ward said they thought the bombings were connected with racial and minority group tensions. Damage at both offices was slight.

New 'Pot' Laws Urged

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. John Mitchell told Congress yesterday youths are turning to marijuana by the thousands while authorities wander in a "never-never land" of archaic laws and scientific ignorance.

He called for new laws to clamp down on mobsters and narcotics peddlers, deal more leniently with youthful drug experimenters and draw a more realistic line between "hard narcotics" and less dangerous drugs such as marijuana.

Want Barrier Removal

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Angry Protestants last night demanded that the British army stop "pussyfooting" and forcibly remove the Roman Catholic barricades in West Belfast.

The Protestants threatened to rebuild their own barriers unless the army moved quickly. The Central Defense Committee, which claims to speak for 75,000 Catholics, walked behind the barricades, declared they would not be removed until the British agreed to guarantee demands.

If you live in Wheeling you can't park your horse, ox or mule on the sidewalk. And you haven't been able to since September, 1894, when the village board passed an ordinance prohibiting it.

A copy of "Ordinance No. 2, an Ordinance To Define and Provide of Punishment of Misdemeanors," as well as several other laws dating back to the turn of the century, turned up last week during preparations for moving from the present Wheeling village hall to the new one.

The ordinances don't apply anymore because the laws have since been codified, according to M. O. Horcher, Wheeling police chief.

It was also illegal to torture animals or promote dog-fights, prize-fights, or cock-fights in the village.

"No person shall in any place in the said village fly kites, throw stones, trundle hoops, play ball or engage in any sport or exercise likely to frighten horses, injure passengers, 'embarrass' the passage of vehicles or obstruct the business of other persons," according to Section 23 of Ordinance No. 2.

Citizens also weren't allowed to keep dead animals, unless they buried them. Residents were not to walk around with concealed weapons, including pistols, revolvers, sling shots, knuckles, knives or daggers, unless they had the permission of the village president.

The village fathers looked out for wildlife in the village by making it illegal to kill or trap any "robin, bluebird, swallow, martin, mosquito hawk, whip-poor-will, cuckoo, woodpecker, catbird, brown thrasher, humming cherry bird, yellow bird, oriole or bobolink."

It was also unlawful to bell an animal if it annoyed other people.

Health was important in the village, and the trustees prohibited persons from dumping trash in the street. The ordinance lists objectionable trash, including "old boots, old tin and straw."

A billboard, a modern medium for advertising, was also illegal if it "obstructed the light or view of any other person, or the free circulation of the air."

Track Unveils Growth Plan

Local residents looking into the crystal ball tonight may see a sports arena, almost carte blanche zoning rights and five, police and railway stations at Arlington Park Race Track.

The future of the race track may be disclosed as representatives of Gulf and Western, which recently acquired the track, meet at 8 p.m. with the Arlington Heights Village Board to discuss a pre-annexation agreement.

REPORTS IN THE VILLAGE also say that Mrs. Marje Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises and operator of the track, will be in attendance. Gulf and Western headquarters in New York could give no other details yesterday of corporate officials coming to Arlington Heights.

Basis for preliminary talks tonight will be the park's proposed 19-point agreement between the track and the village outlining the contingencies upon which any annexation will proceed. Acceptance of the 19 points will make the track property the most valuable in the Northwest suburbs.

Village officials disclosed some weeks ago that the Gulf and Western representatives may eventually put $700 million into the development of the track and surrounding land into an activities center "which would make night racing very

Residents to Polls

Residents of Lake County School Dist. 125 will go to the polls today to vote on a $3 million addition to Adlai Stevenson High School, Prairie View.

Polls will be open from noon until 9 p.m. in four precincts.

Residents of Dist. 103 who live east of the Des Plaines River will vote at the Laura B. Sprague School. Residents of Dist. 103 living west of the Des Plaines River and residents of School Dist. 73, 76 and 79 will vote at Stevenson High School.

Residents of Dist. 102 vote at Aptakisic-Tripp School and residents of Dist. 96 vote at Kildeer School.

Kenneth Felten, Buffalo Grove trustee, has released a statement endorsing the formation of a park district for the Buffalo Grove area.

"I strongly urge that each and every resident vote on Sept. 20, and further recommend that each vote is a 'yes' vote," his statement said.

"One of the prime reasons that motivated the investigation of the past two years that led to the park district referendum was the fact that, in the near future, the village would not have sufficient funds available to meet the challenge for the increasing demands of a sound park program with its facilities."

HE POINTED OUT that recently the village has increased its expenditures in such areas as the police finance and administration departments and health services.

"Taxes to support these departments," he said, "are by no means adequate." He added, "Buffalo Grove will presently and for some time live on building permits in order to meet these demands."

Felten, in his statement, predicted the village would be able to subsidize the park district's operations until the district begins receiving its own tax revenues.

Felten said, "It is my opinion that morally the board members would give to the park district all cooperation within reason in order to create a better Buffalo Grove."

Though he said he would oppose it, Felten predicted the village would seek to impose a recreation tax if the referendum Saturday fails.

TWO WEEKS AGO Felten gave qualified support to the formation of the park district, saying, "Generally I'm in favor of the district, but it hinges on the candidates running for park commissioner, too."

Also at that time Donald Thompson, village president, told the Herald, "If the park district is voted down, I would be in favor of a recreation tax for the village, passed by a referendum."

Robert Gleeson is the only trustee who has voiced opposition to the formation of the district. "If the parks were to remain under village control, there would be no duplication of clerical duties," he said.

Gleeson also said he thinks residents would retain greater control of their parks if the village board were responsible for them.

Buffalo Grove area residents will decide Saturday whether to create a separate park district. Also at that time they will select five persons to be members of the park district board. Ten candidates are running for the posts.

Order Apartment Cleanup

The Wheeling Village Board last week gave a landlord until Oct. 6 to clean up conditions at apartments at 160, 162 and 164 Wildwood Lane.

Fourteen tenants signed a letter listing conditions at the apartments which they feared endangered their "health and well-being."

The letter was sent to the Nathan Smith Management Co. which runs the buildings, as well as to the village board.

INCLUDED IN THE tenants' list of problems were uncovered window wells, a loose manhole cover, leaks in the roof, waste glass and garbage littering the grounds and shrubbery and broken glass panels in entrance halls.

The residents reported that they lack refuse containers for trash, need plumbing repairs to eliminate water leaks in the basements and need doorbells, door springs and repairs on leaky air conditioning and heating ducts.

The gates on fencing have not been installed and locks on the basement door and rear door were broken, the letter said.

The tenants also asked that a chimney be examined for loose or falling bricks.

COPIES OF THE letter were sent to the village fire inspector and fire chief, the health inspector, building inspector and acting director of public works as well as to the president and board of trustees.

Con-Con Forum Set

The 18 Third District candidates for Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) delegate seats will make a rare appearance on the same stage Thursday night when the League of Women Voters (LWV) of several area communities sponsor a districtwide candidates' night at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

The forum will be one of the last chances for voters in the district to hear the candidates before next Tuesday's primary election.

In that election, four of the 16 will advance to the general election on Nov. 18. Two candidates will be elected delegates in each of the state's 58 senatorial districts.

THURSDAY'S SESSION will begin at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall meeting room on the lower level of Randhurst.

Because of the large number of candidates, the program has been divided into four parts.

Each part will have four candidates, whose names will be chosen by lot at the beginning of the program. The candidates will each have time to make a short presentation and after the four have spoken, there will be a question and answer period.

An LWV spokesman said the program should end by 10 p.m.

THE 16 candidates, and the order in which their names will appear on the primary ballot next Tuesday, are listed:

—Wilfred L. Robbins, 1808 W. Pheasant Trail, Mount Prospect.

—Robert A. Bush, 726 Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

—Annis F. Bush, 107 E. Council Trail, Mount Prospect.

—Mary Jordan Carlson, 207 E. School Lane, Prospect Heights.

—Douglas Roy Cannon, 8 N. Louis St., Mount Prospect.

—Eugene L. Griffin, 603 Thorntree Terrace, Arlington Heights.

—Thomas J. Johnson Jr., 98 Hawthorne Road, Barrington.

—Donald F. Colby, 38 Glenbrook Drive, Prospect Heights.

—William R. Engelhardt, 416 N. Inverway Road, Inverness.

—John G. Woods, 214 S. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights.

—Virginia B. Macdonald, 513 S. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights.

—Winn C. Davidson, 648 N. Clark Drive, Palatine.

—Madeline Schroeder, 1923 N. Chestnut Ave., Arlington Heights.

—Samuel A. LaSusa, 337 Roberts Road, Barrington.

New Village Hall Doors Open Today

Today is moving day for Wheeling's village offices and employees.

All village business will be conducted today in the new village hall at 255 W. Dundee Road.

Movers hope to complete the job of hauling village furniture and equipment to the new hall during the day.

All meetings normally scheduled for the village hall will be held in the new hall after today, according to Village Mgr. Matthew Golden.

Golden said Monday that an open house and dedication is planned for the new hall in the near future, but a date hasn't been set as yet.

"I WOULD LIKE to see the district begin offering some educational and cultural activities to the community," Mrs. Dede Armstrong, a candidate for Buffalo Grove Park District commissioner, said.

Board Screens Applicants

Interviews of applicants for various Wheeling boards and commissions will be tomorrow in the Village Hall at Dundee and Milwaukee roads beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The applicants will be interviewed only if they are new appointees or if a village trustee asks that a reappointed member be interviewed.

The village trustees will conduct the interviews at a meeting of the board's judiciary and purchasing committee.

NEW APPLICANTS to be interviewed include: William Hein, Robert Olson and Ron Potter, for the fire and police commission; Peter Mamatis, Michael Russo and L. D. Andress, for the industrial commission; Michael J. Dorgan, Wilfred Sommer and Ray Waymell, for the plan commission, and John Cargill, Ronald J. Sauer and Margaret Fraser, for the youth commission.

Vacancies still exist on five commissions in the village despite the new applicants, however. The human relations commission needs two members, and the civil defense, industrial, public relations, and youth commissions each lack one member.

REAPPOINTMENTS to the various commissions include Robert Buerger and Wayne Gilbert to the Civil Defense commission; Elmer Lemke, Raymond Kulpins and Joseph Hille to the electrical commission; James Poole to the fire and police commission; Gertrude Trunda, the Rev. Ray Yadron, and Elie Nekimken to the human relations commission, Ray Roach and Donald Duncan to the industrial commission, Earl Towery to the plan commission, Malcolm W. Cashey to the public relations commission, Douglas Cargill to the police pension board, Edward Slepicka to the zoning board, and June Orlovski to the youth commission.

Snake Bites Teen

Ken Davis, 15, of 15 E. Jeffery in Wheeling was taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines Friday after he was bitten by a snake.

Hospital officials said Ken was kept at the hospital for several hours under observation and then sent home. Police said the snake was captured, but its species was not determined.

Dist. 21 Count Rises to 7,511

Enrollment in Dist. 21 schools was 7,511 as of Sept. 5, Supt. Kenneth Gill announced at Thursday's school board meeting.

The district serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, and parts of Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights.

Gill said the figure represents an increase of about 500 over closing enrollment last June.

"The enrollment increase was smaller than anticipated and will leave the district in good shape to absorb more students during the year," Gill commented.

He said the only building that is overcrowded is Jack London Junior High.

Enrollment in each of the 12 Dist. 21 schools as of Sept. 5 is as follows:

Carl Sandburg, 598; Booth Tarkington, 479; Joyce Kilmer, 580; Walt Whitman, 677.

Robert Frost, 771; Louisa May Alcott, 534; Eugene Field, 581; Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, 624; Edgar Allan Poe, 623; Jack London, 801; Oliver Wendell Holmes, 619; and Mark Twain, 534.

'Hard Work' Is Park Formula

by ALAN AKERSON

"Cooperation, communication and a lot of hard work"—all are included in Mrs. Dede Armstrong's formula for a park commissioner.

"The park commissioners have to care about the park district, and they have to show that they care. It's not going to be a one-meeting-a-month proposition," she said.

Mrs. Armstrong, who has lived in Buffalo Grove for one and a half years, managed a personnel agency for two years in Chicago. She is responsible for starting the Strathmore Teen Club in Buffalo Grove.

SHE SAID OF THE formation of a park

district: "Once the community elects five people, it doesn't mean the village can sit back and let them work."

"Instead, we're going to need volunteers, both to help run our programs and to help maintain our park lands. I feel it is also necessary to have a volunteer advisory committee made up of residents, teachers and anyone else who can be of service to work with the park district board."

Volunteers will play another important role in the park district, Mrs. Armstrong feels. Through their efforts in running programs and maintaining the grounds, volunteers can help the district through its lean period until tax revenues begin coming in.

"I THINK THE volunteers are here," she added. "People will help if they feel they're needed. All we have to do is ask."

Volunteers are not the only solution Mrs. Armstrong offered for the district's "money" problem, however. "We'll have some money from the village, although we will have to work on a small scale."

One suggestion she has is a fund-raising campaign to finance park programs.

One of the primary reasons she is running for a park commissioner post is that "we need teen activities. We need a teen club, like the Strathmore Teen Club, for the whole village and not just for Strathmore."

"One thing I'd like to see in our parks is a place the teenagers can call their own, even if that place is only a room with a soda machine and a jukebox."

MRS. ARMSTRONG wants the district to be formed because she thinks that as long as the parks remain under village control, the programs will not be expanded, "even if the village would levy a recreation tax." The reason for this, she said, is that "the trustees simply don't have enough time to devote to parks."

"With a park district, the commissioners would think only of parks and recreation."

Concerning the programs now offered, she said "We have made a very good start on the baseball programs. Although the fields have to be improved, the spirit is there. What we need to add are some free activities like basketball or table tennis."

Although she would like to see the village have a swimming pool, Mrs. Armstrong said, "It would be extremely difficult to have a pool now because the money just isn't there. If there is a way to come up with the money, perhaps it can be done. It's a crime to see Buffalo Grove children 'hitchhiking' along Dundee Road to go to the Wheeling pool."

IN DISCUSSING how the village should turn over its park lands to the new district, Mrs. Armstrong called for "a sensible plan in assuming control of the lands. Let's first see how much money we have and then see if that money will allow us to maintain or develop a site we are thinking of taking over."

She advocates "cooperating and working together between the park district and the village board. After all, we will have two legislative bodies working together for the good of the community."

She suggested, "We should immediately improve in a light way the areas we now have and perhaps work on small projects further away from Emmerich Park for the children of other areas."

"EVERY COMMUNITY needs a swimming pool, but we just can't afford one now," said Mrs. Darlene Tufano. She added, "The way Buffalo Grove is spread out, we need not one, but three pools."

She Would Like Beautiful Parks

by ALAN AKERSON

"Everyone should feel their parks are a nice place to go. They shouldn't be ashamed of their parks," said Mrs. Darlene Tufano.

"Beautification of the parks is something I'd certainly like to see. And I'm sure this is not going to be any big problem once the district is formed."

Mrs. Tufano has been a member of the present Buffalo Grove Park Commission for two years. "After being on the commission two years, I feel the need for a park district is so much greater than the people think it is. The park district is just something that should be. We got a late start on it."

"IN THE TWO YEARS I've been on the commission, we've done quite well with programs for little children, but we really haven't had many programs for older kids or adults," Mrs. Tufano said.

In addition to continuing the present programs for children, she wants the district to more adequately serve other age groups. One way of doing this, in Mrs. Tufano's opinion, is to offer residents more educational and cultural programs.

Mrs. Tufano said, "It will be a very difficult situation monetarily after the district is created. I think the people have to become aware of this."

At the same time, she said, "I hate to see the people think that lack of money will bog us down. I really don't feel that way at all. Maybe we won't be able to take giant steps, but I feel the steps that we can take in improving our parks will be worthwhile."

MRS. TUFANO DISCUSSED methods the park district might use to support itself during the interim until it begins receiving tax revenues.

As important as the amount of money the board gives the district, said Mrs. Tufano, "is how we use that money." She said the residents should be aware that the village board cannot lend a great deal of financial support to the new park district.

Mrs. Tufano said that while the district would need a full-time recreation director, "we couldn't afford one immediately after the district is formed." She suggested that volunteers from the community could assist a part-time director at the outset. She said she thought the present park commission had been "lax in getting volunteers."

CONCERNING THE LANDS the village now holds that are slated to be parks, she said "I don't want the village to turn over all the lands immediately. The worst thing we could do is take all the lands. Some of the candidates, I know, do want all the land. I personally don't think we could handle them. I would rather get the land as we can handle and maintain it."

Admitting the matter of when the village should turn over the lands is "a very difficult situation," she said, "I would hate to see the land (stay under village control and) be used for something other than parks. But by the same token, it would be stupid to let the land sit there for five years because we could do nothing about it."

Mrs. Tufano said the village board "will play a large role in determining how the lands are turned over to the district."

Concerning an attorney for the park district, Mrs. Tufano said she would like to see Richard Raysa, the village attorney, be the park district's attorney also. "He has done an awful lot for the park commission," she said. Mrs. Tufano sees "no conflict of interest between the village and the park district if Mr. Raysa is attorney for both."

Introductory Program Planned at Kildeer

A get-acquainted program for parents of children attending Kildeer Countryside School in Long Grove will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday at the school.

William Hitzeman, superintendent of School Dist. 96, said the program will feature the introduction of the complete teaching staff. After the introductions, parents will be able to meet informally with the teachers.

Approximately 500 students are enrolled in the school this fall, an increase of about 170 students over last year.

Hitzeman said that four additional teachers were hired to teach the extra students.

The school serves Long Grove and a northern portion of Buffalo Grove.

Troop Pull-Out Set

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is to announce a second round of troop withdrawals from Vietnam today, a move he delayed two weeks because of a step-up in Communist military activity, Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler has announced.

Ziegler refused to confirm a statement from South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky that the United States and South Vietnam had agreed on the withdrawal of 40,500 U.S. troops by the end of November.

Scott Withdraws Name

CHICAGO — Atty. Gen. William J. Scott yesterday withdrew his name from consideration for the appointment to fill the U. S. Senate seat left vacant by the death of Everett M. Dirksen.

Scott bowed out amid reports that Governor Ogilvie had already offered him the Senate seat, but Ogilvie denied offering the appointment to anyone. Ogilvie conferred yesterday with House Speaker Ralph T. Smith and John Henry Altior, Ogilvie's opponent in the 1968 gubernatorial primary, concerning the appointment.

Rocks Hamper Search

MANNINGTON, W. Va. — Work crews searching 500 feet underground for the remains of 78 men inside explosion-scarred Mannington No. 9 mine suffered their first setback Monday when they encountered a rock fall and waist-high water.

There was no trace of the missing miners, who were killed in explosions and fires last November.

Ward Offices Bombed

CHICAGO — Firebombs damaged the offices of two North Side aldermen within a 20-minute span early yesterday.

Aldermen George B. McCutcheon of the 43rd Ward and William Singer of the 44th Ward said they thought the bombings were connected with racial and minority group tensions. Damage at both offices was slight.

New 'Pot' Laws Urged

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. John Mitchell told Congress yesterday youths are turning to marijuana by the thousands while authorities wander in a "never-never land" of archaic laws and scientific ignorance.

He called for new laws to clamp down on mobsters and narcotics peddlers, deal more leniently with youthful drug experimenters and draw a more realistic line between "hard narcotics" and less dangerous drugs such as marijuana.

Want Barrier Removal

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Angry Protestants last night demanded that the British army stop "pussyfooting" and forcibly remove the Roman Catholic barricades in West Belfast.

The Protestants threatened to rebuild their own barriers unless the army moved quickly. The Central Defense Committee, which claims to speak for 75,000 Catholics, walked behind the barricades, declared they would not be removed until the British agreed to guarantee demands.

'Mama Don' 'Low Oxen Here'

by ANNE SLAVICEK

If you live in Wheeling you can't park your horse, ox or mule on the sidewalk. And you haven't been able to since September, 1894, when the village board passed an ordinance prohibiting it.

A copy of "Ordinance No. 2, an Ordinance To Define and Provide of Punishment of Misdemeanors," as well as several other laws dating back to the turn of the century, turned up last week during preparations for moving from the present Wheeling village hall to the new one.

The ordinances don't apply anymore because the laws have since been codified, according to M. O. Horcher, Wheeling police chief.

OTHER LAWS prohibited residents from disrupting worship services by "any menace, profane swearing, vulgar language or any disorderly or unusual conduct" and from "firing cannons, guns, fowling pieces, pistols, firearms or firecrackers on Sunday."

It was also illegal to torture animals or promote dog-fights, prize-fights, or cock-fights in the village.

Children's play activities were also regulated. "No person shall in any place in the said village fly kites, throw stones, trundle hoops, play ball or engage in any sport or exercise likely to frighten horses, injure passengers, embarrass the passage of vehicles or obstruct the business of other persons," according to Section 23 of Ordinance No. 2.

Citizens also weren't allowed to keep dead animals, unless they buried them. Residents were not to walk around with concealed weapons, including pistols, revolvers, sling shots, knuckles, knives or daggers, unless they had the permission of the village president.

IT WAS ALSO illegal to post handbills advertising cures for "what are called the 'secret diseases'."

The village fathers looked out for wildlife in the village by making it illegal to kill or trap any "robin, bluebird, swallow, martin, mosquito hawk, whip-poor-will, cuckoo, woodpecker, cardinal, brown thrasher, humming cherry bird, yellow bird, oriole or bobolink."

It was also unlawful to bell an animal if it annoyed other people.

Health was important in the village, and the trustees prohibited persons from dumping trash in the street. The ordinance lists objectionable trash, including "old boots, old tin and straw."

A billboard, a modern medium for advertising, was also illegal if it "obstructed the light or view of any other person, or the free circulation of the air."

Track Unveils Growth Plan

Local residents looking into the crystal ball tonight may see a sports arena, almost carte blanche zoning rights and fire, police and railway stations at Arlington Park Race Track.

The future of the race track may be disclosed as representatives of Gulf and Western, which recently acquired the track, meet at 8 p.m. with the Arlington Heights Village Board to discuss a pre-annexation agreement.

REPORTS IN THE VILLAGE also say that Mrs. Marje Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises and operator of the track, will be in attendance.

Gulf and Western headquarters in New York could give no other details yesterday of corporate officials coming to Arlington Heights.

Basis for preliminary talks tonight will be the park's proposed 19-point agreement between the track and the village outlining the contingencies upon which any annexation will proceed. Acceptance of the 19 points will make the track property the most valuable in the Northwest suburbs.

Village officials disclosed some weeks ago that the Gulf and Western representatives may eventually put $700 million into the development of the track and surrounding land into an activities center "which would make night racing very

Residents to Polls

Residents of Lake County School Dist. 125 will go to the polls today to vote on a $3 million addition to Adlai Stevenson High School, Prairie View.

Polls will be open from noon until 9 p.m. in four precincts.

Residents of Dist. 103 who live east of the Des Plaines River will vote at the Laura B. Sprague School. Residents of Dist. 103 living west of the Des Plaines River and residents of School Dist. 73, 76 and 79 will vote at Stevenson High School.

Residents of Dist. 102 vote at Aptakisic-Tripp School and residents of Dist. 96 vote at Kildeer School.

Formation of Park District Endorsed

Kenneth Felten, Buffalo Grove trustee, has released a statement endorsing the formation of a park district for the Buffalo Grove area.

"I strongly urge that each and every resident vote on Sept. 20, and further recommend that each vote is a 'yes' vote," his statement said.

"One of the prime reasons that motivated the investigation of the past two years that led to the park district referendum was the fact that, in the near future, the village would not have sufficient funds available to meet the challenge for the increasing demands of a sound park program with its facilities."

HE POINTED OUT that recently the village has increased its expenditures in such areas as the police finance and administration departments and health services.

"Taxes to support these departments," he said, "are by no means adequate." He added, "Buffalo Grove will presently and for some time live on building permits in order to meet these demands."

Felten, in his statement, predicted the village would be able to subsidize the park district's operations until the district begins receiving its own tax revenues.

Felten said, "It is my opinion that 'norally the board members would give to the park district all cooperation within reason in order to create a better Buffalo Grove."

Though he said he would oppose it, Felten predicted the village would seek to impose a recreation tax if the referendum Saturday fails.

TWO WEEKS AGO Felten gave qualified support to the formation of the park district, saying, "Generally I'm in favor of the district, but it hinges on the candidates running for park commissioner, too."

Also at that time Donald Thompson, village president, told the Herald, "If the park district is voted down, I would be in favor of a recreation tax for the village, passed by a referendum."

Robert Gleeson is the only trustee who has voiced opposition to the formation of the district. "If the parks were to remain under village control, there would be no duplication of clerical duties," he said.

Gleeson also said he thinks residents would retain greater control of their parks if the village board were responsible for them.

Buffalo Grove area residents will decide Saturday whether to create a separate park district. Also at that time they will select five persons to be members of the park district board. Ten candidates are running for the posts.

Order Apartment Cleanup

The Wheeling Village Board last week gave a landlord until Oct. 6 to clean up conditions at apartments at 160, 162 and 164 Wildwood Lane.

Fourteen tenants signed a letter listing conditions at the apartments which they feared endangered their "health and well-being."

The letter was sent to the Nathan Smith Management Co. which runs the buildings, as well as to the village board.

INCLUDED IN THE tenants' list of problems were uncovered window wells, a loose manhole cover, leaks in the roof, waste glass and garbage littering the grounds and shrubbery and broken glass panels in entrance halls.

The residents reported that they lack refuse containers for trash, need plumbing repairs to eliminate water leaks in the basements and need doorbells, door springs and repairs on leaky air conditioning and heating ducts.

The gates on fencing have not been installed and locks on the basement door and rear door were broken, the letter said.

The tenants also asked that a chimney be examined for loose or falling bricks.

COPIES OF THE letter were sent to the village fire inspector and fire chief, the health inspector, building inspector and acting director of public works as well as to the president and board of trustees.

Con-Con Forum Set

The 16 Third District candidates for Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) delegate seats will make a rare appearance on the same stage Thursday night when the League of Women Voters (LWV) of several area communities sponsor a districtwide candidates' night at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

The forum will be one of the last chances for voters in the district to hear the candidates before next Tuesday's primary election.

In that election, four of the 16 will advance to the general election on Nov. 18. Two candidates will be elected delegates in each of the state's 58 senatorial districts.

THURSDAY'S SESSION will begin at 3 p.m. in the Town Hall meeting room on the lower level of Randhurst.

Because of the large number of candidates, the program has been divided into four parts.

Each part will have four candidates, whose names will be chosen by lot at the beginning of the program. The candidates will each have time to make a short presentation and after the four have spoken, there will be a question and answer period.

An LWV spokesman said the program should end by 10 p.m.

THE 16 candidates, and the order in which their names will appear on the primary ballot next Tuesday, are listed:

—Wilfred L. Robbins, 1808 W. Pheasant Trail, Mount Prospect.

—Robert A. Bush, 726 Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

—Annis F. Bush, 107 E. Council Trail, Mount Prospect.

—Mary Jordan Carlson, 207 E. School Lane, Prospect Heights.

—Douglas Roy Cannon, 8 N. Louis St., Mount Prospect.

—Eugene L. Griffin, 603 Thorntree Terrace, Arlington Heights.

—Thomas J. Johnson Jr., 98 Hawthorne Road, Barrington.

—Donald F. Colby, 38 Glenbrook Drive, Prospect Heights.

—William R. Engelhardt, 416 N. Inverway Road, Inverness.

—John G. Woods, 214 S. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights.

—Virginia B. Macdonald, 515 S. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights.

New Village Hall Doors Open Today

Today is moving day for Wheeling's village offices and employees.

All village business will be conducted today in the new village hall at 255 W. Dundee Road.

Movers hope to complete the job of hauling village furniture and equipment to the new hall during the day.

All meetings normally scheduled for the village hall will be held in the new hall after today, according to Village Mgr. Matthew Golden.

Golden said Monday that an open house and dedication is planned for the new hall in the near future, but a date hasn't been set as yet.

"I WOULD LIKE to see the district begin offering some educational and cultural activities to the community," Mrs. Dede Armstrong, a candidate for Buffalo Grove Park District commissioner, said.

Board Screens Applicants

Interviews of applicants for various Wheeling boards and commissions will be tomorrow in the Village Hall at Dundee and Milwaukee roads beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The applicants will be interviewed only if they are new appointees or if a village trustee asks that a reappointed member be interviewed.

The village trustees will conduct the interviews at a meeting of the board's judiciary and purchasing committee.

NEW APPLICANTS to be interviewed include: William Hein, Robert Olson and Ron Potter, for the fire and police commission; Peter Maniatis, Michael Russo and L. D. Andress, for the industrial commission; Michael J. Dorgan, Wilfred Sommer and Ray Waymel, for the plan commission; and John Cargill, Ronald J. Sauer and Margaret Fraser, for the youth commission.

Vacancies still exist on five commissions in the village despite the new applicants, however. The human relations commission needs two members, and the civil defense, industrial, public relations, and youth commissions each lack one member.

REAPPOINTMENTS to the various commissions include Robert Baerger and Wayne Gilbert to the Civil Defense commission; Elmer Lemke, Raymond Kulpins and Joseph Hille to the electrical commission; James Poole to the fire and police commission; Gertrude Trunda, the Rev. Ray Yadron, and Elie Nekimken to the human relations commission; Ray Roach and Donald Duncan to the industrial commission; Earl Towery to the plan commission; Malcolm W. Cashey to the public relations commission; Douglas Cargill to the police pension board; Edward Stepicka to the zoning board; and June Oriowski to the youth commission.

Snake Bites Teen

Ken Davis, 15, of 15 E. Jeffery in Wheeling was taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines Friday after he was bitten by a snake.

Hospital officials said Ken was kept at the hospital for several hours under observation and then sent home. Police said the snake was captured, but its species was not determined.

Dist. 21 Count Rises to 7,511

Enrollment in Dist. 21 schools was 7,511 as of Sept. 5, Supt. Kenneth Gill announced at Thursday's school board meeting.

The district serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, and parts of Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights.

Gill said the figure represents an increase of about 500 over closing enrollment last June.

"The enrollment increase was smaller than anticipated and will leave the district in good shape to absorb more students during the year," Gill commented.

He said the only building that is overcrowded is Jack London Junior High.

Enrollment in each of the 12 Dist. 21 schools as of Sept. 5 is as follows:

'Hard Work' Is Park Formula

by ALAN AKERSON

"Cooperation, communication and a lot of hard work"—all are included in Mrs. Dede Armstrong's formula for a park commissioner.

"The park commissioners have to care about the park district, and they have to show that they care. It's not going to be a one-meeting-a-month proposition," she said.

Mrs. Armstrong, who has lived in Buffalo Grove for one and a half years, managed a personnel agency for two years in Chicago. She is responsible for starting the Strathmore Teen Club in Buffalo Grove.

SHE SAID OF THE formation of a park

district: "Once the community elects five people, it doesn't mean the village can sit back and let them work."

"Instead, we're going to need volunteers, both to help run our programs and to help maintain our park lands. I feel it is also necessary to have a volunteer advisory committee made up of residents, teachers and anyone else who can be of service to work with the park district board."

Volunteers will play another important role in the park district, Mrs. Armstrong feels. Through their efforts in running programs and maintaining the grounds, volunteers can help the district through its lean period until tax revenues begin coming in.

"I THINK THE volunteers are here," she added. "People will help if they feel they're needed. All we have to do is ask."

Volunteers are not the only solution Mrs. Armstrong offered for the district's "money" problem, however. "We'll have some money from the village, although we will have to work on a small scale."

One suggestion she has is a fund-raising campaign to finance park programs.

One of the primary reasons she is running for a park commissioner post is that "we need teen activities. We need a teen club, like the Strathmore Teen Club, for the whole village and not just for Strathmore."

"One thing I'd like to see in our parks is a place the teenagers can call their own, even if that place is only a room with a soda machine and a jukebox."

MRS. ARMSTRONG wants the district to be formed because she thinks that as long as the parks remain under village control, the programs will not be expanded, "even if the village would levy a recreation tax." The reason for this, she said, is that "the trustees simply don't have enough time to devote to parks."

"With a park district, the commissioners would think only of parks and recreation."

Concerning the programs now offered, she said "We have made a very good start on the baseball programs. Although the fields have to be improved, the spirit is there. What we need to add are some free activities like basketball or table tennis."

Although she would like to see the village have a swimming pool, Mrs. Armstrong said, "It would be extremely difficult to have a pool now because the money just isn't there. If there is a way to come up with the money, perhaps it can be done. It's a crime to see Buffalo Grove children 'hitchhiking' along Dundee Road to go to the Wheeling pool."

She advocates "cooperating and working together between the park district and the village board. After all, we will have two legislative bodies working together for the good of the community."

She suggested, "We should immediately improve in a light way the areas we now have and perhaps work on small projects further away from Emmerich Park for the children of other areas."

"EVERY COMMUNITY needs a swimming pool, but we just can't afford one now," said Mrs. Darlene Tufano.

She added, "The way Buffalo Grove is spread out, we need not one, but three pools."

She Would Like Beautiful Parks

by ALAN AKERSON

"Everyone should feel their parks are a nice place to go. They shouldn't be ashamed of their parks," said Mrs. Darlene Tufano.

"Beautification of the parks is something I'd certainly like to see. And I'm sure this is not going to be any big problem once the district is formed."

Mrs. Tufano has been a member of the present Buffalo Grove Park Commission for two years. "After being on the commission two years, I feel the need for a park district is so much greater than the people think it is. The park district is just something that should be. We got a late start on it."

"IN THE TWO YEARS I've been on the commission, we've done quite well with programs for little children, but we really haven't had many programs for older kids or adults," Mrs. Tufano said.

In addition to continuing the present programs for children, she wants the district to more adequately serve other age groups. One way of doing this, in Mrs. Tufano's opinion, is to offer residents more educational and cultural programs.

Mrs. Tufano said, "It will be a very difficult situation monetarily after the district is created. I think the people have to become aware of this."

At the same time, she said, "I hate to see the people think that lack of money will bog us down. I really don't feel that way at all. Maybe we won't be able to take giant steps, but I feel the steps that we can take in improving our parks will be worthwhile."

MRS. TUFANO DISCUSSED methods the park district might use to support itself during the interim until it begins receiving tax revenues.

As important as the amount of money the board gives the district, said Mrs. Tufano, "is how we use that money." She said the residents should be aware that the village board cannot lend a great deal of financial support to the new park district.

Mrs. Tufano said that while the district would need a full-time recreation director, "we couldn't afford one immediately after the district is formed." She suggested that volunteers from the community could assist a part-time director at the outset. She said she thought the present park commission had been "lax in getting volunteers."

CONCERNING THE LANDS the village now holds that are slated to be parks, she said "I don't want the village to turn over all the lands immediately. The worst thing we could do is take all the lands. Some of the candidates, I know, do want all the land. I personally don't think we could handle them. I would rather get the land as we can handle and maintain it."

Admitting the matter of when the village should turn over the lands is "a very difficult situation," she said, "I would hate to see the land (stay under village control and) be used for something other than parks. But by the same token, it would be stupid to let the land sit there for five years because we could do nothing about it."

Mrs. Tufano said the village board "will play a large role in determining how the lands are turned over to the district."

Concerning an attorney for the park district, Mrs. Tufano said she would like to see Richard Raysa, the village attorney, be the park district's attorney also. "He has done an awful lot for the park commission," she said. Mrs. Tufano sees "no conflict of interest between the village and the park district if Mr. Raysa is attorney for both."

Introductory Program Planned at Kildeer

A get-acquainted program for parents of children attending Kildeer Countryside School in Long Grove will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday at the school.

William Hitzeman, superintendent of School Dist. 96, said the program will feature the introduction of the complete teaching staff. After the introductions, parents will be able to meet informally with the teachers.

Approximately 590 students are enrolled in the school this fall, an increase of about 170 students over last year.

Hitzeman said that four additional teachers were hired to teach the extra students.

The school serves Long Grove and a northern portion of Buffalo Grove.

Troop Pull-Out Set

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is to announce a second round of troop withdrawals from Vietnam today, a move he delayed two weeks because of a step-up in Communist military activity, Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler has announced.

Ziegler refused to confirm a statement from South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky that the United States and South Vietnam had agreed on the withdrawal of 40,500 U.S. troops by the end of November.

Scott Withdraws Name

CHICAGO — Atty. Gen. William J. Scott yesterday withdrew his name from consideration for the appointment to fill the U. S. Senate seat left vacant by the death of Everett M. Dirksen.

Scott bowed out amid reports that Governor Ogilvie had already offered him the Senate seat, but Ogilvie denied offering the appointment to anyone. Ogilvie conferred yesterday with House Speaker Ralph T. Smith and John Henry Altorfer, Ogilvie's opponent in the 1968 gubernatorial primary, concerning the appointment.

Rocks Hamper Search

MANNINGTON, W. Va. — Work crews searching 500 feet underground for the remains of 78 men inside explosion-scarred Mannington No. 9 mine suffered their first setback Monday when they encountered a rock fall and waist-high water.

There was no trace of the missing miners, who were killed in explosions and fires last November.

Ward Offices Bombed

CHICAGO — Firebombs damaged the offices of two North Side aldermen within a 20-minute span early yesterday.

Aldermen George B. McCutcheon of the 43rd Ward and William Singer of the 44th Ward said they thought the bombings were connected with racial and minority group tensions. Damage at both offices was slight.

New 'Pot' Laws Urged

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. John Mitchell told Congress yesterday youths are turning to marijuana by the thousands while authorities wander in a "never-never land" of archaic laws and scientific ignorance.

He called for new laws to clamp down on mobsters and narcotics peddlers, deal more leniently with youthful drug experimenters and draw a more realistic line between "hard narcotics" and less dangerous drugs such as marijuana.

Want Barrier Removal

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Angry Protestants last night demanded that the British army stop "pussyfooting" and forcibly remove the Roman Catholic barricades in West Belfast.

The Protestants threatened to rebuild their own barriers unless the army moved quickly. The Central Defense Committee, which claims to speak for 75,000 Catholics, declared that the army would not be removed until the British agreed to guarantee demands.

ALMOST 30 JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL BOYS signed up Friday for a new tackle football program being sponsored by the Wheeling Park District. Fred Grass

'Mama Don' 'Low Oxen Here'

by ANNE SLAVICEK

If you live in Wheeling you can't park your horse, ox or mule on the sidewalk.

And you haven't been able to since September, 1894, when the village board passed an ordinance prohibiting it.

A copy of "Ordinance No. 2, an Ordinance To Define and Provide for Punishment of Misdemeanors," as well as several other laws dating back to the turn of the century, turned up last week during preparations for moving from the present Wheeling village hall to the new one.

The ordinances don't apply anymore because the laws have since been codified, according to M. O. Horcher, Wheeling police chief.

OTHER LAWS prohibited residents from disrupting worship services by "any menace, profane swearing, vulgar language or any disorderly or unusual conduct" and from "firing cannons, guns, fowling pieces, pistols, firearms or firecrackers on Sunday."

It was also illegal to torture animals or promote dog-fights, prize-fights, or cock-fights in the village.

Children's play activities were also regulated. "No person shall in any place in the said village fly kites, throw stones, trundle hoops, play ball or engage in any sport or exercise likely to frighten horses, injure passengers, embarrass the passage of vehicles or obstruct the business of other persons," according to Section 23 of Ordinance No. 2.

Citizens also weren't allowed to keep dead animals, unless they buried them. Residents were not to walk around with concealed weapons, including pistols, revolvers, sling shots, knuckles, knives or daggers, unless they had the permission of the village president.

IT WAS ALSO illegal to post handbills advertising cures for "what are called the 'secret diseases'."

The village fathers looked out for wildlife in the village by making it illegal to kill or trap any "robin, bluebird, swallow, martin, mosquito hawk, whippoorwill, cuckoo, woodpecker, catbird, brown thrasher, humming cherry bird, yellow bird, oriole or bobolink."

It was also unlawful to bell an animal if it annoyed other people.

Health was important in the village, and the trustees prohibited persons from dumping trash in the street. The ordinance lists objectionable trash, including "old boots, old tin and straw."

A billboard, a modern medium for advertising, was also illegal if it "obstructed the light or view of any other person, or the free circulation of the air."

A HEALTH ORDINANCE passed in the fall of 1894 required that people see "respectable" physicians. The ordinance authorized a spring cleanup each May followed by an inspection by the village marshal and the village street commissioner of every "yard, barn lot, pig-sty, cellar or privy" in the village.

Track Unveils Growth Plan

Local residents looking into the crystal ball tonight may see a sports arena, almost carte blanche zoning rights and fire, police and railway stations at Arlington Park Race Track.

The future of the race track may be disclosed as representatives of Gulf and Western, which recently acquired the track, meet at 8 p.m. with the Arlington Heights Village Board to discuss a pre-annexation agreement.

REPORTS IN THE VILLAGE also say that Mrs. Marie Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises and operator of the track, will be in attendance.

Gulf and Western headquarters in New York could give no other details yesterday of corporate officials coming to Arlington Heights.

Basis for preliminary talks tonight will be the park's proposed 19-point agreement between the track and the village outlining the contingencies upon which any annexation will proceed. Acceptance of the 19 points will make the track property the most valuable in the Northwest suburbs.

Village officials disclosed some weeks ago that the Gulf and Western representatives may eventually put $700 million into the development of the track and surrounding land into an activities center "which would make night racing very

Residents to Polls

Residents of Lake County School Dist. 125 will go to the polls today to vote on a $3 million addition to Adlai Stevenson High School, Prairie View.

Polls will be open from noon until 9 p.m. in four precincts.

Residents of Dist. 103 who live east of the Des Plaines River will vote at the Laura B. Sprague School. Residents of Dist. 103 living west of the Des Plaines River and residents of School Dist. 73, 76 and 79 will vote at Stevenson High School.

Residents of Dist. 102 vote at Aptakisic-Tripp School and residents of Dist. 96 vote at Kildeer School.

Formation of Park District Endorsed

Kenneth Felten, Buffalo Grove trustee, has released a statement endorsing the formation of a park district for the Buffalo Grove area.

"I strongly urge that each and every resident vote on Sept. 20, and further recommend that each vote is a 'yes' vote," his statement said.

"One of the prime reasons that motivated the investigation of the past two years that led to the park district referendum was the fact that, in the near future, the village would not have sufficient funds available to meet the challenge for the increasing demands of a sound park program with its facilities."

HE POINTED OUT that recently the village has increased its expenditures in such areas as the police finance and administration departments and health services.

"Taxes to support these departments," he said, "are by no means adequate." He added, "Buffalo Grove will presently and for some time live on building permits in order to meet these demands."

Felten, in his statement, predicted the village would be able to subsidize the park district's operations until the district begins receiving its own tax revenues.

Felten said, "It is my opinion that morally the board members would give to the park district all cooperation within reason in order to create a better Buffalo Grove."

Though he said he would oppose it, Felten predicted the village would seek to impose a recreation tax if the referendum Saturday fails.

TWO WEEKS AGO Felten gave qualified support to the formation of the park district, saying, "Generally I'm in favor of the district, but it hinges on the candidates running for park commissioner, too."

Also at that time Donald Thompson, village president, told the Herald, "If the park district is voted down, I would be in favor of a recreation tax for the village, passed by a referendum."

Robert Gleeson is the only trustee who has voiced opposition to the formation of the district. "If the parks were to remain under village control, there would be no duplication of clerical duties," he said.

Gleeson also said he thinks residents would retain greater control of their parks if the village board were responsible for them.

Buffalo Grove area residents will decide Saturday whether to create a separate park district. Also at that time they will select five persons to be members of the park district board. Ten candidates are running for the posts.

Order Apartment Cleanup

The Wheeling Village Board last week gave a landlord until Oct. 6 to clean up conditions at apartments at 160, 162 and 164 Wildwood Lane.

Fourteen tenants signed a letter listing conditions at the apartments which they feared endangered their "health and well-being."

The letter was sent to the Nathan Smith Management Co. which runs the buildings, as well as to the village board.

INCLUDED IN THE tenants' list of problems were uncovered window wells, a loose manhole cover, leaks in the roof, waste glass and garbage littering the grounds and shrubbery and broken glass panels in entrance halls.

The residents reported that they lack refuse containers for trash, need plumbing repairs to eliminate water leaks in the basements, and need doorbells, door springs and repairs on leaky air conditioning and heating ducts.

The gates on fencing have not been installed and locks on the basement door and rear door were broken, the letter said.

The tenants also asked that a chimney be examined for loose or falling bricks.

COPIES OF THE letter were sent to the village fire inspector and fire chief, the health inspector, building inspector and acting director of public works as well as to the president and board of trustees.

Con-Con Forum Set

The 16 Third District candidates for Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) delegate seats will make a rare appearance on the same stage Thursday night when the League of Women Voters (LWV) of several area communities sponsor a district-wide candidates' night at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

The forum will be one of the last chances for voters in the district to hear the candidates before next Tuesday's primary election.

In that election, four of the 16 will advance to the general election on Nov. 18. Two candidates will be elected delegates in each of the state's 58 senatorial districts.

THURSDAY'S SESSION will begin at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall meeting room on the lower level of Randhurst.

Because of the large number of candidates, the program has been divided into four parts.

Each part will have four candidates, whose names will be chosen by lot at the beginning of the program. The candidates will each have time to make a short presentation and after the four have spoken, there will be a question and answer period.

An LWV spokesman said the program should end by 10 p.m.

THE 16 candidates, and the order in which their names will appear on the primary ballot next Tuesday, are listed:

—Wilfred L. Robbins, 1808 W. Pheasant Trail, Mount Prospect.

—Robert A. Bush, 726 Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

—Annis F. Bush, 107 E. Council Trail, Mount Prospect.

—Mary Jordan Carlson, 207 E. School Lane, Prospect Heights.

—Douglas Roy Cannon, 8 N. Louis St., Mount Prospect.

—Eugene L. Griffin, 603 Thorntree Terrace, Arlington Heights.

—Thomas J. Johnson Jr., 98 Hawthorne Road, Barrington.

—Donald F. Colby, 38 Glenbrook Drive, Prospect Heights.

—William R. Engelhardt, 416 N. Inverway Road, Inverness.

—John G. Woods, 214 S. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights.

—Virginia B. Macdonald, 515 S. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights.

—Winn C. Davidson, 649 N. Clark Drive, Palatine.

—LeMoine D. Stitt Jr., 501 N. Inverway Road, Inverness.

—Samuel A. LaSusa, 357 Roberts Road, Barrington.

New Village Hall Doors Open Today

Today is moving day for Wheeling's village offices and employees.

All village business will be conducted today in the new village hall at 255 W. Dundee Road.

Movers hope to complete the job of hauling village furniture and equipment to the new hall during the day.

All meetings normally scheduled for the village hall will be held in the new hall after today, according to Village Mgr. Matthew Golden.

Golden said Monday that an open house and dedication is planned for the new hall in the near future, but a date hasn't been set as yet.

'Hard Work' Is Park Formula

by ALAN AKERSON

"Cooperation, communication and a lot of hard work"—all are included in Mrs. Dede Armstrong's formula for a park commissioner.

"The park commissioners have to care about the park district, and they have to show that they care. It's not going to be a one-meeting-a-month proposition," she said.

Mrs. Armstrong, who has lived in Buffalo Grove for one and a half years, managed a personnel agency for two years in Chicago. She is responsible for starting the Strathmore Teen Club in Buffalo Grove.

SHE SAID OF THE formation of a park

district: "Once the community elects five people, it doesn't mean the village can sit back and let them work."

"Instead, we're going to need volunteers, both to help run our programs and to help maintain our park lands. I feel it is also necessary to have a volunteer advisory committee made up of residents, teachers and anyone else who can be of service to work with the park district board."

Volunteers will play another important role in the park district, Mrs. Armstrong feels. Through their efforts in running programs and maintaining the grounds, volunteers can help the district through its lean period until tax revenues begin coming in.

"I THINK the volunteers are here," she added. "People will help if they feel they're needed. All we have to do is ask."

Volunteers are not the only solution Mrs. Armstrong offered for the district's "money" problem, however. "We'll have some money from the village, although we will have to work on a small scale."

One suggestion she has is a fund-raising campaign to finance park programs.

One of the primary reasons she is running for a park commissioner post is that "we need teen activities. We need a teen club, like the Strathmore Teen Club, for the whole village and not just for Strathmore."

"One thing I'd like to see in our parks is a place the teenagers can call their own, even if that place is only a room with a soda machine and a jukebox."

MRS. ARMSTRONG wants the district to be formed because she thinks that as long as the parks remain under village control, the programs will not be expanded, "even if the village would levy a recreation tax." The reason for this, she said, is that "the trustees simply don't have enough time to devote to parks."

"With a park district, the commissioners would think only of parks and recreation."

Concerning the programs now offered, she said "We have made a very good start on the baseball programs. Although the fields have to be improved, the spirit is there. What we need to add are some free activities like basketball or table tennis."

Although she would like to see the village have a swimming pool, Mrs. Armstrong said, "It would be extremely difficult to have a pool now because the money just isn't there. If there is a way to come up with the money, perhaps it can be done. It's a crime to see Buffalo Grove children 'hitchhiking' along Dundee Road to go to the Wheeling pool."

IN DISCUSSING how the village should turn over its park lands to the new district, Mrs. Armstrong called for "a sensible plan in assuming control of the lands. Let's first see how much money we have and then see if that money will allow us to maintain or develop a site we are thinking of taking over."

She advocates "cooperating and working together between the park district and the village board. After all, we will have two legislative bodies working together for the good of the community."

She suggested, "We should immediately improve in a light way the areas we now have and perhaps work on small projects further away from Emmerich Park for the children of other areas."

She Would Like Beautiful Parks

by ALAN AKERSON

"Everyone should feel their parks are a nice place to go. They shouldn't be ashamed of their parks," said Mrs. Darlene Tufano.

"Beautification of the parks is something I'd certainly like to see. And I'm sure this is not going to be any big problem once the district is formed."

Mrs. Tufano has been a member of the present Buffalo Grove Park Commission for two years. "After being on the commission two years, I feel the need for a park district is so much greater than the people think it is. The park district is just something that should be. We got a late start on it."

"IN THE TWO YEARS I've been on the commission, we've done quite well with programs for little children, but we really haven't had many programs for older kids or adults," Mrs. Tufano said.

In addition to continuing the present programs for children, she wants the district to more adequately serve other age groups. One way of doing this, in Mrs. Tufano's opinion, is to offer residents more educational and cultural programs.

Mrs. Tufano said, "It will be a very difficult situation monetarily after the district is created. I think the people have to become aware of this."

At the same time, she said, "I hate to see the people think that lack of money will bog us down. I really don't feel that way at all. Maybe we won't be able to take giant steps, but I feel the steps that we can take in improving our parks will be worthwhile."

MRS. TUFANO DISCUSSED methods the park district might use to support itself during the interim until it begins receiving tax revenues.

As important as the amount of money the board gives the district, said Mrs. Tufano, "is how we use that money." She said the residents should be aware that the village board cannot lend a great deal of financial support to the new park district.

Mrs. Tufano said that while the district would need a full-time recreation director, "we couldn't afford one immediately after the district is formed." She suggested that volunteers from the community could assist a part-time director at the outset. She said she thought the present park commission had been "lax in getting volunteers."

CONCERNING THE LANDS the village now holds that are slated to be parks, she said "I don't want the village to turn over all the lands immediately. The worst thing we could do is take all the lands. Some of the candidates, I know, do want all the land. I personally don't think we could handle them. I would rather get the land as we can handle and maintain it."

Admitting the matter of when the village should turn over the lands is "a very difficult situation," she said, "I would hate to see the land (stay under village control and) be used for something other than parks. But by the same token, it would be stupid to let the land sit there for five years because we could do nothing about it."

Mrs. Tufano said the village board "will play a large role in determining how the lands are turned over to the district."

Concerning an attorney for the park district, Mrs. Tufano said she would like to see Richard Raysa, the village attorney, be the park district's attorney also. "He has done an awful lot for the park commission," she said. Mrs. Tufano sees "no conflict of interest between the village and the park district if Mr. Raysa is attorney for both."

"EVERY COMMUNITY needs a swimming pool, but we just can't afford one now," said Mrs. Darlene Tufano.

She added, "The way Buffalo Grove is spread out, we need not one, but three pools."

"I WOULD LIKE to see the district begin offering some educational and cultural activities to the community,"

Mrs. Dede Armstrong, a candidate for Buffalo Grove Park District commissioner, said.

Board Screens Applicants

Interviews of applicants for various Wheeling boards and commissions will be tomorrow in the Village Hall at Dundee and Milwaukee roads beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The applicants will be interviewed only if they are new appointees or if a village trustee asks that a reappointed member be interviewed.

The village trustees will conduct the interviews at a meeting of the board's judiciary and purchasing committee.

NEW APPLICANTS to be interviewed include: William Hein, Robert Olson and Ron Potter, for the fire and police commission; Peter Maniatis, Michael Russo and L. D. Andress, for the industrial commission; Michael J. Dorgan, Wilfred Sommer and Ray Waymell, for the plan commission; and John Cargill, Ronald J. Sauer and Margaret Fraser, for the youth commission.

Vacancies still exist on five commissions in the village despite the new applicants, however. The human relations commission needs two members, and the civil defense, industrial, public relations, and youth commissions each lack one member.

REAPPOINTMENTS to the various commissions include Robert Buerger and Wayne Gilbert to the Civil Defense commission; Elmer Lemke, Raymond Kulpins and Joseph Hille to the electrical commission; James Poole to the fire and police commission; Gertrude Trunda, the Rev. Ray Yadron, and Elie Nokimken to the human relations commission; Ray Roach and Donald Duncan to the industrial commission; Earl Towery to the plan commission; Malcolm W. Cashey to the public relations commission; Douglas Cargill to the police pension board; Edward Slepicka to the zoning board; and June Orlowski to the youth commission.

nary plan on a year-to-year basis during the three-year period.

• In lieu of any bonds or guarantees required for public improvements under the ordinances of the village, the owner may give the village an irrevocable letter of credit issued by a licensed banking or financial institution approved by the village for this purpose or other security mutually agreed on in an amount equal to the amount of required bonds or guarantees.

• All regulations and ordinances which relate to or affect the development and construction of improvements, buildings, appurtenances and all other development of any kind and character on the property will remain in effect and be valid and binding upon the parties for five years.

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that, should any existing ordinances affecting the development of the subject property be amended or modified in any manner to impose less restrictive requirements upon development of the property or reduce fees in the village, the less restrictive requirements will benefit the owner of the property and the owner may elect to proceed under the terms of this agreement or upon the amendment or modifications applicable generally to all property within the village.

• The village agrees to enact ordinances and resolutions as are necessary to effectuate the terms of this agreement and to waive all annexation fees and donations of money or land which may be required by the ordinances of the village.

• It is the understanding of the village that Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, Inc., will apply to the Illinois State Racing Board for a change in the hours of thoroughbred racing to permit night racing at the Arlington Park Race Track. The village agrees not to oppose the application for night thoroughbred racing.

• If the owner or any of its subsidiaries holds a valid permit or license for which it has paid a fee to the county, the owner will receive a credit for its unexpired portion if it has to pay a similar village fee instead.

• This agreement will benefit and be binding upon the successors in title of the owner and upon successor corporate authorities of the village and successor municipalities. It will be valid and binding for five years from date of its execution.

• This agreement will be enforceable in any court of competent jurisdiction by any of the parties or by any appropriate action at law or in equity to secure the performance of its covenants. The owner may disconnect the property from the village upon breach of this agreement by the village.

• If this agreement is extended or deferred by court order, the execution of this agreement will be considered deferred until the date on which it becomes effective.

Introductory Program Planned at Kildeer

A get-acquainted program for parents of children attending Kildeer Countryside School in Long Grove will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday at the school.

William Hitzeman, superintendent of School Dist. 96, said the program will feature the introduction of the complete teaching staff. After the introductions, parents will be able to meet informally with the teachers.

Approximately 500 students are enrolled in the school this fall, an increase of about 170 students over last year.

Hitzeman said that four additional teachers were hired to teach the extra students.

The school serves Long Grove and a northern portion of Buffalo Grove.

Evangelical Church Sponsors 'Pal Club'

The Wheeling Evangelical Free Church is sponsoring clubs emphasizing games, crafts, and Bible study this fall for boys and girls who are 8, 9 and 10-years-old.

The "Pal Club" for boys and the "Chum Club" for girls will meet Friday evenings at 7 p.m. beginning this week at Carl Sandburg School on Schoenbeck Road in Wheeling.

BOTH CLUBS ARE part of the Awana Youth Association program.

More information on the clubs is available at 537-1136 or 537-1180.

Snake Bites Teen

Ken Davis, 15, of 15 E. Jeffery in Wheeling was taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines Friday after he was bitten by a snake.

Hospital officials said Ken was kept at the hospital for several hours under observation and then sent home. Police said the snake was captured, but its species was not determined.

Dist. 21 Count Rises to 7,511

Enrollment in Dist. 21 schools was 7,511 as of Sept. 5, Supt. Kenneth Gill announced at Thursday's school board meeting.

The district serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, and parts of Prospect Heights and Arlington Heights.

Gill said the figure represents an increase of about 500 over closing enrollment last June.

"The enrollment increase was smaller than anticipated and will leave the district in good shape to absorb more students during the year," Gill commented.

He said the only building that is overcrowded is Jack London Junior High.

Enrollment in each of the 12 Dist. 21 schools as of Sept. 5 is as follows:

Carl Sandburg, 583; Booth Tarkington, 479; Joyce Kilmer, 680; Walt Whitman, 677.

Troop Pull-Out Set

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is to announce a second round of troop withdrawals from Vietnam today, a move he delayed two weeks because of a step-up in Communist military activity, Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler has announced.

Ziegler refused to confirm a statement from South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky that the United States and South Vietnam had agreed on the withdrawal of 40,500 U.S. troops by the end of November.

Scott Withdraws Name

CHICAGO — Atty. Gen. William J. Scott yesterday withdrew his name from consideration for the appointment to fill the U. S. Senate seat left vacant by the death of Everett M. Dirksen.

Scott bowed out amid reports that Governor Ogilvie had already offered him the Senate seat, but Ogilvie denied offering the appointment to anyone. Ogilvie conferred yesterday with House Speaker Ralph T. Smith and John Henry Altiorer, Ogilvie's opponent in the 1968 gubernatorial primary, concerning the appointment.

Rocks Hamper Search

MANNINGTON, W. Va. — Work crews searching 500 feet underground for the remains of 78 men inside explosion-scarred Mannington No. 9 mine suffered their first setback Monday when they encountered a rock fall and waist-high water.

There was no trace of the missing miners, who were killed in explosions and fires last November.

Ward Offices Bombed

CHICAGO — Firebombs damaged the offices of two North Side aldermen within a 20-minute span early yesterday.

Aldermen George B. McCutcheon of the 43rd Ward and William Slinger of the 44th Ward said they thought the bombings were connected with racial and minority group tensions. Damage at both offices was slight.

New 'Pot' Laws Urged

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. John Mitchell told Congress yesterday youths are turning to marijuana by the thousands while authorities wander in a "never-never land" of archaic laws and scientific ignorance.

He called for new laws to clamp down on mobsters and narcotics peddlers, deal more leniently with youthful drug experimenters and draw a more realistic line between "hard narcotics" and less dangerous drugs such as marijuana.

Want Barrier Removal

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Angry Protestants last night demanded that the British army stop "pussyfooting" and forcibly remove the Roman Catholic barricades in West Belfast.

The Protestants threatened to rebuild their own barriers unless the army moved quickly. The Central Defense Committee, which claims to speak for 75,000 Catholics walled behind the barricades, declared they would not be removed until the British agreed to guarantee demands.

Meyer Endorses Schlickman

In a press conference yesterday, Meyer said he will head up a citizens committee in his community to work for Schlickman for Congress.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has endorsed Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights for the vacant post of 13th District congressman.

Schlickman, a three-term member in the Illinois House of Representatives, is the only Republican candidate for Congress from the four western townships in the eight-township district. Eight other Republican contenders are in the Oct. 7 primary race.

ED SHILLINGTON, Des Plaines eighth ward alderman, also endorsed Schlickman yesterday, his vote of confidence stated during the regular city council meeting. Shillington is a resident of Elk Grove Township, part of the 13th District.

Meyer recalled he first met Schlickman in 1960 at a Northwest Municipal Conference (NMC) meeting when both were beginning in municipal government. Meyer was an alderman and Schlickman an Arlington Heights trustee.

Meyer said he will be back to the conference meeting tomorrow to promote his candidate among other local mayors and managers. The conference does not endorse political candidates, he acknowledged.

"As mayor of Rolling Meadows and as a municipal official for the past nine years, I believe that people who have served at the local level know the needs of towns better than those who have not served," Meyer said in endorsing Schlickman.

"IF WE ARE going to have people representing us, we must have people that know us," Meyer continued. "Gene Schlickman has represented Rolling Meadows in the legislature and has done an effective job for us," he added.

The mayor said Schlickman is the only candidate who has the qualifications of working in both local and state government. He said he made his decision to support a congressional candidate after reviewing problems of the district, issues, candidates and qualifications.

Meyer declared, after this review, "Schlickman is, in my opinion, the only well-qualified candidate in the race." He said he will urge all those he knows to vote for his candidate.

"He has taken the time to meet with the municipal officials of the many communities he now represents in the district and shows potential of listening to our problems in the future."

SCHLICKMAN replied that both he and

Track To Unveil Plans for Growth

Local residents looking into the crystal ball tonight may see a sports arena, almost carte blanche zoning rights and fire, police and railway stations at Arlington Park Race Track.

The future of the race track may be disclosed as representatives of Gulf and Western, which recently acquired the track, meet at 8 p.m. with the Arlington Heights Village Board to discuss a pre-annexation agreement.

REPORTS IN THE VILLAGE also say that Mrs. Marje Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises and operator of the track, will be in attendance.

Gulf and Western headquarters in New York could give no other details yesterday of corporate officials coming to Arlington Heights.

Basis for preliminary talks tonight will be the park's proposed 19-point agreement between the track and the village outlining the contingencies upon which any annexation will proceed. Acceptance of the 19 points will make the track property the most valuable in the Northwest suburbs.

Village officials disclosed some weeks ago that the Gulf and Western representatives may eventually put $700 million into the development of the track and surrounding land into an activities center "which would make night racing very small in comparison." The 19-point plan to be discussed tonight is as follows:

- The village agrees to annex the territory on the terms and conditions in this agreement.

- The village agrees to enact, simultaneously with the annexation, ordinances reclassifying, all of the subject property as set forth here.

- The village agrees to reclassify the subject property from the R-1 one-family dwelling district, on annexation, to the B-3 general service, wholesale and motor vehicle district, and to grant special use permits when required for the installation and operation of the existing race track, golf courses, sports arena and other such special uses which are not otherwise permitted under the provisions of the B-3 zoning district regulations.

THE ARTICLE ALSO SAYS the property is to be considered a planned development, which will allow but not be limited to the construction of high-rise multiple dwelling buildings, a race track, hotels and motels, sports arena, theaters, convention hall, office buildings, restaurants, commercial retail establishments and service stations. Such buildings will not be subject to the height limitations of the zoning ordinance of the village.

- The village agrees to amend its liquor control ordinance so as to permit sufficient liquor licenses to be issued upon approval of annexation. The liquor control ordinances are to permit licenses for closing hours similar to Cook County's provisions.

- The village agrees to furnish any required additional police protection for the effective management of crowds and traffic control. If requested by the owner, the village will, within five years, erect a suitable police substation within the area, provided that the owner donate, without cost to the village, a suitable site for police substation selected by the owner and approved by the village.

- The article says that within five years, if requested by the owner, the village will provide a fire substation on the property and staff it with the necessary firemen. The village may, if it desires, combine the site of the fire substation with the police substation provided above.

- The village agrees to join the owner in a petition to the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) to locate a new passenger station for the Chicago and North Western R.R. at an appropriate location within the subject property. If the ICC orders cost-sharing, the village agrees to pay its share toward the cost of the station.

- The village agrees to assume the operation of existing water and sewer facilities.

Con-Con Forum Set

The 16 Third District candidates for Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) delegate seats will make a rare appearance on the same stage Thursday night when the League of Women Voters (LWV) of several area communities sponsor a districtwide candidates' night at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

The forum will be one of the last chances for voters in the district to hear the candidates before next Tuesday's primary election.

In that election, four of the 16 will advance to the general election on Nov. 12. Two candidates will be elected delegates in each of the state's 58 senatorial districts.

'Mama Don' 'Low Oxen Here'

by ANNE SLAVICEK

If you live in Wheeling you can't park your horse, ox or mule on the sidewalk. And you haven't been able to since September, 1894, when the village board passed an ordinance prohibiting it.

A copy of "Ordinance No. 2, an Ordinance To Define and Provide of Punishment of Misdemeanors," as well as several other laws dating back to the turn of the century, turned up last week during preparations for moving from the present Wheeling village hall to the new one.

The ordinances don't apply anymore because the laws have since been codified, according to M. O. Horcher, Wheeling police chief.

OTHER LAWS prohibited residents from disrupting worship services by "any menace, profane swearing, vulgar language or any disorderly or unusual conduct" and from "firing cannons, guns, fowling pieces, pistols, firearms or fire-crackers on Sunday."

It was also illegal to torture animals or promote dog-fights, prize-fights, or cock-fighting in the village.

Children's play activities were also regulated. "No person shall in any place in the said village fly kites, throw stones, trundle hoops, play ball or engage in any sport or exercise likely to frighten horses, injure passengers, 'embarrass' the passage of vehicles or obstruct the business of other persons," according to Section 23 of Ordinance No. 2.

Citizens also weren't allowed to keep dead animals, unless they buried them. Residents were not to walk around with concealed weapons, including pistols, revolvers, sling shots, knuckles, knives or daggers, unless they had the permission of the village president.

IT WAS ALSO illegal to post handbills advertising cures for "what are called the 'secret diseases'."

The village fathers looked out for wildlife in the village by making it illegal to kill or trap any "robin, bluebird, swallow, martin, mosquito hawk, whip-poor-will, cuckoo, woodpecker, catbird, brown thrasher, humming cherry bird, yellow bird, oriole or bob-link."

It was also unlawful to bell an animal if it annoyed other people.

Health was important in the village, and the trustees prohibited persons from dumping trash in the street. The ordinance lists objectionable: trash, including "old boots, old tin and straw."

A billboard, a modern medium for advertising, was also illegal if it "obstructed the light or view of any other person, or the free circulation of the air."

A HEALTH ORDINANCE passed in the fall of 1894 required that people see "respectable" physicians. The ordinance authorized a spring cleanup each May followed by an inspection by the village marshal and the village street commissioner of every "yard, barn lot, pig-sty, cellar or privy" in the village.

A later ordinance, passed in September, 1912, exists only in a handwritten copy. It provides that owners of motor vehicles must be sure their mufflers are in working condition.

Expect Big Crowd

When the Palatine Pirates meet the Arlington Heights Cardinals on Oct. 17 at 2 p.m. Saturday, it will be the first time in 21 years the field has been used for an inter-scholastic football game.

In preparation for the game between the front-runners in the Mid-Suburban League championship, school personnel and village officials have been working on a traffic flow pattern to limit congestion.

"I think this will be the largest crowd this year," Robert Centner, Palatine police chief, says.

The field has new bleachers with a seating capacity of more than 2,000 built early this fall by parents and friends of the football team.

A FENCE PURCHASED from the Ost Field Fund will seal off entrance to the bleachers except at the east end.

"We are trying to place the entrance near where most cars will be parking," Centner said. "I hope this will also discourage people from parking in the residential areas west of the field on Fremont and Lincoln."

Parking will be available in the park district lot on Wood Street, the Sanborn School lot on Oak Street, the Palatine High School parking lot beside the east entrance, and both sides of Wood Street in front of the high school.

"This should provide ample parking most of the time, with overflow parking on the west side of Mozart and down Wood Street to the Northwest Highway."

Parking will be allowed on Highway 14, Northwest Highway, from Wood Street to Palatine Road.

"RIGHT NOW there is no parking allowed on the east side of Fremont. We hope to have that changed to no parking on either side of the street, but it may not be done by the first football game," Centner said. "People should watch the signs."

There will be no parking on Colfax Street.

"We will have officers at the game for traffic direction after the game, but not before. Cars arrive for a game from 12 noon to 2 p.m., so there is not much congestion then."

For five years the Pirates played their home games at Hale Hildebrandt field at Fremd High School. Before that the team used the city park field for night football games.

The village agrees it will not exercise the power of eminent domain for the acquisition of real estate or personal property for public use within the park property.

If the owner chooses to subdivide the subject property, the owner may submit and the village will approve, from time to time, portions of the property for preliminary and final plats of subdivision and re-subdivision as separate units in accordance with this agreement.

The village agrees that any approval of a preliminary plat will be effective for three years from the date of its approval without the owner renewing the preliminary plat on a year-to-year basis during the three-year period.

In lieu of any bonds or guarantees required for public improvements under the ordinances of the village, the owner may give the village an irrevocable letter of credit issued by a licensed banking or financial institution approved by the village for this purpose or other security mutually agreed on in an amount equal to the amount of required bonds or guarantees.

All regulations and ordinances which relate or affect the development and construction of improvements, buildings, appurtenances and all other development of any kind and character on the property will remain in effect and be valid and binding upon the parties for five years.

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that, should any existing ordinances affecting the development of the subject property be amended or modified in any manner to impose less restrictive requirements upon development of the property or reduce fees in the village, the less restrictive requirements will benefit the owner of the property and the owner may elect to proceed under the terms of this agreement or upon the amendment or modifications applicable generally to all property within the village.

The village agrees to enact ordinances and resolutions as are necessary to effectuate the terms of this agreement and to

With white collar jobs common to the suburban man, the Countryside YMCA has initiated a physical fitness program to condition the desk-bound worker.

The class, known as the Tiger Club, will feature exercise periods and intermittent testing to determine the individual's development.

"WORK-OUT" and jogging periods will be followed by volleyball games for recreation and relaxation.

The program, led by Rudy Krolop, will meet Mondays at Sanborn School and Wednesdays at Plum Grove School in Palatine from 5:30 to 7 p.m.

Krolop said the program will strengthen the heart and circulatory system and improve the condition of the participant.

Winners Told

Winners of the Balloon-A-Thon contest held during Palatine's Sidewalk Days recently were announced by the chamber of commerce.

Locally, Dorothy Tice, 308 N. Mozart who is 4-years-old, received the prize of a Schwinn Stingray bicycle for releasing the balloon which traveled the farthest distance.

A BALLOON WITH a postcard attached giving Dorothy's name was found near Francesville, Indiana by Harry Malchow. He received a transistor radio for returning the card.

During Sidewalk Days last month, more than 1,000 balloons with attached postcards were released from Palatine's downtown area.

Annual Peace Day To Be Celebrated

The theme of "Youth for One World" will mark the celebration of the Palatine Baha'i community's annual World Peace Day Sunday.

A public meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel S. Allison, 428 West Hellen, to discuss the spiritual destiny of America. A talk will be given by Mrs. Rizvanieh E. Collestaneh of Oak Park, a Baha'i since birth.

Born in Iran, Mrs. Collestaneh has traveled widely through Europe and pioneered to teach the faith in Great Britain, India, Libya and Tunisia. Her occupations include librarian, teacher-lecturer, translator and radio announcer for Teheran and New Delhi. She speaks Persian, Arabic and English.

A SOCIALLY ORIENTED religion, Baha'i hopes to focus the nation's eyes on the goal of world peace. Sensing the cry for peace among college and high school students, Baha'i community dedicated its holiday to youth's desires for harmony.

Baha'i communities are in over 2,500 cities throughout the United States.

The faith centers around the ideas of the prophet-founder Baha'u'llah who sees all religions stemming from the same divine source. For the Baha'i religion, truth is relative, not absolute and constantly gains new meaning in the changing times.

BAHA'ULAH TEACHES the oneness of mankind as a central part of the faith. Thus the community's members are often involved in struggles for the rights of man. ## Brown Named Campaign Head For Sam Young

The second of two Palatine Township Republican officials to join the 13th District congressional campaign of Samuel H. Young said Young is "truly representative of the average Republican voter, more so than any other candidate."

Clayton Brown, a Palatine village trustee and former area chairman of the Republican organization, has been named chairman of the Young campaign in the village. Only last week, Charles K. Allen of Rolling Meadows, deputy Republican committeeman, was named Palatine township chairman for Young.

Palatine Township's Regular Republican Organization has endorsed Philip M. Crane for the congressional seat left vacant by the appointment of former Congressman Donald Rumsfeld as head of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

YOUNG AND CRANE WERE considered the two front runners for the endorsement and it took several ballots before the nod went to Crane. There are nine Republicans seeking the GOP nomination in the Oct. 7 primary election. The winner will meet Democrat Edward Warman on Nov. 25.

Young said the support of Allen and Brown is "extremely gratifying." He said their background provides the campaign "with major reasons for optimism."

Brown has been a resident of Palatine since 1952 and has been trustee for two years. He is vice president of Midwest Iron Works Co., Chicago.

'Jumbos' Are Quiet

Jumbo jets will be significantly more quiet than airliners now in use, according to Cpt. W. P. Rushing of United Air Lines.

Speaking before about 50 members of the Palatine Rotary Club Monday, Rushing said the Boeing 747 jumbo jets will make less noise than the Boeing 707s now in use.

He said it is remarkable that an engine of the size being put into the 747s will be quieter, but that is what the manufacturer has claimed.

THOUGH THE 747 is only slightly faster than conventional airlines — it can cut 30 minutes off a flight from Seattle to Europe — the increased speed is not one of the main reasons why the aircraft is being purchased by the airlines.

The purpose behind the 747 is to reduce the number of departures from the nation's airports and cut down on the congestion, Rushing said.

Rushing said there were 18½ million departures at airports last year and that in 1975 there will be 25 million.

Anything that can cut this congestion will help, he said, because by 1975 then 2½ more people will be flying than now.

RUSHING ACKNOWLEDGED that the 747 will create problems at airports which serve the jumbos but said these problems will have to be solved.

Pan American Airlines will be the first to put the 370-passenger 747 into service this December.

Troop Pull-Out Set

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is to announce a second round of troop withdrawals from Vietnam today, a move he delayed two weeks because of a step-up in Communist military activity, Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler has announced.

Ziegler refused to confirm a statement from South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky that the United States and South Vietnam had agreed on the withdrawal of 40,500 U.S. troops by the end of November.

Scott Withdraws Name

CHICAGO — Atty. Gen. William J. Scott yesterday withdrew his name from consideration for the appointment to fill the U. S. Senate seat left vacant by the death of Everett M. Dirksen.

Scott bowed out amid reports that Governor Ogilvie had already offered him the Senate seat, but Ogilvie denied offering the appointment to anyone. Ogilvie confided yesterday with House Speaker Ralph T. Smith and John Henry Aikoff, Ogilvie's opponent in the 1968 gubernatorial primary, concerning the appointment.

Rocks Hamper Search

MANNINGTON, W. Va. — Work crews searching 500 feet underground for the remains of 78 men inside explosion-scarred Mannington No. 9 mine suffered their first setback Monday when they encountered a rock fall and waist-high water.

There was no trace of the missing miners, who were killed in explosions and fires last November.

Ward Offices Bombed

CHICAGO — Firebombs damaged the offices of two North Side aldermen within a 20-minute span early yesterday.

Aldermen George B. McCutcheon of the 43rd Ward and William Singer of the 44th Ward said they thought the bombings were connected with racial and minority group tensions. Damage at both offices was slight.

New 'Pot' Laws Urged

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. John Mitchell told Congress yesterday youths are turning to marijuana by the thousands while authorities wander in a "never-never land" of archaic laws and scientific ignorance.

He called for new laws to clamp down on mobsters and narcotics peddlers, deal more leniently with youthful drug experimenters and draw a more realistic line between "hard narcotics" and less dangerous drugs such as marijuana.

Want Barrier Removal

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Angry Protestants last night demanded that the British army stop "pissfooting" and forcibly remove the Roman Catholic barricades in West Belfast.

The Protestants threatened to rebuild their own barriers unless the army moved quickly. The Central Defense Committee, which claims to speak for 75,000 Catholics, walked behind the barricades, declared they would not be removed until the British agreed to guarantee demands.

THE FIRST DAY of classes at Harper Junior College, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine, found students searching for classrooms and parking spaces. Just-completed buildings and workmen provided the scholarly backdrop.

Meyer Endorses Schlickman

In a press conference yesterday, Meyer said he will head up a citizens committee in his community to work for Schlickman for Congress.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has endorsed Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights for the vacant post of 13th District congressman.

Schlickman, a three-term member in the Illinois House of Representatives, is the only Republican candidate for Congress from the four western townships in the eight-township district. Eight other Republican contenders are in the Oct. 7 primary race.

ED SHILLINGTON, Des Plaines eighth ward alderman, also endorsed Schlickman yesterday, his vote of confidence stated during the regular city council meeting. Shillington is a resident of Elk Grove Township, part of the 13th District.

Meyer recalled he first met Schlickman in 1960 at a Northwest Municipal Conference (NMC) meeting when both were beginning in municipal government. Meyer was an alderman and Schlickman an Arlington Heights trustee.

Meyer said he will be back to the conference meeting tomorrow to promote his candidate among other local mayors and managers. The conference does not endorse political candidates, he acknowledged.

"As mayor of Rolling Meadows and as a municipal official for the past nine years, I believe that people who have served at the local level know the needs of towns better than those who have not served," Meyer said in endorsing Schlickman.

"IF WE ARE going to have people representing us, we must have people that know us," Meyer continued. "Gene Schlickman has represented Rolling Meadows in the legislature and has done an effective job for us," he added.

The mayor said Schlickman is the only candidate who has the qualifications of working in both local and state government. He said he made his decision to support a congressional candidate after reviewing problems of the district, issues, candidates and qualifications.

Meyer declared, after this review, "Schlickman is, in my opinion, the only well-qualified candidate in the race." He said he will urge all those he knows to vote for his candidate.

"He has taken the time to meet with the municipal officials of the many communities he now represents in the district and shows potential of listening to our problems in the future."

SCHLICKMAN replied that both he and

Track To Unveil Plans for Growth

Local residents looking into the crystal ball tonight may see a sports arena, almost carte blanche zoning rights and fire, police and railway stations at Arlington Park Race Track.

The future of the race track may be disclosed as representatives of Gulf and Western, which recently acquired the track, meet at 8 p.m. with the Arlington Heights Village Board to discuss a pre-annexation agreement.

REPORTS IN THE VILLAGE also say that Mrs. Marje Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises and operator of the track, will be in attendance. Gulf and Western headquarters in New York could give no other details yesterday of corporate officials coming to Arlington Heights.

Basis for preliminary talks tonight will be the park's proposed 19-point agreement between the track and the village outlining the contingencies upon which any annexation will proceed. Acceptance of the 19 points will make the track property the most valuable in the Northwest suburbs.

Village officials disclosed some weeks ago that the Gulf and Western representatives may eventually put $700 million into the development of the track and surrounding land into an activities center "which would make night racing very small in comparison." The 19-point plan to be discussed tonight is as follows:

- The village agrees to annex the territory on the terms and conditions in this agreement.

- The village agrees to enact, simultaneously with the annexation, ordinances reclassifying, all of the subject property as set forth here.

- The village agrees to reclassify the subject property from the R-1 one-family dwelling district, on annexation, to the B-3 general service, wholesale and motor vehicle district, and to grant special use permits when required for the installation and operation of the existing race track, golf courses, sports arena and other such special uses which are not otherwise permitted under the provisions of the B-3 zoning district regulations.

THE ARTICLE ALSO SAYS the property is to be considered a planned development, which will allow but not be limited to the construction of high-rise multiple dwelling buildings, a race track, hotels and motels, sports arena, theaters, convention hall, office buildings, restaurants, commercial retail establishments and service stations. Such buildings will not be subject to the height limitations of the zoning ordinance of the village.

- The village agrees to amend its liquor control ordinance so as to permit sufficient liquor licenses to be issued upon approval of annexation. The liquor control ordinances are to permit licenses for closing hours similar to Cook County's provisions.

- The village agrees to furnish any required additional police protection for the effective management of crowds and traffic control. If requested by the owner, the village will, within five years, erect a suitable police substation within the area, provided that the owner donate, without cost to the village, a suitable site for police substation selected by the owner and approved by the village.

- The article says that within five years, if requested by the owner, the village will provide a fire substation on the property and staff it with the necessary firemen. The village may, if it desires, combine the site of the fire substation with the police substation provided above.

- The village agrees to join the owner in a petition to the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) to locate a new passenger station for the Chicago and North Western R.R. at an appropriate location within the subject property. If the ICC orders cost-sharing, the village agrees to pay its share toward the cost of the station.

- The village agrees to assume the operation of existing water and sewer facilities.

'Mama Don' 'Low Oxen Here'

by ANNE SLAVICEK

If you live in Wheeling you can't park your horse, ox or mule on the sidewalk. And you haven't been able to since September, 1894, when the village board passed an ordinance prohibiting it.

A copy of "Ordinance No. 2, an Ordinance To Define and Provide of Punishment of Misdemeanors," as well as several other laws dating back to the turn of the century, turned up last week during preparations for moving from the present Wheeling village hall to the new one.

The ordinances don't apply anymore because the laws have since been codified, according to M. O. Horcher, Wheeling police chief.

OTHER LAWS prohibited residents from disrupting worship services by "any menace, profane swearing, vulgar language or any disorderly or unusual conduct" and from "firing cannons, guns, fowling pieces, pistols, firearms or fire-crackers on Sunday."

It was also illegal to torture animals or promote dog-fights, prize-fights, or cock-fighting in the village.

Children's play activities were also regulated. "No person shall in any place in the said village fly kites, throw stones, trundle hoops, play ball or engage in any sport or exercise likely to frighten horses, injure passengers, embarrass the passage of vehicles or obstruct the business of other persons," according to Section 23 of Ordinance No. 2.

Citizens also weren't allowed to keep dead animals, unless they buried them. Residents were not to walk around with concealed weapons, including pistols, revolvers, sling shots, knives or daggers, unless they had the permission of the village president.

IT WAS ALSO illegal to post handbills advertising cures for "what are called the 'secret diseases'."

The meeting is open to all women in the area interested in activities of the group.

'Jumbos' Are Quiet

Jumbo jets will be significantly more quiet than airliners now in use, according to Cpt. W. P. Rushing of United Air Lines.

Speaking before about 50 members of the Palatine Rotary Club Monday, Rushing said the Boeing 747 jumbo jets will make less noise than the Boeing 707s now in use.

He said it is remarkable that an engine of the size being put into the 747s will be quieter, but that is what the manufacturer has claimed.

THOUGH THE 747 is only slightly faster than conventional airlines — it can cut 30 minutes off a flight from Seattle to Europe — the increased speed is not one of the main reasons why the aircraft is being purchased by the airlines.

The purpose behind the 747 is to reduce the number of departures from the nation's airports and cut down on the congestion, Rushing said.

Rushing said there were 18½ million departures at airports last year and that in 1973 there will be 25 million.

Anything that can cut this congestion will help, he said, because by 1975 then 2½ more people will be flying than now.

RUSHING ACKNOWLEDGED that the 747 will create problems at airports which serve the jumbos but said these problems will have to be solved.

Pan American Airlines will be the first to put the 370-passenger 747 into service this December.

District 57 OKs Budget

Following a public hearing Dist. 57 Board members unanimously adopted their 1969-70 school budget.

Totals finalized Monday will be reflected in the 1969 tax bills received locally in the spring of 1970.

Education fund expenditures will be

$3,055,612; building fund, $547,885; bond and interest, $310,500; transportation, $52,500; Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund, $45,000; site and construction, $8,666, and $104,250 for life safety work.

Bonds of $275,000 authorized in a March referendum for additions to Gregory and Sunset Park schools have not yet been sold. Adverse market conditions have delayed the sale. Because of this the estimated tax rate for the bond and interest bonds will drop .0284 offsetting gains in IMRS and transportation of .0204 and .0153.

WHAT THIS MEANS TO the taxpayer is that his tax rate established from the spread of the levy against the total district assessed value of $88 million or more may hold at the small increase of .0093 per $100 assessed value.

Transfers made Monday night from the building fund budget to the educational fund set the financial stage for an addition to Lincoln Junior High partially paid with tax anticipation warrants against the building fund.

Board members made these arrangements just in case the referendum in October to raise the building construction funds is denied by the voters.

The educational budget allows for TAWs up to $700,000, depending on when spring taxes are received. Up to $200,000 has been established for the building fund.

Board members say the budget will "look lopsided on paper" if the referendum passes, but will actually be strained over a longer period if it fails. Some custodial salaries and building maintenance expenses were among the funds transferred.

J. C. Busenhardt, assistant superintendent, said he believes the district will not spend the total estimated construction cost at Lincoln next year if the referendum fails. Therefore the budget does not reflect the total funds needed to building the smaller Plan A proposed for Lincoln, he told the board.

Board members rejected Busenhardt's proposal for a working cash fund levy of .050 per $100. They also pointed out that a board request for a $1,000 reduction in travel expenditures per district personnel was applied by the administration only to recruitment travel.

DONNY HUTCHINGS, a graduate of Prospect High School, played the Misunderstood Witch at a theater party held at Central School by the Mount Prospect Library Saturday.

The party was to honor the children who became members of the Polar Bear Reading Club this summer.

Congreve to Talk

Tonight ex-mayor Dan Congreve has been scheduled to be heard by the Mount Prospect Village Board on charges he made two weeks ago against John Zimmerman, village attorney.

Congreve had charged that Zimmerman was remiss in his duties for not taking court action against local builder Salvatore DiMucci for allegedly "altering" a public record after it had been approved by the village board.

He made the charge in a letter he sent to Zimmerman and the board of trustees. Later Mayor Robert Teichert invited him to be publicly heard on the charge.

The record in question was a plat of subdivision for a small parcel of land at Golf Road and Route 83. Village officials had approved the plat last summer and were aware of the changes made on the original linen when they asked DiMucci to submit a new one.

ANOTHER MATTER Congreve will be asked to explain is his criticism of the way open occupancy at the Countryside Bank, located at Route 83 and Golf Road, was handled by village officials.

And the last charge he is to explain is why the last public hearing for Farmer Cooper's Inc., held in August, is technically invalid.

Congreve holds there were two legal defects in the handling of the hearing. Howard Cooper, owner of the restaurant, was seeking to have his property at 305 E. Kensington Road, rezoned from residential with a nonconforming use to commercial.

Also on the list of citizens to be heard is Cooper himself, who will answer charges he made last week against Congreve and enter a plea to have his zoning request approved. Cooper has said the ex-mayor used "his political power and influence to kill Farmer Cooper's in every way possible."

The meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the village hall and Congreve and Cooper are slated to be heard early in the night.

MIKE LEONARD, a local storyteller and actor, brought the wicked Captain Hook to life with dialogue and songs from the Broadway musical "Peter Pan" at Central School Saturday. The show was for the 484 children who acquired membership in the Polar Bear Reading Club, sponsored by the Mount Prospect Library this summer.

Scott Withdraws Name

CHICAGO — Atty Gen William J. Scott yesterday withdrew his name from consideration for the appointment to fill the U. S. Senate seat left vacant by the death of Everett M. Dirksen.

Scott bowed out amid reports that Governor Ogilvie had already offered him the Senate seat, but Ogilvie denied offering the appointment to anyone. Ogilvie conferred yesterday with House Speaker Ralph T. Smith and John Henry Altfer, Ogilvie's opponent in the 1968 gubernatorial primary, concerning the appointment.

Troop Pull-Out Set

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is to announce a second round of troop withdrawals from Vietnam today, a move he delayed two weeks because of a step-up in Communist military activity, Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler has announced.

Ziegler refused to confirm a statement from South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky that the United States and South Vietnam had agreed on the withdrawal of 40,500 U.S. troops by the end of November.

Rocks Hamper Search

MANNINGTON, W. Va. — Work crews searching 500 feet underground for the remains of 78 men inside explosion-scarred Mannington No. 9 mine suffered their first setback Monday when they encountered a rock fall and waist-high water.

There was no trace of the missing miners, who were killed in explosions and fires last November.

Ward Offices Bombed

CHICAGO — Firebombs damaged the offices of two North Side aldermen within a 20-minute span early yesterday.

Aldermen George B. McCutcheon of the 43rd Ward and William Singer of the 44th Ward said they thought the bombings were connected with racial and minority group tensions. Damage at both offices was slight.

New 'Pot' Laws Urged

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. John Mitchell told Congress yesterday youths are turning to marijuana by the thousands while authorities wander in a "never-never land" of archaic laws and scientific ignorance.

He called for new laws to clamp down on mobsters and narcotics peddlers, deal more leniently with youthful drug experimenters and draw a more realistic line between "hard narcotics" and less dangerous drugs such as marijuana.

Want Barrier Removal

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Angry Protestants last night demanded that the British army stop "pussyfooting" and forcibly remove the Roman Catholic barricades in West Belfast.

The Protestants threatened to rebuild their own barriers unless the army moved quickly. The Central Defense Committee, which claims to speak for 75,000 Catholics, called for the removal of the British army's guarantee demands.

New Car Buy OKd

The Mount Prospect Park District will buy a new station wagon this year but under no conditions will it be a red one.

"I'd like to see us get a color other than red. The one we have now is red and we look like the fire department," said Park Comr. Roland Becker.

The bid for the new vehicle was awarded to George Poole Ford of Arlington Heights, less the trade-in, in the amount of $2,721 with the stipulation made that it be any color other than red.

Tom Cooper, park district superintendent, was then authorized to make the purchase with delivery to be made in four to six weeks.

IN OTHER ACTION the district authorized purchase of a trencher for $2,800 and a golf utility cart for $850. Other items the district will purchase in the future are $2,000 worth of radio equipment for district vehicles; 300 chairs, and irrigation equipment.

A report on the plans and preliminary drawings for the proposed new Lions Park Community Center was presented by Bill Mercer, one of the architects. Following this the board adjourned to Sept. 22, at which time bids will be received for various park development work at Brentwood, Countryside, Devonshire, Einstein, East Emerson, Owens, Fairview, High Ridge Knolls, and Robert Frost parks.

At one point during the meeting four citizens asked Board Pres. Robert Jackson when discussion of West Park would be on the agenda.

"WE WERE PROMISED a park and we didn't get it. A lot has been said and nothing happened. Maybe it's time we did something." The residents claimed they were from Colonial Heights.

Jackson said, "We're in sympathy with you. The park district is legally committed to buy West Park and is doing everything in its power to do so."

Charge Car Beating To Angry Young Owner

Douglas Johnson, 19, got so confounded angry at his car early yesterday, because it wasn't running right, that he started beating it with a tire iron out in Mount Prospect Plaza.

Johnson, who lives at 1130 Wheeling Road, Mount Prospect, didn't get away with bullying his car, though. Police saw what he was doing and charged him with disorderly conduct.

Johnson, a machine operator, was released on $25 bond and will come to court on the charge Oct. 22.

Meyer Endorses Schlickman

In a press conference yesterday, Meyer said he will head up a citizens committee in his community to work for Schlickman for Congress.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has endorsed Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights for the vacant post of 13th District congressman.

Schlickman, a three-term member in the Illinois House of Representatives, is the only Republican candidate for Congress from the four western townships in the eight-township district. Eight other Republican contenders are in the Oct. 7 primary race.

ED SHILLINGTON, Des Plaines eighth ward alderman, also endorsed Schlickman yesterday, his vote of confidence stated during the regular city council meeting. Shillington is a resident of Elk Grove Township, part of the 13th District.

Meyer recalled he first met Schlickman in 1960 at a Northwest Municipal Conference (NMC) meeting when both were beginning in municipal government. Meyer was an alderman and Schlickman an Arlington Heights trustee.

Meyer said he will be back to the conference meeting tomorrow to promote his candidate among other local mayors and managers. The conference does not endorse political candidates, he acknowledged.

"As mayor of Rolling Meadows and as a municipal official for the past nine years, I believe that people who have served at the local level know the needs of towns better than those who have not served," Meyer said in endorsing Schlickman.

"IF WE ARE going to have people representing us, we must have people that know us," Meyer continued. "Gene Schlickman has represented Rolling Meadows in the legislature and has done an effective job for us," he added.

The mayor said Schlickman is the only candidate who has the qualifications of working in both local and state government. He said he made his decision to support a congressional candidate after reviewing problems of the district, issues, candidates and qualifications.

Meyer declared, after this review, "Schlickman is, in my opinion, the only well-qualified candidate in the race." He said he will urge all those he knows to vote for his candidate.

"He has taken the time to meet with the municipal officials of the many communities he now represents in the district and shows potential of listening to our problems in the future."

SCHLICKMAN replied that both he and Meyer in the past have always stood up for municipalities' best interests.

"I'm appreciative of your support and hope we can continue to strengthen local government," Schlickman said.

Candidates To Speak Tomorrow

The 16 Third District candidates for Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) delegate seats will make a rare appearance on the same stage Thursday night when the League of Women Voters (LWV) of several area communities sponsor a districtwide candidates' night at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

The forum will be one of the last chances for voters in the district to hear the candidates before next Tuesday's primary election.

In that election, four of the 16 will advance to the general election on Nov. 18. Two candidates will be elected delegates in each of the state's 58 senatorial districts.

THURSDAY'S SESSION will begin at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall meeting room on the lower level of Randhurst.

Because of the large number of candidates, the program has been divided into four parts.

Each part will have four candidates, whose names will be chosen by lot at the beginning of the program. The candidates will each have time to make a short presentation and after the four have spoken, there will be a question and answer period.

An LWV spokesman said the program should end by 10 p.m.

THE 16 candidates, and the order in which their names will appear on the primary ballot next Tuesday, are listed:

—Wilfred L. Robbins, 1808 W. Pheasant Trail, Mount Prospect.

—Robert A. Bush, 726 Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

—Annis F. Bush, 107 E. Council Trail, Mount Prospect.

—Lester A. Bonaguro, Arlington Heights;

—Douglas Roy Cannon, 8 N. Louis St., Mount Prospect.

—Eugene L. Griffin, 603 Thorntree Terrace, Arlington Heights.

Golf Clubs Are Taken

George Damato of Elmwood Park reported to Mount Prospect police a golf bag containing a set of woods, irons and 12 golf balls was stolen from his car at Old Orchard Country Club Sunday.

Police reported that the car showed no signs of forcible entry and that the burglar may have used a master key to enter Damato's trunk. Mount Prospect detectives are still investigating the case.

Flaming Can Doused

When Bob Puryear was driving home from work early Friday morning, he spotted a burning can of paint in the middle of Busse Road, just north of Lincoln, in Mount Prospect.

Puryear, of 502 S. Crestwood, Mount Prospect, stopped and did his best to beat the fire out, then summoned firemen, who doused the rest of it.

PURYEAR TOLD FIREMEN that when he came upon the can, there was a "solid wall of flames" 30-feet long stretched across Busse Road, leading into some bushes.

Firemen said the can contained a liquid similar to gasoline and reported the fire did no damage.

Track To Unveil Growth Plan

Local residents looking into the crystal ball tonight may see a sports arena, almost carte blanche zoning rights and fire, police and railway stations at Arlington Park Race Track.

The future of the race track may be disclosed as representatives of Gulf and Western, which recently acquired the track, meet at 8 p.m. with the Arlington Heights Village Board to discuss a pre-annexation agreement.

REPORTS IN THE VILLAGE also say that Mrs. Marjo Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises and operator of the track, will be in attendance.

Gulf and Western headquarters in New York could give no other details yesterday of corporate officials coming to Arlington Heights.

Basis for preliminary talks tonight will be the park's proposed 19-point agreement between the track and the village outlining the contingencies upon which any annexation will proceed.

Acceptance of the 19 points will make the track property the most valuable in the Northwest suburbs.

Village officials disclosed some weeks ago that the Gulf and Western representatives may eventually put $700 million into the development of the track and surrounding land into an activities center "which would make night racing very small in comparison." The 19-point plan to be discussed tonight is as follows:

- The village agrees to annex the territory on the terms and conditions in this agreement.

- The village agrees to enact, simultaneously with the annexation, ordinances reclassifying, all of the subject property as set forth here.

- The village agrees to reclassify the subject property from the R-1 one-family dwelling district, on annexation, to the B-3 general service, wholesale and motor vehicle district, and to grant special use permits when required for the installation and operation of the existing race track, golf courses, sports arena and other such special uses which are not otherwise permitted under the provisions of the B-3 zoning district regulations.

THE ARTICLE ALSO SAYS the property is to be considered a planned development, which will allow but not be limited to the construction of high-rise multiple dwelling buildings, a race track, hotels and motels, sports arena, theaters, convention hall, office buildings, restaurants, commercial retail establishments and service stations. Such buildings will not be subject to the height limitations of the zoning ordinance of the village.

- The village agrees to amend its liquor control ordinance so as to permit sufficient liquor licenses to be issued upon approval of annexation. The liquor control ordinances are to permit licenses for closing hours similar to Cook County's provisions.

- The village agrees to furnish any required additional police protection for the effective management of crowds and traffic control. If requested by the owner, the village will, within five years, erect a suitable police substation within the area, provided that the owner donate, without cost to the village, a suitable site for police substation selected by the owner and approved by the village.

- The article says that within five years, if requested by the owner, the village will provide a fire substation on the property and staff it with the necessary firemen. The village may, if it desires, combine the site of the fire substation with the police substation provided above.

- The village agrees to join the owner in a petition to the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) to locate a new passenger station for the Chicago and North Western R.R. at an appropriate location within the subject property. If the ICC orders cost-sharing, the village agrees to pay its share toward the cost of the station.

- The village agrees to assume the operation of existing water and sewer facilities on the subject property at the owner's request to provide additional water and sewer facilities for the property.

- The village agrees it will not exercise the power of eminent domain for the acquisition of real estate or personal property for public use within the park property.
- If the owner chooses to subdivide the subject property, the owner may submit and the village will approve, from time to time, portions of the property for preliminary and final plats of subdivision and re-subdivision as separate units in accordance with this agreement.

- The village agrees that any approval of a preliminary plat will be effective for three years from the date of its approval without the owner renewing the preliminary plat on a year-to-year basis during the three-year period.

- In lieu of any bonds or guarantees required for public improvements under the ordinances of the village, the owner may give the village an irrevocable letter of credit issued by a licensed banking or financial institution approved by the village for this purpose or other security mutually agreed on in an amount equal to the amount of required bonds or guarantees.

- All regulations and ordinances which relate or affect the development and construction of improvements, buildings, appurtenances and all other development of any kind and character on the property will remain in effect and be valid and binding upon the parties for five years.

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that, should any existing ordinances affecting the development of the subject property be amended or modified in any manner to impose less restrictive requirements upon development of the property or reduce fees in the village, the less restrictive requirements will benefit the owner of the

Hysell Resigns Post

Fred Hysell Jr., chairman of the clean streams and drainage committee, submitted his resignation to Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett last week following the announcement of his resignation to commission members.

Hysell, who served two years as chairman, recommended in his letter of resignation that the village board appoint Robert Klovstad, vice president, to succeed him in order to assure a smooth transition as possible of the commission's objectives.

"The past two years have been an interesting experience in learning how our local levels of government work and do not work. It's an experience that I honestly endorse for anyone," Hysell said.

214 Board Studies Plans No Decision

The High School Dist. 214 School Board, in consultation with the district lay subcommittee, discussed two plans which would direct more students toward an expanded summer program.

The subcommittee, which has considered a 12-month school program (with 12 weeks in school, then 3 weeks off), heard administrators Evan Shull and Reuben Conrad present programs which could be a mighty push toward some form of year-round program.

Shull's plan, presented publicly for the first time, is a tuition financed summer semester "for evaluative purposes of the 12-month school concept."

Students using this program could receive four half semester credits. Tuition could cost $100 and the school work would be covered during nine summer weeks with classes meeting from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

CONRAD'S PLAN would divide summer school into two four-week periods. Teachers would teach both in the morning and afternoon and tuition would cost $80 for both sessions.

High, Holmes Junior High and Einstein Elementary schools.

Fee for the eight-week course is $1. The program is designed to teach the basic skills of grappling and boys will be divided into age groups by weight.

A boy's gymnastic course will be held March 26 to May 14 at Prospect High, Dempster Junior High and Holmes Junior High schools Thursdays from 6 to 7:30 p.m. for boys in fifth through eighth grade. Fee for the eight-week session is $1.

Adult golf lessons will be held Feb. 7 to March 14 on Saturdays at the Community Center. The lessons will include instruction in grip, stance, body action, swing and use of clubs. There will be two classes, each limited to 10. Fee is $7.50 for six lessons.

A course in baton will be held Sept. 17 to Nov. 18 and Jan. 6 to Feb. 24 on Tuesdays at Lions Park for first through eighth grade girls. There will be sessions for beginners and advanced baton twirlers. Classes are limited to 20. Fee for the eight-week session is $4.

Seventh and eighth grade dances will be held regularly throughout the fall and winter in the Lions Park Community Room from 7 to 9 p.m. Fee is $1 a person.

A GIRL'S RECREATION program for fifth through eighth grade girls will be held Oct. 4 to Dec. 13 and Jan. 10 to March 21 at Einstein, Robert Frost, Busse, Lions Park and Fairview schools.

The program will include volleyball, dodgeball, floor hockey, basketball, tag games, relays and others. It will be held on Saturdays and there is no fee.

Girl's acrobatics and tumbling is a new program to help students develop coordination and grace. It will be held Oct. 6 to Dec. 15 for first through sixth graders at Einstein, Robert Frost, Lions Park and Busse schools. There is a $2 fee for the 10-week session.

An air rifle safety program for proper gun handling will be held from Oct. 17 to Dec. 12 and Jan. 16 to March 6 on Thursdays at Lions Park for 9-to-12-year-old boys. Fee for the 16-week session is $2. The park district will supply all necessary supplies and equipment and the class is limited to 20.

A MARKSMANSHIP SAFETY program for 9-to-14-year-old boys will be held Oct. 21 to Dec. 9 and Jan. 13 to March 3 at Mount Prospect Fire Station No. 2 (Golf and Busse roads) on Tuesdays. There will be two classes of 15 each. Fee for the 16-week session is $4. The course is designed to teach youngsters sportsmanship and the safe handling of firearms.

Boy's basketball will be held Nov. 22 to March 21 for fifth through eighth grade boys on Saturdays at Dempster Junior High, Central Junior High, Holmes Junior High and Lincoln Junior High schools. Fee for the 14-week course is $2.

For winter sport enthusiasts, there will be six ice skating rinks and warming shelters operated by the park district at Lions Meadows, High Ridge Knolls, Emerson, Devonshire and Country Club parks. There will be no fee and the rinks will be supervised. The rinks will be open every day of the week if ice is available.

AN ICE-SKATING course for children 6 to 14 will be held at each of the rinks except Country Club Park after school this winter, subject to weather conditions. There is no fee. The course will provide basic instruction for beginners and will get into figure skating as the group progresses.

Tobogganing and sledding will be held at Lions Park Hill when weather conditions are favorable. There is no fee.

And the Young-At-Heart Club for persons over 60 will continue this fall and winter at the Community Center. Club meetings will be held every Monday at 9 a.m., beginning Sept. 22. Special trips and activities, including arts and crafts, card parties and travelogues are being planned. There is no fee and advance registration isn't necessary.

Registration for pre-school programs will be held starting at 9:30 a.m. Thursday. Registration for all other recreation programs will be held weekdays beginning Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The park district office is at 600 See Gwon, Mount Prospect. For additional information, call 235-5330.

'Mama Don' 'Low No Oxen'

by ANNE SLAVICEK

If you live in Wheeling you can't park your horse, ox or mule on the sidewalk. And you haven't been able to since September, 1894, when the village board passed an ordinance prohibiting it.

A copy of "Ordinance No. 2, an Ordinance To Define and Provide of Punishment of Misdemeanors," as well as several other laws dating back to the turn of the century, turned up last week during preparations for moving from the present Wheeling village hall to the new one.

The ordinances don't apply anymore because the laws have since been codified, according to M. O. Horcher, Wheeling police chief.

OTHER LAWS prohibited residents from disrupting worship services by "any menace, profane swearing, vulgar language or any disorderly or unusual conduct" and from "firing cannons, guns, fowling pieces, pistols, firearms or firecrackers on Sunday."

It was also illegal to torture animals or promote dog-fights, prize-fights, or cock-fights in the village.

Children's play activities were also regulated. "No person shall in any place in the said village fly kites, throw stones, trundle hoops, play ball or engage in any sport or exercise likely to frighten horses, injure passengers, embarrass the passage of vehicles or obstruct the business of other persons," according to Section 23 of Ordinance No. 2.

Citizens also weren't allowed to keep dead animals, unless they buried them. Residents were not to walk around with concealed weapons, including pistols, revolvers, sling shots, knuckles, knives or daggers, unless they had the permission of the village president.

IT WAS ALSO illegal to post handbills advertising cures for "what are called the 'secret diseases'."

The village fathers looked out for wildlife in the village by making it illegal to kill or trap any "robin, bluebird, swallow, martin, mosquito hawk, whip-poor-will, cuckoo, woodpecker, catbird, brown thrasher, humming cherry bird, yellow bird, oriole or bobolink."

It was also unlawful to bell an animal if it annoyed other people.

Health was important in the village, and the trustees prohibited persons from dumping trash in the street. The ordinance lists objectionable trash, including "old boots, old tin and straw."

A billboard, a modern medium for advertising, was also illegal if it "obstructed the light or view of any other person, or the free circulation of the air."

A HEALTH ORDINANCE passed in the fall of 1894 required that people see "respectable" physicians. The ordinance authorized a spring cleanup each May followed by an inspection by the village marshal and the village street commissioner of every "yard, barn lot, pig-sty, collar or privy" in the village.

A later ordinance, passed in September, 1912, exists only in a handwritten copy. It provides that owners of motor vehicles must be sure their mufflers are in working condition.

Scott Withdraws Name

CHICAGO — Atty. Gen. William J. Scott yesterday withdrew his name from consideration for the appointment to fill the U. S. Senate seat left vacant by the death of Everett M. Dirksen.

Scott bowed out amid reports that Governor Ogilvie had already offered him the Senate seat, but Ogilvie denied offering the appointment to anyone. Ogilvie conferred yesterday with House Speaker Ralph T. Smith and John Henry Alterer, Ogilvie's opponent in the 1968 gubernatorial primary, concerning the appointment.

Troop Pull-Out Set

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is to announce a second round of troop withdrawals from Vietnam today, a move he delayed two weeks because of a stop-up in Communist military activity, Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler has announced.

Ziegler refused to confirm a statement from South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky that the United States and South Vietnam had agreed on the withdrawal of 40,500 U.S. troops by the end of November.

Rocks Hamper Search

MANNINGTON, W. Va. — Work crews searching 500 feet underground for the remains of 78 men inside explosion-scarred Mannington No. 9 mine suffered their first setback Monday when they encountered a rock fall and waist-high water.

There was no trace of the missing miners, who were killed in explosions and fires last November.

Ward Offices Bombed

CHICAGO — Firebombs damaged the offices of two North Side aldermen within a 20-minute span early yesterday.

Aldermen George B. McCutcheon of the 43rd Ward and William Singer of the 44th Ward said they thought the bombings were connected with racial and minority group tensions. Damage at both offices was slight.

New 'Pot' Laws Urged

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. John Mitchell told Congress yesterday youths are turning to marijuana by the thousands while authorities wander in a "never-never land" of archaic laws and scientific ignorance.

He called for new laws to clamp down on mobsters and narcotics peddlers, deal more leniently with youthful drug experimenters and draw a more realistic line between "hard narcotics" and less dangerous drugs such as marijuana.

Want Barrier Removal

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Angry Protestants last night demanded that the British army stop "pussyfooting" and forcibly remove the Roman Catholic barricades in West Belfast.

The Protestants threatened to rebuild their own barriers unless the army moved quickly. The Central Defense Committee, which claims to speak for 75,000 Catholics, walked behind the barricades, declared they would not be removed until the British agreed to guarantee demands.

District 57 OKs Budget

Following a public hearing Dist. 57 Board members unanimously adopted their 1969-70 school budget.

Totals finalized Monday will be reflected in the 1969 tax bills received locally in the spring of 1970.

Education fund expenditures will be

New Car Buy OKd

The Mount Prospect Park District will buy a new station wagon this year but under no conditions will it be a red one.

"I'd like to see us get a color other than red. The one we have now is red and we look like the fire department," said Park Comr. Roland Becker.

The bid, for the new vehicle was awarded to George Poole Ford of Arlington Heights, less the trade-in, in the amount of $2,721 with the stipulation made that it be any other color than red.

Tom Cooper, park district superintendent, was then authorized to make the purchase with delivery to be made in four to six weeks.

IN OTHER ACTION the district authorized purchase of a trencher for $2,500 and a golf utility cart for $850. Other items the district will purchase in the future are $2,000 worth of radio equipment for district vehicles; 300 chairs, and irrigation equipment.

A report on the plans and preliminary drawings for the proposed new Lions Park Community Center was presented by Bill Mercei, one of the architects. Following this the board adjourned to Sept. 22, at which time bids will be received for various park development work at Brentwood, Countryside, Devonshire, Einstein, East Emerson, Owens, Fairview, High Ridge Knolls, and Robert Frost parks.

At one point during the meeting four citizens asked Board Pres. Robert Jackson when discussion of West Park would be on the agenda.

"WE WERE PROMISED a park and we didn't get it. A lot has been said and nothing happened. Maybe it's time we did something." The residents claimed they were from Colonial Heights.

Jackson said, "We're in sympathy with you. The park district is legally committed to buy West Park and is doing everything in its power to do so."

Charge Car Beating To Angry Young Owner

Douglas Johnson, 19, got so confounded angry at his car early yesterday, because it wasn't running right, that he started beating it with a tire iron out in Mount Prospect Plaza.

Johnson, who lives at 1130 Wheeling Road, Mount Prospect, didn't get away with bullying his car, though. Police saw what he was doing and charged him with disorderly conduct.

Johnson, a machine operator, was released on $25 bond and will come to court on the charge Oct. 22.

$3,055,612; building fund, $547,865; bond and interest, $310,500; transportation, $52,500; Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund, $45,000; site and construction, $8,666, and $104,250 for life safety work.

Bonds of $275,000 authorized in a March referendum for additions to Gregory and Sunset Park schools have not yet been sold. Adverse market conditions have delayed the sale. Because of this the estimated tax rate for the bond and interest bonds will drop .0264 offsetting gains in IMRS and transportation of .0204 and .0153.

WHAT THIS MEANS TO the taxpayer is that his tax rate established from the spread of the levy against the total district assessed value of $88 million or more may hold at the small increase of .0093 per $100 assessed value.

Transfers made Monday night from the building fund budget to the educational fund set the financial stage for an addition to Lincoln Junior High partially paid with tax anticipation warrants against the building fund.

Board members made these arrangements just in case the referendum in October to raise the building construction funds is denied by the voters.

The educational budget allows for TAWs up to $700,000, depending on when spring taxes are received. Up to $200,000 has been established for the building fund.

Board members say the budget will "look lopsided on paper" if the referendum passes, but will actually be strained over a longer period if it fails. Some custodial salaries and building maintenance expenses were among the funds transferred.

J. C. Busenhart, assistant superintendent, said he believes the district will not spend the total estimated construction cost at Lincoln next year if the referendum fails. Therefore the budget does not reflect the total funds needed to building the smaller Plan A proposed for Lincoln, he told the board.

Board members rejected Busenhart's proposal for a working cash fund levy of .050 per $100. They also pointed out that a board request for a $1,000 reduction in travel expenditures per district personnel was applied by the administration only to recruitment travel.

Meyer Endorses Schlickman

In a press conference yesterday, Meyer said he will head up a citizens committee in his community to work for Schlickman for Congress.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has endorsed Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights for the vacant post of 13th District congressman.

Schlickman, a three-term member in the Illinois House of Representatives, is the only Republican candidate for Congress from the four western townships in the eight-township district. Eight other Republican contenders are in the Oct. 7 primary race.

ED SHILLINGTON, Des Plaines eighth ward alderman, also endorsed Schlickman yesterday, his vote of confidence stated during the regular city council meeting. Shillington is a resident of Elk Grove Township, part of the 13th District.

Meyer recalled he first met Schlickman

DONNY HUTCHINGS, a graduate of Prospect High School, played the Misunderstood Witch at a theater party held at Central School by the Mount Prospect Library Saturday. The party was to honor the children who became members of the Polar Bear Reading Club this summer.

Congreve to Talk

Tonight ex-mayor Dan Congreve has been scheduled to be heard by the Mount Prospect Village Board on charges he made two weeks ago against John Zimmerman, village attorney.

Congreve had charged that Zimmerman was remiss in his duties for not taking court action against local builder Salvatore DiMucci for allegedly "altering" a public record after it had been approved by the village board.

He made the charge in a letter he sent to Zimmerman and the board of trustees. Later Mayor Robert Teichert invited him to be publicly heard on the charge.

The record in question was a plat of subdivision for a small parcel of land at Golf Road and Route 83. Village officials had approved the plat last summer and were aware of the charges made on the original linen when they asked DiMucci to submit a new one.

ANOTHER MATTER Congreve will be asked to explain is his criticism of the way open occupancy at the Countryside Bank, located at Route 83 and Golf Road, was handled by village officials.

And the last charge he is to explain is why the last public hearing for Farmer Cooper's Inc., held in August, is technically invalid.

Congreve holds there were two legal defects in the handling of the hearing. Howard Cooper, owner of the restaurant, was seeking to have his property at 303 E. Kensington Road, rezoned from residential to a nonconforming use to commercial.

Also on the list of citizens to be heard is Cooper himself, who will answer charges he made last week against Congreve and enter a plea to have his zoning request approved. Cooper has said the ex-mayor used "his political power, and influence to kill Farmer Cooper's in every way possible."

The meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the village hall and Congreve and Cooper are slated to be heard early in the night.

MIKE LEONARD, a local storyteller and actor, brought the wicked Captain Hook to life with dialogue and songs from the Broadway musical "Peter Pan" at Central School Saturday. The show was for the 484 children who acquired membership in the Polar Bear Reading Club, sponsored by the Mount Prospect Library this summer.

Candidates To Speak Tomorrow

The 16 Third District candidates for Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) delegate seats will make a rare appearance on the same stage Thursday night when the League of Women Voters (LWV) of several area communities sponsor a districtwide candidates' night at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

The forum will be one of the last chances for voters in the district to hear the candidates before next Tuesday's primary election.

In that election, four of the 16 will advance to the general election on Nov. 18. Two candidates will be elected delegates in each of the state's 58 senatorial districts.

THURSDAY'S SESSION will begin at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall meeting room on the lower level of Randhurst.

Because of the large number of candidates, the program has been divided into four parts.

Each part will have four candidates, whose names will be chosen by lot at the beginning of the program. The candidates will each have time to make a short presentation and after the four have spoken, there will be a question and answer period.

An LWV spokesman said the program should end by 10 p.m.

THE 16 candidates, and the order in which their names will appear on the primary ballot next Tuesday, are listed:

—Wilfred L. Robbins, 1808 W. Pheasant Trail, Mount Prospect.

—Robert A. Bush, 726 Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

—Annis F. Bush, 107 E. Council Trail, Mount Prospect.

—Mary Jordan Carlson, 207 E. School Lane, Prospect Heights.

—Lester A. Bonaguro, Arlington Heights;

—Douglas Roy Cannon, 8 N. Louis St., Mount Prospect.

—Eugene L. Griffin, 603 Thorntree Terrace, Arlington Heights.

—Thomas J. Johnson Jr., 98 Hawthorne Road, Barrington.

—Donald F. Colby, 38 Glenbrook Drive, Prospect Heights.

—William R. Engelhardt, 416 N. Inverway Road, Inverness.

—John G. Woods, 214 S. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights.

—Virginia B. Macdonald, 515 S. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights.

—Winn C. Davidson, 649 N. Clark Drive, Palatine.

—Madeline Schroeder, 1923 N. Chestnut Ave., Arlington Heights.

—LeMoine D. Stitt Jr., 591 N. Inverway Road, Inverness.

—Samuel A. LaSusa, 357 Roberts Road, Barrington.

Golf Clubs Are Taken

George Damato of Elmwood Park reported to Mount Prospect police a golf bag containing a set of woods, irons and 12 golf balls was stolen from his car at Old Orchard Country Club Sunday.

Police reported that the car showed no signs of forcible entry and that the burglar may have used a master key to enter Damato's trunk. Mount Prospect detectives are still investigating the case.

THE FIRST DAY of classes at Harper Junior College, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine, found students searching for classrooms and parking spaces. Just-completed buildings and workmen provided the scholarly backdrop.

Flaming Can Doused

When Bob Puryear was driving home from work early Friday morning, he spotted a burning can of paint in the middle of Busse Road, just north of Lincoln, in Mount Prospect.

Puryear, of 502 S. Crestwood, Mount Prospect, stopped and did his best to beat the fire out, then summoned firemen, who doused the rest of it.

PURYEAR TOLD FIREMEN that when he came upon the can, there was a "solid wall of flames" 30-feet long stretched across Busse Road, leading into some bushes.

Firemen said the can contained a liquid similar to gasoline and reported the fire did no damage.

Track To Unveil Growth Plan

Local residents looking into the crystal ball tonight may see a sports arena, almost carte blanche zoning rights and fire, police and railway stations at Arlington Park Race Track.

The future of the race track may be disclosed as representatives of Gulf and Western, which recently acquired the track, meet at 8 p.m. with the Arlington Heights Village Board to discuss a pre-annexation agreement.

REPORTS IN THE VILLAGE also say that Mrs. Marje Everett, president of Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises and operator of the track, will be in attendance.

Gulf and Western headquarters in New York could give no other details yesterday of corporate officials coming to Arlington Heights.

Basis for preliminary talks tonight will be the park's proposed 19-point agreement between the track and the village outlining the contingencies upon which any annexation will proceed.

Acceptance of the 19 points will make the track property the most valuable in the Northwest suburbs.

Village officials disclosed some weeks ago that the Gulf and Western representatives may eventually put $700 million into the development of the track and surrounding land into an activities center "which would make night racing very small in comparison." The 19-point plan to be discussed tonight is as follows:

- The village agrees to annex the territory on the terms and conditions in this agreement.

- The village agrees to enact, simultaneously with the annexation, ordinances reclassifying all of the subject property as set forth here.

- The village agrees to reclassify the subject property from the R-1 one-family dwelling district, on annexation, to the B-3 general service, wholesale and motor vehicle district, and to grant special use permits when required for the installation and operation of the existing race track, golf courses, sports arena, theaters, convention hall, office buildings, restaurants, commercial retail establishments and service stations. Such buildings will not be subject to the height limitations of the zoning ordinance of the village.

- The village agrees to amend its liquor control ordinance so as to permit sufficient liquor licenses to be issued upon approval of annexation. The liquor control ordinances are to permit licenses for closing hours similar to Cook County's provisions.

- The village agrees to furnish any required additional police protection for the effective management of crowds and traffic control. If requested by the owner, the village will, within five years, erect a suitable police substation within the area, provided that the owner donate, without cost to the village, a suitable site for police substation selected by the owner and approved by the village.

- The article says that within five years, if requested by the owner, the village will provide a fire substation on the property and staff it with the necessary firemen. The village may, if it desires, combine the site of the fire substation with the police substation provided above.

- The village agrees to join the owner in a petition to the Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) to locate a new passenger station for the Chicago and North Western R.R. at an appropriate location within the subject property. If the ICC orders cost-sharing, the village agrees to pay its share toward the cost of the station.

- The village agrees to assume the operation of existing water and sewer facilities on the subject property at the owner's request to provide additional water and sewer facilities for the property.

- The village agrees it will not exercise the power of eminent domain for the acquisition of real estate or personal property for public use within the park property.

- If the owner chooses to subdivide the subject property, the owner may submit and the village will approve, from time to time, portions of the property for preliminary and final plats of subdivision and resubdivision as separate units in accordance with this agreement.

- The village agrees that any approval of a preliminary plat will be effective for three years from the date of its approval without the owner renewing the preliminary plat on a year-to-year basis during the three-year period.

- In lieu of any bonds or guarantees required for public improvements under the ordinances of the village, the owner may give the village an irrevocable letter of credit issued by a licensed banking or financial institution approved by the village for this purpose or other security mutually agreed on in an amount equal to the amount of required bonds or guarantees.

- All regulations and ordinances which relate or affect the development and construction of improvements, buildings, appurtenances and all other development of any kind and character on the property will remain in effect and be valid and binding upon the parties for five years.

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that, should any existing ordinances affecting the development of the subject property be amended or modified in any manner to impose less restrictive requirements upon development of the property or reduce fees in the village, the less restrictive requirements will benefit the owner of the

214 Board Studies Plans No Decision

The High School Dist. 214 School Board, in consultation with the district lay subcommittee, discussed two plans which would direct more students toward an expanded summer program.

The subcommittee, which has considered a 12-month school program (with 12 weeks in school, then 3 weeks off), heard administrators Evan Shull and Reuben Conrad present programs which could be a mighty push toward some form of year-round program.

Shull's plan, presented publicly for the first time, is a tuition financed summer semester "for evaluative purposes of the 12-month school concept."

Students using this program could receive four half semester credits. Tuition could cost $100 and the school work would be covered during nine summer weeks with classes meeting from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

CONRAD'S PLAN would divide summer school into two four-week periods. Teachers would teach both in the morning and afternoon and tuition would cost $80 for both sessions.

High, Holmes Junior High and Einstein Elementary schools.

Fee for the eight-week course is $1. The program is designed to teach the basic skills of grappling and boys will be divided into age groups by weight.

A boy's gymnastic course will be held March 26 to May 14 at Prospect High, Dempster Junior High and Holmes Junior High schools Thursdays from 6 to 7 30 p.m. for boys in fifth through eighth grade. Fee for the eight-week session is $1.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS' recreation basketball will be held Nov. 15 to March 14 on

The student would receive two full semester credits rather than four half semester credits.

Because the board does not want to charge tuition, the main problem is discussing either proposal is the lack of state aid. Dist. 214 will need state money to finance the programs.

Both plans were discussed extensively, but neither plan was adopted. Most of those present seemed to feel that either plan might be a good means of easing the district into an eventual year-round program.

The year-round school program, which has been under discussion in the district for at least a year, is considered an alternative by some to constructing an eighth or ninth high school. Administration officials will be researching both plans in an effort to find a viable program.

Hysell Resigns Post

Fred Hysell Jr., chairman of the clean streams and drainage committee, submitted his resignation to Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett last week following the announcement of his resignation to commission members.

Hysell, who served two years as chairman, recommended in his letter of resignation that the village board appoint Robert Klovstad, vice president, to succeed him in order to assure a smooth transition as possible of the commission's objectives.

"The past two years have been an interesting experience in learning how our local levels of government work and do not work. It's an experience that I honestly endorse for anyone," Hysell said.

'Mama Don' 'Low No Oxen'

by ANNE SLAVICEK

If you live in Wheeling you can't park your horse, ox or mule on the sidewalk. And you haven't been able to since September, 1894, when the village board passed an ordinance prohibiting it.

A copy of "Ordinance No. 2, an Ordinance To Define and Provide of Punishment of Misdemeanors," as well as several other laws dating back to the turn of the century, turned up last week during preparations for moving from the present Wheeling village hall to the new one.

The ordinances don't apply anymore because the laws have since been codified, according to M. O. Horcher, Wheeling police chief.

OTHER LAWS prohibited residents from disrupting worship services by "any men-

Saturdays at Prospect High School. There is no fee. The program is designed for boys who don't play high school basketball.

Adult golf lessons will be held Feb. 7 to March 14 on Saturdays at the Community Center. The lessons will include instruction in grip, stance, body action, swing and use of clubs. There will be two classes, each limited to 10. Fee is $7.50 for six lessons.

A course in baton will be held Sept. 30 to Nov. 18 and Jan. 6 to Feb. 24 on Tuesdays at Lions Park for first through eighth grade girls. There will be sessions for beginners and advanced baton twirlers. Classes are limited to 20. Fee for the eight-week session is $4.

Seventh and eighth grade dances will be held regularly throughout the fall and winter in the Lions Park Community Room from 7 to 9 p.m. Fee is $1 a person.

A GIRL'S RECREATION program for fifth through eighth grade girls will be held Oct. 4 to Dec. 13 and Jan. 10 to March 21 at Einstein, Robert Frost, Busse, Lions Park and Fairview schools.

The program will include volleyball, dodgeball, floor hockey, basketball, tag games, relays and others. It will be held on Saturdays and there is no fee.

Girl's acrobatics and tumbling is a new program to help students develop coordination and grace. It will be held Oct. 6 to Dec. 15 for first through sixth graders at Einstein, Robert Frost, Lions Park and Busse schools. There is a $2 fee for the 10-week session.

An air rifle safety program for proper gun handling will be held from Oct. 17 to Dec. 12 and Jan. 16 to March 6 on Thursdays at Lions Park for 9-to-12-year-old boys. Fee for the 16-week session is $2. The park district will supply all necessary supplies and equipment and the class is limited to 20.

A MARKSMANSHIP SAFETY program for 9-to-14-year-old boys will be held Oct. 21 to Dec. 9 and Jan. 13 to March 3 at Mount Prospect Fire Station No. 2 (Golf and Busse roads) on Tuesdays. There will be two classes of 15 each. Fee for the 16-week session is $4. The course is designed to teach youngsters sportsmanship and the safe handling of firearms.

Boy's basketball will be held Nov. 22 to March 21 for fifth through eighth grade boys on Saturdays at Dempster Junior High, Central Junior High, Holmes Junior High and Lincoln Junior High schools. Fee for the 14-week course is $2.

For winter sport enthusiasts, there will be six ice skating rinks and warming shelters operated by the park district at Lions, Meadows, High Ridge Knolls, Emerson, Devonshire and Country Club parks. There will be no fee and the rinks will be supervised. The rinks will be open every day of the week if ice is available.

AN ICE-SKATING course for children 6 to 14 will be held at each of the rinks except Country Club Park after school this winter, subject to weather conditions. There is no fee. The course will provide basic instruction for beginners and will get into figure skating as the group progresses.

Tobogganing and sledding will be held at Lions Park Hill when weather conditions are favorable. There is no fee.

And the Young-At-Heart Club for persons over 60 will continue this fall and winter at the Community Center. Club meetings will be held every Monday at 9 a.m., beginning Sept. 22. Special trips and activities, including arts and crafts, card parties and travelogues are being planned. There is no fee and advance registration isn't necessary.

Registration for pre-school programs will be held starting at 9 30 a.m. Thursday. Registration for all other recreation programs will be held weekdays beginning Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The park district office is at 600 See Gwon, Mount Prospect. For additional information, call 255-5380.

ace, profane swearing, vulgar language or any disorderly or unusual conduct" and from "firing cannons, guns, fowling pieces, pistols, firearms or firecrackers on Sunday."

It was also illegal to torture animals or promote dog-fights, prize-fights, or cock-fights in the village.

Children's play activities were also regulated. "No person shall in any place in the said village fly kites, throw stones, trundle hoops, play ball or engage in any sport or exercise likely to frighten horses, injure passengers, embarrass the passage of vehicles or obstruct the business of other persons," according to Section 23 of Ordinance No. 2.

Citizens also weren't allowed to keep dead animals, unless they buried them. Residents were not to walk around with concealed weapons, including pistols, revolvers, sling shots, knives or daggers, unless they had the permission of the village president.

IT WAS ALSO illegal to post handbills advertising cures for "what are called the 'secret diseases'."

The village fathers looked out for wildlife in the village by making it illegal to kill or trap any "robin, bluebird, swallow, martin, mosquito hawk, whip-poor-will, cuckoo, woodpecker, catbird, brown thrasher, humming cherry bird, yellow bird, oriole or bobolink."

It was also unlawful to bell an animal if it annoyed other people.

Health was important in the village, and the trustees prohibited persons from dumping trash in the street. The ordinance lists objectionable trash, including "old boots, old tin and straw."

A billboard, a modern medium for advertising, was also illegal if it "obstructed the light or view of any other person, or the free circulation of the air."

A HEALTH ORDINANCE passed in the fall of 1894 required that people see "respectable" physicians. The ordinance authorized a spring cleanup each May followed by an inspection by the village marshal and the village street commissioner of every "yard, barn lot, pig-sty, cellar or privy" in the village.

A later ordinance, passed in September, 1912, exists only in a handwritten copy. It provides that owners of motor vehicles must be sure their mufflers are in working condition.

Scott Withdraws Name

CHICAGO — Atty. Gen. William J. Scott yesterday withdrew his name from consideration for the appointment to fill the U. S. Senate seat left vacant by the death of Everett M. Dirksen.

Scott bowed out amid reports that Governor Ogilvie had already offered him the Senate seat, but Ogilvie denied offering the appointment to anyone. Ogilvie conferred yesterday with House Speaker Ralph T. Smith and John Henry Altorfer, Ogilvie's opponent in the 1969 gubernatorial primary, concerning the appointment.

Troop Pull-Out Set

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is to announce a second round of troop withdrawals from Vietnam today, a move he delayed two weeks because of a step-up in Communist military activity. Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler has announced.

Ziegler refused to confirm a statement from South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky that the United States and South Vietnam had agreed on the withdrawal of 40,500 U.S. troops by the end of November.

Rocks Hamper Search

MANNINGTON, W. Va. — Work crews searching 500 feet underground for the remains of 70 men inside explosion-scarred Mannington No. 9 mine suffered their first setback Monday when they encountered a rock fall and waist-high water.

There was no trace of the missing miners, who were killed in explosions and fires last November.

Ward Offices Bombed

CHICAGO — Firebombs damaged the offices of two North Side aldermen within a 20-minute span early yesterday.

Aldermen George B. McCutcheon of the 43rd Ward and William Singer of the 44th Ward said they thought the bombings were connected with racial and minority group tensions. Damage at both offices was slight.

New 'Pot' Laws Urged

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. John Mitchell told Congress yesterday youths are turning to marijuana by the thousands while authorities wander in a "never-never land" of archaic laws and scientific ignorance.

He called for new laws to clamp down on mobsters and narcotics peddlers, deal more leniently with youthful drug experimenters and draw a more realistic line between "hard narcotics" and less dangerous drugs such as marijuana.

Want Barrier Removal

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Angry Protestants last night demanded that the British army stop "pusyfooting" and forcibly remove the Roman Catholic barricades in West Belfast.

The Protestants threatened to rebuild their own barriers unless the army moved quickly. The Central Defense Committee, which claims to speak for 75,000 Catholics, walked behind the barricades, declared they would not be removed until the British agreed to guarantee demands.

Homes Facing Dozer?

by SANDRA BROWNING

Four older homes are slated for eventual destruction in the downtown Arlington Heights area and at least one village resident is concerned about it.

Mrs. Don Thompson, who lives at Arlington Heights Road and Euclid Street, said the buildings may not be worth saving, but some of the items in them are worth preserving.

Two of the homes are slated to be torn down soon. They are just north of the Cook County Farm Bureau building on the northeast corner of Dunton and Vail avenues. The homes front onto Dunton and will be torn down to make way for additional parking for the Farm Bureau.

GORDEN FOX, executive secretary of the Cook County Farm Bureau, said no date has been set for the destruction of the two homes, but the Farm Bureau was now letting bids for the work and for the park lot construction.

The other two homes are on the property purchased by the village as a potential site for a cultural center which might be constructed as early as 1972 or '73.

The property is the block bounded by Dunton and Vail avenues and St. James and Fremont streets. It is directly south of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library. The property was purchased from the Arlington Heights Evangelical Free Church, 401 N. Dunton Ave., which is presently building a new church and will move out of their facilities around the beginning of next year.

ONE OF THE HOUSES on this property fronts on St. James Street just west of the church building and the other is on the southwest corner of Dunton Avenue and Fremont street. They were used by the church to house Sunday School classes.

These homes will probably not be torn down until the newly-appointed cultural commission decides on the initial phase of construction of a cultural center. This could be more than three years.

Mrs. Thompson said usable items that should be saved in the homes include old paneling, cupboards, wood flooring, porcelain door knobs, an oval window, moldings, banisters and risers. "If they are destroyed it would be just a crime, she said.

A sale could be held in the homes, with items going to the highest bidder. Mrs. Thompson suggested, "To me, it's not the money, but the fact that these antiques should be saved," she said.

If nominal prices were set on items, more residents could afford to buy the antiques, she said.

"THERE SHOULD BE some way of letting people know," she suggested some type of cooperation between the village board, the historical society and perhaps the real estate board to publicize and run sales in the homes on village-owned property.

There doesn't seem to be much hope for a sale of items in the homes on property owned by the Farm Bureau. The bureau has no plans for offering any type of open sale, especially since bids are already being let for the destruction of the houses, Fox said.

Any sale of items from the two homes on the village's property will be handled by the board of trustees of the church. The church still maintains control until they move from the property. Some requests have been made to the church board for permission to take some things from the homes. No plans have been made for a public sale.

The destruction of the two homes will be handled by the village which would have the final say on Mrs. Thompson's suggestion for a sale of anything valuable left in the houses after the church moves off the site.

League Sets Con-Con Forum

The 16 Third District candidates for Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) delegate seats will make a rare appearance on the same stage Thursday night when the League of Women Voters (LWV) of several area communities sponsor a districtwide candidates' night at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

The forum will be one of the last chances for voters in the district to hear the candidates before next Tuesday's primary election.

In that election, four of the 16 will advance to the general election on Nov. 18. Two candidates will be elected delegates in each of the state's 58 senatorial districts.

THURSDAY'S SESSION will begin at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall meeting room on the lower level of Randhurst.

Because of the large number of candidates, the program has been divided into four parts.

Each part will have four candidates, whose names will be chosen by lot at the beginning of the program. The candidates will each have time to make a short presentation and after the four have spoken, there will be a question and answer period.

THE 16 candidates, and the order in which their names will appear on the primary ballot next Tuesday, are listed:

- Wilfred L. Robbins, 1808 W. Pheasant Trail, Mount Prospect.
- Robert A. Bush, 726 Dempster St., Mount Prospect.
- Annis F. Bush, 107 E. Council Trail, Mount Prospect.
- Mary Jordan Carlson, 207 E. School Lane, Prospect Heights.
- Lester A. Bonaguro, Arlington Heights;

- Douglas Roy Cannon, 8 N. Louis St., Mount Prospect.

- Eugene L. Griffin, 603 Thorntree Terrace, Arlington Heights.

- Thomas J. Johnson Jr., 98 Hawthorne Road, Barrington.

- Donald F. Colby, 38 Glenbrook Drive, Prospect Heights.

- William R. Engelhardt, 416 N. Inverway Road, Inverness.

- John G. Woods, 214 S. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights.

- Virginia B. Macdonald, 515 S. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights.

- Winn C. Davidson, 649 N. Clark Drive, Palatine.

- Madeline Schroeder, 1923 N. Chestnut Ave., Arlington Heights.

- LeMoine D. Stitt Jr., 501 N. Inverway Road, Inverness.

- Samuel A. LaSusa, 357 Roberts Road, Barrington.

Excavation Prohibited

The Arlington Heights Village Board passed an ordinance last night that may prevent the repeat of the tragic death that happened this summer when a 9-year-old boy drowned in an open construction site that had filled with water.

The board unanimously agreed to an ordinance that would make it a misdemeanor to leave an excavation unprotected and Village Pres. Jack Walsh instructed Village Mgr. L. A. Hansen to make sure the building department saw to it that this ordinance was enforced.

In other action, the board again heard Atty. Howard Borde's request to resubdivide Lot 523 in the Greenbrier subdivision. Borde, representing Kenroy, Inc., appeared on Sept. 2 and told the board that the proposed use for the two lots would be a Park-It Market and a Baranby's restaurant.

AT THAT TIME, Fred Ball, who represented the Greenbrier Civic Association, informed the board that there was a restrictive covenant for the land's use and that a restaurant serving liquor may be restricted by the covenant.

The hearing was postponed until last night so Village Atty. Jack Siegel could determine if the restrictive covenant included restaurants.

Upon hearing that restaurant was an allowed use, Ball said, "There are other restaurants that serve liquor in the area and we are concerned because we are a residential area and we want to stay that way."

The board passed the resubdivision unanimously.

A CALL TO WORSHIP at the Lutheran Home for the Aged in Arlington Heights brought many residents of the home onto the walkways of the grounds. The residents and their guests were enjoying their annual festival and service last Sunday.

toward the cost of the station.

• The village agrees to assume the operation of existing water and sewer facilities on the subject property at the owner's request to provide additional water and sewer facilities for the property.

• The village agrees it will not exercise the power of eminent domain for the acquisition of real estate or personal property for public use within the park property.

• If the owner chooses to subdivide the subject property, the owner may submit and the village will approve, from time to time, portions of the property for preliminary and final plats of subdivision and re-subdivision as separate units in accordance with this agreement.

• The village agrees that any approval of a preliminary plat will be effective for three years from the date of its approval without the owner renewing the preliminary plat on a year-to-year basis during the three-year period.

• In lieu of any bonds or guarantees required for public improvements under the ordinances of the village, the owner may give the village an irrevocable letter of credit issued by a licensed banking or financial institution approved by the village for this purpose or other security mutually agreed on in an amount equal to the amount of required bonds or guarantees.

• All regulations and ordinances which relate or affect the development and construction of improvements, buildings, appurtenances and all other development of any kind and character on the property will remain in effect and be valid and binding upon the parties for five years.

IT IS FURTHER AGREED that, should any existing ordinances affecting the development of the subject property be amended or modified in any manner to impose less restrictive requirements upon development of the property or reduce fees in the village, the less restrictive requirements will benefit the owner of the property and the owner may elect to proceed under the terms of this agreement or upon the amendment or modifications applicable generally to all property within the village.

• The village agrees to enact ordinances and resolutions as are necessary to effectuate the terms of this agreement and to waive all annexation fees and donations of money or land which may be required by the ordinances of the village.

• It is the understanding of the village that Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, Inc., will apply to the Illinois State Racing Board for a change in the hours of thoroughbred racing to permit night racing at the Arlington Park Race Track. The village agrees not to oppose the application for night thoroughbred racing.

• If the owner or any of its subsidiaries holds a valid permit or license for which it has paid a fee to the county, the owner will receive a credit for its unexpired portion if it has to pay a similar village fee instead.

• This agreement will benefit and be binding upon the successors in title of the owner and upon successor corporate authorities of the village and successor municipalities. It will be valid and binding for five years from date of its execution.

• This agreement will be enforceable in any court of competent jurisdiction by any of the parties or by any appropriate action at law or in equity to secure the performance of its covenants. The owner may disconnect the property from the village upon breach of this agreement by the village.

• If this agreement is extended or deferred by court order, the execution of this agreement will be considered deferred until the date on which it becomes effective.

Woman Reports A $600 Theft

An Arlington Heights woman reported to police Monday that approximately $600 in cash was stolen from her home.

Mrs. June Thacker, of 1014 W. Campbell St., told police between $500 and $600 was taken from her daughter's bedroom, and another $40 from the kitchen cabinet.

Police said an undetermined amount of cash was taken from two other bedrooms. They said a window, located in the family room, was broken to gain entry into the house.

Mrs. Thacker discovered the theft when she returned from work yesterday afternoon.

'Mama Don' 'Low No Oxen'

by ANNE SLAVICEK

If you live in Wheeling you can't park your horse, ox or mule on the sidewalk.

And you haven't been able to since September, 1894, when the village board passed an ordinance prohibiting it.

A copy of "Ordinance No. 2, an Ordinance To Define and Provide of Punishment of Misdemeanors," as well as several other laws dating back to the turn of the century, turned up last week during preparations for moving from the present Wheeling village hall to the new one.

The ordinances don't apply anymore because the laws have since been codified, according to M. O. Horcher, Wheeling police chief.

OTHER LAWS prohibited residents from disrupting worship services by "any menace, profane swearing, vulgar language or any disorderly or unusual conduct" and from "firing cannons, guns, fowling pieces, pistols, firearms or firecrackers on Sunday."

It was also illegal to torture animals or promote dog-fights, prize-fights, or cock-fights in the village.

Children's play activities were also regulated. "No person shall in any place in the said village fly kites, throw stones, trundle hoops, play ball or engage in any sport or exercise likely to frighten horses, injure passengers, embarrass the passage of vehicles or obstruct the business of other persons," according to Section 23 of Ordinance No. 2.

Citizens also weren't allowed to keep dead animals, unless they buried them. Residents were not to walk around with concealed weapons, including pistols, revolvers, sling shots, knuckles, knives or daggers, unless they had the permission of the village president.

IT WAS ALSO illegal to post handbills advertising cures for "what are called the 'secret diseases'."

The village fathers looked out for wildlife in the village by making it illegal to kill or trap any "robin, bluebird, swallow, martin, mosquito hawk, whip-poor - will, cuckoo, woodpecker, catbird, brown thrasher, humming cherry bird, yellow bird, oriole or bobolink."

It was also unlawful to bell an animal if it annoyed other people.

Health was important in the village, and the trustees prohibited persons from dumping trash in the street. The ordinance lists objectionable trash, including "old boots, old tin and straw."

A billboard, a modern medium for advertising, was also illegal if it "obstructed the light or view of any other person, or the free circulation of the air."

A HEALTH ORDINANCE passed in the fall of 1894 required that people see "respectable" physicians. The ordinance authorized a spring cleanup each May followed by an inspection by the village marshal and the village street commissioner of every "yard, barn lot, pig-sty, cellar or privy" in the village.

A later ordinance, passed in September, 1912, exists only in a handwritten copy. It provides that owners of motor vehicles must be sure their mufflers are in working condition.

A SERMON IN THE sunshine was conducted Sunday by the Rev. William Eggers, executive secretary, Home for Aged Lutherans, Wauwatosa, Wis., and president of the American Association of Homes for the Aged. Rev. Eggers spoke at the annual festival of the Lutheran Home for the Aged in Arlington Heights.

Edgar Cayce Film Set At Randhurst

A movie explaining the current interest in the "Sleeping Prophet," Edgar Cayce, will be shown at the Randhurst Town Hall at 8 p.m. Sept. 25.

The subject of the movie is an interview with Hugh Lynn Cayce, son of the man considered by some to have been a visionary.

Ed Sloan, chairman of the Chicago Council of ARE, a foundation organized to study Edgar Cayce's life, will discuss the work currently in progress at the group's Virginia Beach, Va., headquarters.

Study groups in the Arlington Heights area are sponsoring the showing of the movie. Admission charge will be $1 to the general public and 50 cents to members of study groups.

A JEWELRY TREE, full of the glittering trinkets that makes pretty girls even prettier was one of the attractions at the Arlington Heights Lutheran Home last Sunday. The home opened its doors this week for the annual service and festival. See other pictures inside.

Motorola To Build Addition

Construction of a 317,000-square-foot addition to the Motorola Communications Division facility in Schaumburg will begin later this month.

The new addition will be west of the present Motorola facility on Algonquin and Meacham roads and will contain manufacturing, office and warehouse space.

It is planned to accommodate the steady growth of Motorola's communications division, and the consolidation of the division's activities into two major locations in the Chicagoland area, according to Homer Marrs, general manager of the division.

EXPANSION OF THE Motorola facility in Schaumburg will provide additional employment opportunities for factory and office personnel, Marrs said.

Motorola's Schaumburg plant distributes a broad product line which includes two-way base radio systems, mobile and portable units, paging receivers, component products, closed-circuit television, car telephones and various other communications items. Motorola pioneered in two-way radio systems starting in the 1930's.

Motorola also is expected to begin construction soon for a 135,000-square-foot building in Schaumburg housing the company's corporate offices. The new building will house the company's finance, law, human relations and public relations departments, as well as the offices of the chairman and president.

MOTOROLA MOVED its communications division to the 700,000-square-foot Schaumburg plant in March, 1967. Growth in the communications field caused the division to build this additional facility while maintaining maximum operation at the older Chicago complex on Augusta Boulevard.

Motorola is the biggest employer in Schaumburg with more than 3,000 workers. Employment numbers have been steadily growing at the plant.
